TEXAS (SUCKER?) GUINAN

'TEX' ACCUSES SHOWMAN HERE

A young fellow from New Brighton said "Hello, Sucker!" to Texas Guinan in a big way—to the extent of $500—when the Broadway "whoopee girl" visited Pittsburgh with her "Too Hot for Paris" show last Wednesday, according to charges made before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan by Guinan's manager, Jack Flynn.

A warrant issued from Flanigan's office, it was revealed today, charges Edward Robbins, of New Brighton, promoter of the Guinan appearance at Motor Square Garden last week, with embezzlement and fraudulent conversion.

ACCUSES GUINAN

Robbins denies the charge and retaliates with the accusation that Guinan and her manager both played him for the "sucker" but failed to get away with it.

Evalyn Knapp Well, To Start New Film

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Evalyn Knapp, young motion picture actress, today had completely recovered from injuries received two months ago in a fall down a cliff in the Hollywood hills.

Several vertebrae were fractured, and it was necessary for her to learn to walk again, step by step. Simultaneously, the studio where she is under contract announced she would begin work late this month in a picture opposite William Powell.

Banks Take Holiday On Columbus Day

Pittsburgh banks and the Clearing House were closed today while the city observed Columbus Day. The voyage of Christopher Columbus and the discovery of America was the subject of study in the public schools.

The usual Knights of Columbus banquet for the Allegheny County chapters has been eliminated this year, so that the money spent for such a celebration might be used in welfare work.

TOKIO ALSO REBUKES LEAGUE

Will Reject 'Vigorously' Intervention in Chinese Dispute, Official Says

By JAMES YOUNG.
International News Service.

TOKIO, Oct. 12.—Japan will reject "vigorously" any efforts by the United States or the League of Nations to intervene in the Manchurian dispute, it was stated authoritatively today.

This statement was made immediately after a special meeting of the cabinet to consider the Manchurian situation.

The government, it was stated, will continue to insist upon settlement of the controversy through direct negotiation with China, believing this method offers the better prospects of success.

An official said:

"Interference by the United States or the League would be regrettable. It would be certain to defeat its own purpose by forcing the Japanese public solidly to support jingoists and militarists here.

"The world is unable to bend Japan's head to China. Such attempts will have serious consequences."

China Prepared for War If Demands Fail

SHANGHAI, Oct. 12.—(INS.)—China is prepared to resort to war if her demands upon Japan with reference to the Manchurian occupation are not met, Chiang Kai-Shek, president of the Chinese Nationalist government, declared in a speech at Nanking today. He said:

"China respects the League covenant and the Kellogg peace pact, but if the League and the powers that signed the Kellogg treaty fail to bring Japan to HELSINGFORS, Finland, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—The Bank of Finland followed the lead of other Scandinavian countries today by suspending the gold standard.

LIVINGSTONE, North Rhodesia, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Northern and Southern Rhodesia, British colonies in South Africa, have suspended the gold standard in conformity with instructions from the secretary of state, the official Gazette said today.

Fear Soldiers Dead In Big Lake Storm

SACKETS HARBOR, N. Y., Oct. 12.—(AP.)—The choppy waters of the eastern end of Lake Ontario were being searched today for five soldiers of Madison barracks who failed to return from a fishing trip Saturday afternoon, after a heavy sea was kicked up by high winds. Their names were not revealed by military authorities.

Held in Spreading False Bank Rumor

APOLLO, Pa., Oct. 12.—Accused of spreading false reports concerning an Apollo bank, Mrs. Violet Chambers and Woldron Walls were held in $2,000 bail for court trial by Justice of the Peace W. C. Campbell. The information was filed by Police Chief Charles Hutchinson.

APARTMENT EXPLOSION HURTS 5

Women and Children Among Victims as Blast Wrecks Negley Avenue Apartment

THE INJURED

REEDY, JANET MAY, 5; slight burns on hands; St. Francis Hospital.

REEDY, JOSEPH, 2; slight burns on hands; St. Francis Hospital.

BURRIS, MRS. EMMA, 38; Negro, of 138 Randolph street; cut on face from flying glass; Pittsburgh Hospital.

Mrs. Reedy and her two children were inspecting a vacant apartment into which they intended to move when the blast occurred in the kitchen of the apartment. Burned about the face and body, Mrs. Reedy picked up her son and fled to the street.

E. J. Murphy, of 5406 Columbo street, passing at the time, rescued Mrs. Reedy's daughter and assisted in carrying out Lemmon, who resided in the building.

Mrs. Burris was struck by flying glass while she was walking in the rear of the building and was rushed to the hospital by police when she was found lying in the street.

Part of the wall in the apartment was blown out and windows were broken by the force of the explosion. Firemen said the blast was caused by gas, but were unable to explain its source. Damage was placed at $5,000.

Six families who live in the building, said the explosion made little noise, although several windows of the second floor were broken.

Mrs. Reedy had just signed a lease for the place.

Signal Lights Off, Traffic Snarled

Early morning downtown street traffic was without the "guiding hand" of traffic lights today.

Ordinarily in operation at 7:45 a. m., the lights were not turned on until between 8:30 and 9 a. m., due to the Columbus Day holiday. Slight confusion resulted.

SCHOOLEY'S OFFICE IN 'PAY-OFF' PROBE

$7,500 Reported Rushed From Treasurer's Quarters To Cover 'Hit' in East End

Reports that $7,500 was carried out of the City Treasurer's office to an East End numbers racket headquarters to pay off a big "hit," were being investigated today in connection with the audit of Treasurer Roy D. Schooley's books under the direction of Controller James P. Kerr.

The reports had it that the money was required to pay off winners when many hit a "lucky" number in the numbers pool and the pool's cash balance was insufficient to pay them off.

AUDIT SEQUEL

The audit, being made by Price, Waterhouse & Co., certified accountants, was attributed partly to these rumors.

State Senator James J. Coyne, long a bitter political foe of Treasurer Schooley, conferred with Controller Kerr for half an hour.

When he left he was asked:

"Were you discussing the Schooley investigation?"

Coyne replied:

"Oh, no! We were just talking about the school situation in China!"

HUNT FOR BONDS

Search was also being continued for bonds supposed to have been provided by the closed Franklin Savings and Trust Company for $125,000 city funds.

The city depository ordinance requires that any bank holding city time deposits must provide government bonds to the full amount of the deposit or approved corporation securities, accepted at 75 per cent of their face value, to the full amount of the deposit.

The ordinance also requires that to obtain access to the bonds a representative of the Treasurer and of the bank be present when the vault containing the bank's bonds is opened. Such bonds

EDISON SINKING INTO COMA

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 12.—(INS.)—Thomas A. Edison is slowly sinking into the coma which long has been feared, his physician, Dr. Hubert S. Howe, said today after examining the famous inventor.

Unable to take nourishment during the last 24 hours, Edison has become progressively weaker. He now recognizes no one, not even his wife, Dr. Howe said, after he had made a further examination following his regular morning bulletin, which said:

"His strong heart is standing him in good stead. He is gradually growing weaker and there was a definite loss of strength this morning."

Jellicoe Gravely Ill On Isle of Wight

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(INS.)—"Severe anxiety" was felt today over the condition of Lord Jellicoe, admiral of the British fleet and hero of the Battle of Jutland, seriously ill at his home on the Ilse of Wight.

3 Murders, Capone Trial Stir Chicago

By WEST PETERSON
International News Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—While the trial of Al Capone swung into its second week today, Chicago's police and Indiana and Illinois state authorities pushed an investigation into three mob executions committed or discovered over the week-end.

At the same time, there was an intensive manhunt under way for Frank McErlane, "toughest guy in Chicago." It is believed McErlane may be dead.

Victims of the latest flareup in the underworld were:

James L. Quigley, whose aspirations to be a beer baron in his own right had caused him to run afoul of McErlane; George Wilson, a former policeman with nebulous gang connections, who was held to the grand jury last week for robbery, and Anthony Ialongo, Chicago grape merchant, whose body was found near Crown Point, Ind., and who was believed to have been the victim of hijackers.

DRUGGAN SOUGHT

In the opinion of police, the killings were connected in no way. Meantime the trial of Capone continued in Federal Court.

The search for McErlane was initiated last week, when the mob-

ROBBER SLAIN IN BARBECUE

One of two robbers was shot to death and the other escaped after they were fired upon by Paul Blanset, 19, when they broke into the Ocean Park barbecue, near West Newton, early today.

Blanset, a brother-in-law of D. C. Statler, owner of the barbecue, was asleep in the rear of the place, according to state police.

Awakened when the men broke in, it was said, he secured a .25-caliber revolver and waited.

Police said he fired when he saw one man armed with a baseball bat. The man dropped to the floor and his companion fled. Blanset fired several shots at him.

Aid Offered Dog, Sentenced to Die

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Roxie, pedigreed German shepherd dog, bound and muzzled in its kennel here under sentence of death Thursday, has friends all over the country. A flood of offers of assistance in financing an appeal to the Circuit court poured upon Wayne Rosenbloom, Roxie's master, after newspapers told of Justice Paul W. Shafer's sentence of death for the dog at the close of a lengthy trial, in which the state charged Roxie with viciousness.

2 Firemen Hurt As Landmark Burns

Two firemen weer injured in a fire which partly wrecked the old Lang homestead, at Pioneer and Cadet avenues, this afternoon. William J. Thompson, 22, of 326 McKinley avenue, and Leon Hein, 38, of 104 Secane street, were cut and bruised when a floor collapsed. Both were in Mercy Hospital. The homestead, a landmark, now owned by the St. Joseph's Hospital Association, was unoccupied.

1-Day Liner Voyage Defies Volsteadism

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Now it's the one-day sea joyride to nowhere. The liner Belgenland steamed out to sea at 9 o'clock this morning with 1,647 passengers. She'll be back tonight at 11.

The Belgenland has a bar, which was to be opened after she crossed the 12-mile limit, the line's officers said.

CITY SETS TAX CUT HEARING

A hearing on tax reduction has been granted by City Council for Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. John S. Herron, president of City Council, agreed to grant the hearing after a conference with officials of the Building Owners and Managers Association.

It is expected that many civic organizations will be represented at the hearing. Those which have already taken a stand for public economy include the Chamber of Commerce, the Allegheny County League of Building and Loan Associations, the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board and the Building Owners and Managers.

Estimates of 1932 expenses have not yet been prepared for the Mayor by the heads of city departments. The Building Owners and Managers, in a letter to Mayor Charles H. Kline, have asked his department heads and him to attend the hearing.

Alpern Not Indicted In County Tax Probe

Through a regrettable error the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph yesterday stated that Louis Alpern had been indicted among a group of county tax board officials for activities concerned with the recent primary election.

Louis Alpern is a candidate for County Commissioner on the Liberal party ticket, and of course was not among those accused by the grand jury. He was in no way concerned with matters which have been under investigation by the grand jury.

Frank Alpert, a subordinate of the tax board, was among those indicted, and the confusion in similar names caused the error, for which the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph is sorry.

Edgar Wallace, famous detective story writer, today wired David Lloyd George that he would stand as a parliamentary candidate at blackpool and "try to win a seat from the food-taxers."

Divorce Suit, Jail Greet Moyle and Allen

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Donald Moyle and Cecil Allen, Pacific fliers, who experienced a lot of trouble and once were given up for lost, arrived back home yesterday, but their troubles were not ended.

Mrs. Mary Allen, wife of one of the fliers, who, after the takeoff from Japan for United States, said she and her husband had become reconciled after an estrangement, announced she planned to institute divorce proceedings.

As for Moyle's troubles, the flier knew he faced them before he left Los Angeles for Japan. Tomorrow he will appear in Superior Court to be committed to jail for 30 days. He was convicted on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated, but sentence had been deferred until he made the flight attempt.

More than 3,000 persons were at the Grand Central Airport in Glendale when the aviators brought their plane in on a one-stop flight from Tacoma, Wash. A representative of a Japanese newspaper gave them a check for $2,500 as consolation money.

The fliers reiterated their story they had been forced down by a terrific storm in Siberia. It was then they were reported lost. They finally completed a flight from Siberia to Alaska and then went to Tacoma by easy stages.

M'GOVERN MAPS PROPOSED VOTE REFORM TO BALK FRAUD

School, Library Quarters Planned to Bar Election Thugs, Encourage Women

A complete change in the present system of voting will be proposed by County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern to his colleagues if he is a member of the new Board of County Commissioners.

In an interview yesterday McGovern outlined his idea.

He said:

"Voting should be done in public schools and libraries. The day of the thugs around the old-fashioned galvanized iron polling places hidden up some alley has passed. Permanent voting booths should be built in schools and libraries and that's what I will propose if I am a member of the Board of Commissioners."

DETAILS PLAN

He detailed his plan for a standardized layout and instead of the rickety tables and undertakers' chairs that now comprise the polling place equipment, he proposes to build the fixtures of hardwood, "varnished up like a dining car" with brass railings and designated posts for watchers.

He continued:

"I have studied the matter carefully and in Buffalo where they have had 30 years' experience with the voting machine and have provided permanent polling places. They won't put one in an engine house. They say women hate to go into an engine house for there are always a lot of loafers around 'looking them over.' The same thing is true of the average ramshackle polling place stuck away in some alley or in somebody's back yard.

"Thousands of people don't vote because they cannot stand the atmosphere of the polling place. But with the election boards in a respectable place furnished like a bank there will be a dignity about exercising their right of franchise and that is all that is needed to get a lot of the better class of people to vote."

In controlled wards, McGovern proposes to use portable voting booths fitted out exactly like the permanent booths and within a few weeks expects to have a model booth installed in the courthouse yard.

PORTABLE BOOTHS

These booths are necessary he explained because:

"Election thieves have to have room to work. If they are located in a schoolhouse they can arrange to get in and out of some other room and they can arrange the furniture to suit themselves. But the portable booths can be hauled into the districts where they are needed. Then they are right out in the open, on the street and no one except those who have a right to be in the polls can get in.

"When the election is over the portable booths can be hauled out of the district. There is no chance for anybody to get away with any cheating for everybody can watch them.

"The keystone of the plan is that it makes the polling places respectable and, aranged like a cafeteria, there is no excuse for anybody wasting any time voting. Eliminate the factor of time, that is what this arrangement will do, and cheating at elections becomes practically impossible."

Drew Wins Place On Three Tickets

HARRISBURG, Oct. 12.—Judge James B. Drew, of Pittsburgh, has won the Democratic nomination for Supreme Court by approximately 1,900 votes over Charles F. Uhl, of Somerset.

George D. Thorn, head of the State Election Bureau, today certified Judge Drew to the county commissioners of the 67 counties of the state as the Republican, Democratic and Liberal party nominee.

When reports spread that the city's funds in the Franklin Savings and Trust Company, which closed several weeks ago, were unprotected Treasurer Schooley announced that all city deposits were amply protected.

PACKAGE SHOWN

In apparent substantiation, Arthur G. Burgoyne, an employe of the Treasurer's office, showed Controller Kerr a package of government bonds, wrapped in brown paper.

These bonds are thought to be in a safe in the Treasurer's office. The safe was sealed by the auditors Saturday. They refuse to disclose what they have learned concerning the bonds.

George F. Taylor, Jr., state bank examiner, in charge of the Franklin Savings and Trust Company, stated, however, that he had found no evidence that the bank had provided security for the city funds on deposit in that institution.

The audit began with a half-day's work, Saturday. The records were sealed when the auditors left the office in the evening and two special policemen were placed on guard to prevent disturbance of the records. Thorough examination of the books has been ordered by Kerr.

Price, Waterhouse & Co., conducted the independent city audit of the Department of Supplies last spring, which was followed by the indictment of Mayor Charles H. Kline and Director of Supplies Bertram L. Succop.

CITIZENS PAY COSTS

Kerr quietly secured money for the audit from private citizens in order to begin the work, it has been learned. He suddenly took possession of the records Saturday morning.

The investigation will take the place of the annual audit of the department required by the City Controller. Dr. Kerr has stated that he was unable to complete the audit at that time due to the press of business and the food probe.

Efforts to reach Schooley at his home have been unsuccessful. He has not been at his office, officially, since early in October, when he placed himself under the care of Dr. A. W. Crozier, of 5000 Penn avenue, for treatments for anemia.

Crozier says he has ordered Schooley to remain away from his office and not to speak to newspapermen or handle any matters tending to disturb him. Schooley, Crozier says, is improving, although he needs a complete rest.

CHECK 40,000 AFFIDAVITS

An investigation of 40,000 assessment affidavits was begun today under the direction of Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk to determine the extent of phantom assessments and voting in the primary election.

George J. Schad, chairman of the Board for Assessment and Revision of Taxes, and five others, were indicted by the September grand jury in connection with an alleged conspiracy to vote phantoms in the First Ward.

The probe begun today will include the entire city of Pittsburgh. County Detective David Drexler and two other experts began checking 2,000 assessment affidavits of Second Ward residents. Their inquiry will disclose whether those in whose names the affidavits were made were bona fide residents, and whether they personally obtained tax receipts and later voted.

The 44 indictments handed down by the September grand jury, before its discharge last Friday, was declared to be "only scratching the surface" by District Attorney A. T. Park as he departed for a week's rest in Canada.

War Threat Worries Washington Officials

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—A plain-spoken threat of war drove State Department officials today to a renewed study of the Manchurian situation.

As they began their study, a dispatch was laid before them telling of the speech by President Chiang Kai-Shek, of China, asserting that if the council of the League of Nations failed to obtain a "just settlement" of the differences between China and Japan his country would resort to war. The council is to meet in urgent session at Geneva tomorrow.

The gravest concern was expressed at the State Department over the threat. Secretary Stimson was pondering whether to invoke immediately the treaties against war to which the United States is a party.

Both China and Japan, as well as the United States, are signatories of the Kellogg-Briand pact for the renunciation of war and the nine-power Pacific treaty of 1922.

HOOVER LAUDS POLICE IN TALK OVER RADIO

Scores Sentiment Making Heroes of Gangsters in Address to Chiefs' Meet

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(INS.)—President Hoover today roundly denounced the sentimentalism seemingly prevalent with so many Americans which makes popular heroes out of gangsters and other criminals. In its place, he asserted, there should be a sentimentalism "that makes a popular hero of the policeman for the courage and devotion he shows in protection of our citizens."

His latest observations on crime came in the course of a radio greeting from the cabinet room of the White House, to the thirty-eighth annual convention of the International Association of Police Chiefs in St. Petersburg, Fla.

With proper backing of public opinion and full support of the proper authorities, Mr. Hoover said he was convinced the police of the nation would drive the gangster out of organized society. He said:

"If the police had the vigilant, universal backing of public opinion in their communities, if they had the implacable support of the prosecuting authorities and the courts, if our criminal laws in their endeavor to protect the innocent did not furnish loopholes through which irresponsible yet clever criminal lawyers daily find devices of escape for the guilty, I am convinced that our police would stamp out the excessive crime and remove the world-wide disrepute which has disgraced some of our great cities."

The President pointed out that so long as criminals can go about their evil ways with the "smug assurance that they can defeat the law," there will be a constant discouragement imposed upon the police in full performance of their instinctive duties.

GAMING HOUSE HEARING HELD

Steve Costi, alleged proprietor of a barboute game that county detectives surprised with a raid Sunday morning on an East Lacock street establishment, was given a hearing today by Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan. He reserved his decision.

Of the 100 men interrupted playing for what county detectives say were big stakes in the Greek version of craps, Costi was the only one arrested.

The detectives said they applied the ax to the gambling tables and devices when Costi protested the raid, which was made following complaints to the District Attorney.

The players, whose stampede to the doors was blocked by a squad of detectives outside.

In connection with son killing, which was c by a machine gun crew, police sought George Druggan, brother of the notorious Terry Druggan. Wilson was once quoted as saying that Druggan would be responsible "in case anything ever happens."

The government today continued to reveal to the jury details of the kingly and expensive manner in which Capone has been living as new witnesses took the stand in his trial for income tax evasion.

Today's witnesses revealed that Capone was a shopper de luxe, buying monagrammed shirts by the dozen at from $18 to $30 apiece, and as many as 28 expensive ties at one time for himself alone. He bought thousands of dollars worth of rugs, including some of a quaint Chinese design, and he personally supervised the interior decorating of his home on tropical Palm Island in Florida, they showed.

He was minus his faithful bodyguard, Philip D'Andrea, who was seized Saturday as he was leaving the courtroom with a loaded .38-caliber gun in his possession. D'Andrea, who appeared before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson this morning to answer to the charge of contempt of court, was granted a continuance until tomorrow to perfect his defense and was remanded to jail.

WORLD BANKERS CALL PARLEY

By FREDERIC K. ABBOTT

International News Service.

BASLE, Switzerland, Oct. 12.—Decision to call an international conference of bankers to discuss restrictions imposed upon foreign exchange transactions was reached by directors of the Bank for International Settlements here today.

After agreeing to prolong for another three months the credits granted to Germany and Austria, the directors turned their attention to the foreign exchange situation. They decided to invite representatives of the central banks of all countries which have imposed restrictions on foreign exchange to meet at Basle to study means of co-ordinating their respective regulations.

POOR GIRL WINS OPERA FAME

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—One night about three years ago Serafino Di Leo, then 16, went to Mme. Giovanni Martinelli, wife of one of the Metropolitan's principal tenors, and timidly asked if there were some way she could get a ticket to the opera. She hoped some day to be an opera singer. But she couldn't buy a ticket, for in the household of her father, a laborer living in New Jersey, there were many mouths to feed.

Today Serafion stepped off the liner Conde Grande carrying in her handbag a five-year contract to sing with the Chicago Civic Opera Company.

Touched by the child's story, Mme. Martinelli persuaded a group of her friends to put up enough money to give Serafino three years' training in Italy.

SCHACHT FACES ARREST FOR SPEECH

Former Reichsbank Head's Charge of Untruthfulness In Finances Held Treason

By EDWARD L. DEUSS.

International News Service.

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—Intense indignation, culminating in demands for his arrest, followed today in the wake of a sensational speech by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former president of Reichsbank, at a meeting of Nationalist and National Socialist leaders at Bad Harzburg, Brunswick.

The criticism was directed mainly against his charge that Germany's financial situation was far worse than the world had been led to believe and his allegation that the Reichsbank had published "untruthful" reports about the country's finances.

The speech prompted the Reichsbank to issue an official communique denying it had ever "withheld information," but admitted the truth of Dr. Schacht's assertion that the country's foreign debts were higher than listed in the recent statement of the Bank of International Settlements at Basle, Switzerland.

Hitler Threatens 'War' To Overthrow Bruening

HARZBURG, Germany, Oct. 12—(AP.)—The leaders of the Nationalist opposition united their forces today for a death struggle in the Reichstag, opening tomorrow, to overthrow the government of Chancellor Bruening.

They drew inspiration from a joint meeting of the National Socialists, Nationalists, Steel-Helmeters and other "Rightist" groups, which transformed this peaceful spa into a military camp yesterday. Military commands were snapped out, the Fascist salute was exchanged and heels clicked in war-time fashion as clergymen invoked divine aid on "this decisive day for the liberation of the fatherland."

HITLER TALKS OF WAR

Adolf Hitler, leader of the brown-shirted "Nazis," said in an address that the Bruening government was responsible for all of Germany's troubles and that the nation must be prepared to wage war if necessary to regain its freedom. He said:

"We must bring the German people up to the same standards of honor that other nations have."

THREAT TO CABINET

He said:

"America will be too wise for that. America ought to do everything to break the power of international capitalism—against France and with England and Germany."

He warned Chancellor Bruening's cabinet:

"Get out or we will storm your ramparts."

BRUENING VISIT TO U. S. LIKELY

By PIERCE MILLER

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Announcement by the State Department that Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, has accepted an invitation by Secretary of State Stimson to visit the United States next month, today revived a suggestion that Dr. Heinrich Bruening, German chancellor, might likewise cross the Atlantic. An invitation would be forthcoming if it were known Bruening would accept.

With the visit of Premier Pierre Laval of France this month, and Grandi next month, a visit from Bruening would complete the trek of statesmen of the European world powers. Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald began the new era of diplomatic intercourse when he came over to pave the way for a successful naval conference at London.

There is a possibility that MacDonald, if he is successful in the English elections October 27, might take occasion to make another trip here, particularly in view of British interest in the visit of Premier Laval.

McCormick Divorce Cost Put at $6,000,000

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—(INS.)—When Harold F. McCormick, the Harvester magnate, obtained a speedy divorce Saturday from his second wife, Ganna Walska, it cost him approximately $6,000,000.

This sum, according to computations, is the value of one-fourth the stock McCormick held in the International Harvester Company which Mrs. McCormick, a Polish beauty and opera singer, was reported to have been assigned the stock in an out-of-court settlement.

It was estimated that McCormick, member of a colorful pioneer Chicago family, paid about $5,000,000 when he cast off his first wife, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick.

Society circles buzzed over the question of what McCormick will do with his recaptured liberty. He declined to discuss the friendship between him and Betty Noble, beautiful Los Angeles girl.

Fortune Hunters Ousted By Rich Woman Recluse

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ida E. Wood's gold, plucked like magic from the ample folds of her dress and hidden crannies of her modest hotel room, has brought unwelcome visitors to her stoop.

The eccentric, 93-year-old recluse whose seclusion has been destroyed by an order placing her affairs in the hands of the court, was greatly agitated yesterday when five curious interlopers made their way into her rooms.

It was the first time in a decade that her privacy had been disturbed. The little lady who habitually sent out for a single egg to boil on her electric grill—though banknotes totaling more than three-quarters of a million dollars were within reach of her hands—was considerably disturbed by the intrusion and ordered the visitors out.

Otis E. Wood, her nephew and guardian, said the intrusion had aroused anew the fear that has haunted his aunt—that she would be sent to an "institution,"—she who once was a belle of New York, a dancing partner of a crown prince and the wife of a wealthy publisher.

Yesterday's incident led Wood to increase the force of "guards" stationed outside his aunt's hotel rooms. Publication of the discovery of her wealth has aroused scores of people to seek to talk with her, each hopeful of getting some of it.

SAVING YOUTH MAY COST LIFE OF DOCTOR

Phila. Cancer Specialist Infected While Operating On Petty Theft Suspect

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Although the condition of Dr. M. P. Warmuth, 60, nationally known cancer research specialist, took a slight turn for the better, physicians still fear he may become a martyr to an operation by which he probably saved the life of a youth arrested as a petty thief.

The operation consisted of amputating the eft foot of James MacAnally, 19, three weeks ago. Gangrene had set in where the boy was shot in the ankle September 22 by policemen whom he tried to elude.

During the operation Dr. Warmuth pricked a finger. Antitoxin was administered, but the infection set in and the surgeon's condition rapidly became so grave his life was feared for.

Dr. Warmuth has been conducting experiments which doctors describe as promising much to the profession. He has been chief physician at Eastern Penitentiary for years and is associated with two local hospitals.

GANG ROBS 25 IN CANTON CAFE

CANTON, O., Oct. 12.—(AP.)—A gang armed with a sub-machine gun, sawed-off shotguns and revolvers held up 25 diners in a restaurant only a block from a public square yesterday and escaped with $2,000 in cash and valuables.

The robbers sped away in an automobile bearing a Michigan license plate. Points along the Ohio-Michigan border were being watched today.

Two of the gang stayed outside as lookouts and four of them filed into the restaurant, levelling their guns at the startled diners. While one of them obtained $1,500 from the safe, the others took watches, jewelry and cash amounting to $500 from the guests.

SHAW GREETS 'DEAR BOOBS' OF U. S.

Writer Talking Over Ocean Depicts Soviet Prosperity And Forecasts 'Red' Gains

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—"Stalin's ship of state is today the only big one that is not rolling heavily and tapping SOS on its wireless."

George Bernard Shaw, white-whiskered but no whit less bitingly cynical or bitterly jesting than the G. B. S. of the famous dramas that at one time stirred riots and protests in New York and other cities, so informed the American nation in a radio speech from London.

He depicted Russia as flaunting her prosperity and predicted the next generation would not "remain blind to the benefits of Communism." Shaw recently paid a 10-day visit to Soviet Russia.

The keen and trenchant commentator on life and social problems praised highly the present Russian system. He pridefully asserted it was merely carrying out ideas he had suggested long ago.

His words were winged across the ocean, received here and rebroadcast throughout the nation. Some of Shaw's pithy comments were:

"Hello, all my friends in America. How are all you dear old boobs who have been telling one another I have gone dotty about Russia?"

"Russia has us fooled, beaten, shamed, shown up, outpointed and all but knocked out."

"We have prided ourselves on our mastery of big business and on its solid foundations in a knowledge of human nature, and now we are bankrupt."

However, Shaw added that Russia was not "a paradise," saying:

"Russia is too big a place for any government to get rid in 14 years of the frightful mass of poverty, ignorance and dirt left by czardom."

Shaw's address was exclusively for American ears. It was not broadcast in Great Britain or any other country.

NO TRACE FOUND OF CRAFT OR 3 FLIERS

International News Service.

GALLIPOLIS, O., Oct. 12.—Folks hereabouts rubbed their eyes a trifle sheepishly today as they somewhat doubtfully recounted the uncanny sight of a mysterious airship crumpling in mid-air with a puff of smoke while three men leaped overboard in parachutes.

An all-day search yesterday from ground and air on both the Ohio and West Virginia sides of the Ohio River failed to reveal any trace of the supposedly wrecked blimp or of its three occupants and the story of the phantom ship developed more and more into a mirage. One resident said:

"I'll swear I saw something that looked like an airship. It was actin' kinda wobbly . . . then suddenly, down she went. It's the funniest thing that ever happened to me whatever became of that ship."

FAMILY BACKS STORY

Were it not for the fact that so many persons of unquestioned integrity saw the mysterious blimp falling in flames, according to Dr. Charles E. Holzer, Gallipolis surgeon and owner of the airport here, the story would be discarded as fantastic, but since several responsible persons reported the strange sight, Dr. Holzer said he was convinced that something had happened. But exactly what was a mystery.

As the search progressed yesterday without trace of the phantom blimp's fate, some doubt was expressed by several of those who reported seeing the craft as to whether it was a blimp or an airplane. For the most part, however, the observers insisted that the ship was a blimp.

Land searchers reported they encountered a hill family yesterday that also reported seeing an airship fly over and then suddenly burst into flames and fall.

AIR SEARCH FAILS

The phantom blimp was reported to have fallen Saturday afternoon about five or six miles south of here. It disappeared, it was said, behind a hill—a densely-wooded and isolated district.

Robert Hankey, one of the residents who reported seeing the blimp, described to International News Service its maneuvers. He said he watched it through a pair of field glasses, and added:

"It must have dropped right into the wildest part of West Virginia over in the hills. It wasn't a big blimp and I guess it was about 200 or 300 feet high when it broke."

A search was conducted over the entire district yesterday by Lieut. D. E. Hodgson, pilot at the airport here, in an airplane. A wisp of smoke curling out of a West Virginia woods gave him a temporary hope, but investigation released that it was from a pile of burning trash.

J. B. STEVENSON RITES TUESDAY

Funeral services for James B. Stevenson, business man and member of the firm of George K. Stevenson & Co., who died in his home yesterday, will be held tomorrow afternoon in his home at 176 North Dithridge street.

Mr. Stevenson, a trustee of the Bellefield Presbyterian Church for many years, was educated at Bucknell University and the University of Pittsburgh. After leaving college he became associated with the Stevenson company.

He was a director of the East End branch of the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company, president of the Pittsburgh Free Dispensary, a director of the Western Pennsylvania School for the Blind, a member of the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania, the Pittsburgh Athletic Association and the Pennsylvania Society of New York. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Emilie P. Clow Stevenson; a son, George K. Stevenson; two daughters, Mrs. J. B. Armstrong and Mrs. S. W. Farnsworth, of Upper Montclair, N. J.; five sisters and 10 grandchildren.

Weather Conditions.

There was an unusually rapid movement of the pressure units over the week end, as marked by pressure area, now centered over the Great Lakes. Highest pressure reported, 30.66 inches, at Detroit and Sault Sainte Marie. The high covers most of the eastern half of the country. Low pressure overlies the West, with centers over Saskatchewan, South Dakota and in the Far Southwest. The skies are mostly overcast over the Mississippi Valley states and westward over the plains and rain is falling over a large portion of this area. From Indiana eastward to the coast the skies are mostly clear. It is cooler than yesterday over the eastern half of the country and not quite so cool over the West. Light to heavy frost occurred over Ohio and Western Pennsylvania and northward over the lake region. North of the lakes, in Eastern North Dakota, and over Wyoming and Montana temperatures are freezing or below.

River Conditions.

The rivers are about stationary. Stage at Franklin is 0.0 (last Lock No. 7, 11.8; Pittsburgh, 10.2; Dam No. 4, 4.7; Dam No. 6, 7.0; Dam No. 10, 8.5, and Dam No. 12, 7.2. The dams are up.

BRITISH FIGHT PAY SLASHES

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—The peaceful demonstration of Great Britain's civil servants against reductions in their salaries was described by police today as the greatest within memory.

It was estimated that 100,000 persons, men, women and children, were in the orderly parade.

They marched to the music of 20 bands and to the waving of hundreds of banners. The tune was "When the Flag Goes Marching By" and their signs read: "Postmen See Red." "Stop Cutting Our Wages and Keep the Eighth Commandment in Force," and "Serve, Yes; Serf, No." They spoke few words and let their mass presence tell the story.

A Communist manifestation was not so peaceable. Many of them broke out of line and hurled threats at spectators in homes and hotels, keeping the police on continual turmoil.

Later thousands of radicals and unemployed sang of world revolution outside the walls of Wormwood Scrubbs prison. Inside a convict chorus set up an answering refrain which echoed eerily in the first fog of autumn.

POISON SELLER TALKS AT TRIAL

LEBANON, Ind., Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Charles W. Friedman, Indianapolis druggist, testifying today in the Simmons' murder trial, identified Mrs. Carrie Simmons as a woman to whom he had sold poison on June 18, three days before the woman's daughter Jean was poisoned.

The prosecution in a surprise move, previously had recalled John W. Simmons, husband of the defendant, apparently seeking to develop the source of poisoned capsules inserted in sandwiches which caused the child's death, at a picnic.

Roy W. Adney, assistant prosecutor, questioned Simmons concerning a trip he and his wife made to Indianapolis from their farm home.

MacDonald, 65, Opens Re-Election Drive

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(INS.)—Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald today celebrated his sixty-fifth birthday by going to Seaham Harbor to open his own campaign for re-election to the House of Commons.

His daughter, Ishbel, preceded him last week, and together they will stump the constituency, appealing for the return of the Prime Minister to Parliament to continue as head of the national government in the face of the refusal of the local Labor party to retain him as their candidate.

Strike in Granada Paralyzes Business

GRANADA, Spain, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Automobiles were stoned, a mail truck was wrecked and business paralyzed today in a general strike here growing out of a demand by the chauffeurs' union for more wages.

Forty persons were arrested.

Denatured Alcohol Shipment Seized

Prohibition agents today seized a carload of denatured alcohol in the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh Railroad yards on the North Side. The car contained 54 drums, 54 gallons each, said to have a valuation of $7,500. The seizure was made because the shipment was made without a federal permit.

2 LOSE APPEALS ON CITIZENSHIP

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Dr. Douglas Clyde MacIntosh, of Yale, Canadian, who was denied naturalization by the Supreme Court because of his refusal to take an unqualified oath to bear arms, today was refused a rehearing by the court.

Marie Averil Bland, a Canadian, who nursed American soldiers in France at the close of the war, now living in New York City, also was refused a rehearing. The Supreme Court at its last term refused her naturalization in a five-to-four decision because of conscientious scruples against bearing arms.

In another decision, the Supreme Court refused to review its five-to-four decision of last term sustaining the Indiana tax on chain stores.

HOOVER RAIL AID PLAN AWAITED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—An announcement is expected within the next few days on President Hoover's plan to improve the condition of railroads.

This became evident today in high administration quarters. The President has been in conference on his proposals, which are expected to deal prominently with the status of railroad bonds, ever since the announcement of his program to ease credit conditions.

In addition to helping the railroad situation, the administration was said by one of its officers today to have under consideration other methods for helping the general economic structure.

One of the plans was said to involve the general mortgage situation throughout the country.

Keyes Quits Prison Friend Of Men He Sent There

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Asa Keyes, former Los Angeles County District Attorney, after 19 months incarceration, left State's Prison here today on parole.

Keyes had a generous smile and a joyous word for everyone he encountered as the hour neared when he would hear the gate click behind him and, as he termed it, "get back to home and family and start living life as I want to."

Because of the many prisoners he had sent to San Quentin, Keyes entered the prison 19 months ago as the most hated prisoner. He was given duties in the yard to protect him from possible injury.

He left today with the good will and respect of his fellow inmates, prison officials say. He has given generously of his legal knowledge to other prisoners and otherwise made himself liked.

Keyes was sentenced to from one to 14 years on charges of conspiracy to commit bribery.

'American Bible' Presents Changed Lord's Prayer

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—An insight to the kind of phraseology the new American Bible of Dr. J. M. Powis Smith and Dr. Edgar Goodspeed, of the University of Chicago, is to have, was made public today.

The Lord's Prayer, for example, will read as follows:

"Our Father in Heaven,
Your name be revered,
Your Kingdom come!
Your will be done on earth as it is done in heaven!
Give us today bread for the day.
And forgive us our debts as we have forgiven our debtors.
And do not subject us to temptation,
But deliver us from the evil one."

The new Bible is to make its appearance next November 10.

Bare Plot to Kill Argentine President

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 12.—(Universal)—The prefecture of police today gave out details of an alleged conspiracy to assassinate President Uriburu.

It is charged a former minister of public works paid a gunman 600 pesos for the attempt and that the hired assassin is now under arrest and has confessed.

The former cabinet member is now a fugitive in Uruguay. A number of local associates have been arrested.

Use Real Champagne To Christen Plane

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Champagne—real—was used yesterday to christen an airplane.

Mrs. Marion Landis, wife of Maj. Louis G. Landis, chairman of the Illinois Aeronautics Commission, broke a bottle of it on "Wakan-Ja," a monoplane bought by the state for inspecting airports and regulating air traffic. "Wakan-Ja" is Indian for "The Thunderbird."

$36,000,000 Work Contracts Awarded

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—More than $36,000,000 of public and semi-public works contracts were awarded last week, President Hoover's organization on unemployment relief was advised today in reports from 38 states.

The total of such contracts reported since December 1, 1930, thus was increased to $2,517,699,646.

Blimp With Steel Cabin Being Built

AKRON, O., Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Announcement that a blimp with 112,000 cubic foot gas capacity is under construction here was made today by Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation.

The ship, to be named the Reliance, differs from other blimps built here in that the control cabin is constructed of tubular steel instead of duraluminum.

RIVER GAMING DEN RAIDED

McKeesport patrolmen abandoned their sidewalk beats for a boat early today and reported raiding a floating gambling house anchored at the junction of the Youghiogheny and Monongahela rivers in which they reported a score of men were playing dice.

When the confusion that resulted after the police boarded the boat subsided, 14 men, among them the alleged proprietor, Nathan Friedman, of 712 Locust street, McKeesport, and his brothers, Morris and Joseph, were arrested.

Lieut. Charles Eckles with a squad of potrolmen, went to the houseboat gambling establishment in a rowboat and climbed over the side. A majority of the players escaped when a gangplank was thrown out after the police were discovered.

Two dice tables were in operation when the police arrived, it was said. Police with axes wrecked dice tables in three gambling rooms, according to report.

CANNON BROKER CASE PROBED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—The prosecution, conviction and subsequent parole of Harry L. Goldhurst, former New York broker, who handled stock transactions for Bishop James Cannon, Jr., will be reviewed by the Department of Justice.

This was promised today on behalf of Attorney General Mitchell after Senator Glass, of Virginia, had made public correspondence in which he sought to ascertain whether an "agreement had been made by justice officials in New York or elsewhere, under which Goldhurst would receive an early parole in exchange for his plea of guilty."

Senator Glass brought Mitchell's attention to a charge that the broker, "in order to avert the necessity of summoning Bishop Cannon as a witness in his case and thus revealing the churchman's gambling transactions, had consented to alter his plea and confess his crime."

JUDGE SCORES POLICE FEES

The practice of city policemen collecting witness fees in minor cases was scored today by Judge James H. Gray in Criminal Court, when he announced that in the future assistant district attorneys trying the case or hearing the plea would certify only the names of material witnesses.

The plan will mean a saving of many thousands of dollars annually, Judge Gray said. He made the announcement after four policemen—a desk sergeant, two radio officers and a patrolman—were called to testify that a youth had pawned a watch in a downtown pawnshop. The boy had plead guilty.

Judge Gray said:

"I'm not going to countenance this thing any longer. You must bring in material witnesses. One policeman in this case would have been enough."

Witness fees paid total $3.80 per day, including mileage.

SURGEONS SCAN HOSPITAL FEES

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Hospitals—their charges to patients and methods for improving their service to the public—interested 5,000 members of the American College of Surgeons opening a five-day session today.

Other costs have declined, said a report by Dr. John A. McNamara, of Chicago, but the cost of hospital beds has not varied since 1928. The cost per bed averages $5.32. Part of the cost, he explained, is due to the public demand for better service. The fact that fewer beds have been occupied because of economic conditions is a contributing cause, he added.

Some hospitals situated on the main automobile highways report that 50 per cent of their patients are traffic cases, of which 40 per cent pay no hospital fee. A report urged some system be adopted by bonding drivers who are not financially responsible.

Speech Regained By Scare Crow Man

DENVER, Col., Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Charles Mays, "scarecrow man" in the Colorado Psychopathic Hospital here, has relaxed and no longer stands for hours with his arms outstretched, tense and unmoved.

A victim of what physicians diagnosed as schizophrenia, or "split mind," Mays has eaten and slept regularly and normally for two days, and is able to talk. Mays, a former resident of Beardsley, Kan., was found in a cornfield in eastern Colorado by a sheriff who believed at first the figure was a scarecrow. The officer had to lift Mays' rigid form into his automobile.

Engineer Stricken Fatally After Run

Stricken with an attack of indigestion as he was reporting off duty in the Shire Oaks yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad near Monongahela today, John Kress, 54, a veteran engineer, was rushed to Monongahela Hospital, where he died a short time later.

DUQUESNE CO. FIRST IN SAFETY

For the second year in succession, the Duquesne Light Company has been awarded first prize in the National Safety Council's public utility contest, according to word received from Chicago today. E. W. Judy, vice president and general manager of the company, accepted the honor on behalf of the company.

The contest began July 1, 1930, and ended June 30 of this year. Power companies of the country employing more than 500 persons competed for the honor. The award was made at the opening session of the Safety Council Congress in Chicago.

The record established by the company during the year shows a total of 36 lost time accidents in 7,367,890 hours worked. The grand average of the 19 contesting companies was 11.847 accidents per million hours.

EX-TURFMAN HELD HERE

Police today were holding James Davis, said to be a St. Louis (Mo.) sportsman and former race horse owner, pending completion of a search for his alleged companion, described as a hotel burglar, wanted in Palm Beach, Fla., for "jumping" a $20,000 bail bond.

Detective William Sullivan told Magistrate Leo Rothenberg that Davis and his companion, Floyd Martin, 40, of New York, were arrested Saturday, but that Martin was subsequently released on a $100 forfeit for a hearing today.

After Martin's release, Sullivan said, word was received from Florida that he was wanted for jumping his bail, posted pending a new trial on charges of robbing Florida hotels. Martin disappeared after posting his forfeit, Sullivan said.

PLAN TO HONOR FIREMAN, 90

Arrayed in a uniform of the type he wore in active service as a fire fighter more than 40 years ago, Harry T. Phillip, 90, said to be Pennsylvania's oldest volunteer fireman, will be honored by Verona firemen at ceremonies in the Verona High School Thursday night.

Representatives of the Pennsylvania State Firemen's Association, the Western Pennsylvania Firemen's Association, and the Allegheny County Volunteer Firemen's Association will see a silver loving cup presented to the aged fire fighter. He is the father of Assistant District Attorney Harry R. Phillip.

Doolittle's Plane Undergoes Repairs

MT. CLEMENS, Mich., Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Mechanics at Selfridge Field today were working on the motor of Maj. James H. Doolittle's plane, endeavoring to locate trouble which developed Saturday, causing the flier to land at the Army field while en route from Chicago to Ottawa, Ont.

Doolittle, who planned a 2,500-mile flight from Ottawa to Mexico City, starting today, said he was uncertain when he would take off for Ottawa.

OBSERVERS AID TRAFFIC ESSAY

Members of the Traffic Safety Observers, citizen traffic violation reporting organization, were asked today to aid school children in preparing essays in the Better Traffic Committee's fifth annual traffic essay contest being conducted in public and parochial schools.

The monthly news letter to observers pointed out that reckless pedestrians who cross streets between intersections have helped make between-intersection accidents in Pittsburgh twice the national average. School children are writing on this problem in the annual contest.

'Ma' May Enter Vaudeville, Gets $60,000 Offer

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12 (INS).—Mrs. Minnie Mai Kennedy-Hudson, mother of Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton, may sign a vaudeville contract because it will give me a chance to do evangelistic work before an audience that the average evangelist never gets a chance to meet."

If Mrs. Kennedy-Hudson and her new husband, Gus E. Hudson, accept the vaudeville offer they would receive an amount said to be $60,000 for 36-weeks tour. An act would include short sermons by the pair, and Hudson would tell of their romance.

AUTOISTS SENT TAG RENEWALS

HARRISBURG, Oct. 12.—(INS.)—Auto license renewal applications, 2,000,000 of them, were mailed today, coincidental with a warning issued by Benjamin G. Eynon, commissioner of motor vehicles, that postage stamps will not be accepted this year as payment for 1932 motor vehicle tags.

Eynon warned against trying to "put one over" by making or forwarding a check to the Department of Revenue when insufficient funds were on deposit to cover the check. He added:

"To do so is a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not more than $100 or imprisonment not to exceed two years, or both."

CITES INDIA'S BAN ON LIQUOR

A higher wall is raised against alcoholic liquor than Christianity in India, said the Rev. O. H. Sisson, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Wilkinsburg, a former sojourner in India, in an address before the Presbyterian Ministerial Association in the First Presbyterian Church today. He said:

"Every religion of India raises a higher wall against alcoholic liquor than Christianity. During my stay in India, drinkers were excommunicated from their caste, deprived of the services of barbers and washermen, beaten, garlanded with shoes, tied to poles, or driven through the streets on the backs of donkeys with their faces to the tails of the beasts."

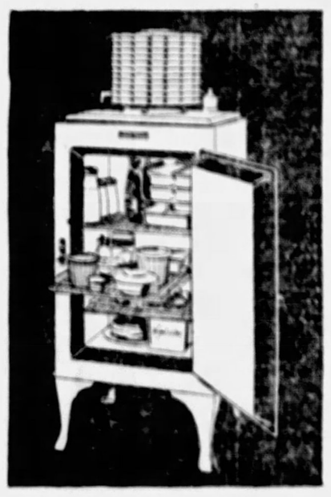
GENERAL ELECTRIC
ALL-STEEL REFRIGERATOR

No More Until March, 1932



MRS. WALLACE, like the average American housewife, is eager for higher standards of living. She keeps house on a budget. The stretching of dollars is a frequent problem . . . saving on one item to cover some unexpected expense on another. Buying a General Electric Refrigerator was postponed because there was no allowance in her budget. But one day she discovered she was really paying for it without enjoying the benefits of ownership. She didn't realize that she could own a General Electric for only $10 down.

Mrs. Wallace's experience is an interesting story of facts and figures that you can apply in your own home. It is told in pictures, and from Mrs. Wallace's own words you learn of the real savings of General Electric ownership.

The General Electric man will be glad to show this illustrated story in your home. He is courteous, considerate and thoroughly informed in the problems of home economics. Learn if you, too, are actually paying for a General Electric Refrigerator without owning one!

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and directing an increase of the indebtedness of the City of Pittsburgh in the sum of One Hundred Fifty Thousand ($150,000.00) Dollars, and providing for the issue of bonds of said City in said amount to provide funds for the acquisition of property for widening of Carson street west from Mura Way to a point 600 feet west of South Main Street and providing for the redemption of said bonds and the payment of interest thereon.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh in Councils assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the indebtedness of the City of Pittsburgh be increased by the amount of One Hundred Fifty Thousand ($150,000.00) Dollars, to provide funds for the acquisition of property for widening of Carson street west from Mura Way to a point 600 feet west of South Main street and providing for the redemption of said bonds and the payment of interest thereon.

SECTION 2. That bonds of the City of Pittsburgh in the aggregate principal amount of

be issued for the purposes aforesaid. Said bonds shall be in denominations of ONE HUNDRED ($100.00) DOLLARS each, dated as of the first day of August, 1931, and shall be payable in twenty (20) equal annual instalments of SEVEN THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED ($7,500.00) DOLLARS EACH, one of which shall mature on the first day of August, 1932, and one each on the first day of August of each of the years 1933 to 1951, inclusive. Said bonds shall bear interest at the rate of three and three-quarters per centum (3¾%) per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of February and August in each year, without deduction for any taxes which may be levied thereon or collected therefrom by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania or by the City of Pittsburgh or any political subdivision thereof, or by any corporation or person, or future assessment of the City of Pittsburgh. The principal of said bonds shall be payable at the office of the City Treasurer, and said bonds shall be issued in such denominations as may be requested by the purchasers thereof, which denominations shall be approved by the Director of Finance of the City of Pittsburgh. The principal of said bonds shall be payable in lawful money of the United States of America, and the interest thereon shall be payable in like lawful money at the office of the City Treasurer of the City of Pittsburgh, or at the option of the holder, at the office of the Fiscal Agent of the City of Pittsburgh in the City of New York, State of New York. Said bonds shall be signed by the Mayor and the City Controller, and the seal of the City of Pittsburgh shall be affixed thereto. The interest coupons attached to said bonds shall be signed with the facsimile signature of the City Controller. In case any of the officers whose signatures shall appear on said bonds or coupons shall cease to be such officer before the delivery of said bonds, such signatures shall nevertheless be valid and sufficient for all purposes the same as if they had remained in office until such delivery.

WEST CARSON STREET IMPROVEMENT BOND, 1931

SECTION 3. That said bonds shall be sold by the Mayor and the City Controller at not less than par and accrued interest after giving such notice of sale as may be required by law.

SECTION 4. That until said bonds, or any of them, are issued as herein provided, there shall be and there is hereby levied and assessed annually upon all subjects now by law liable, or hereafter to be made liable, to assessment for taxation for City purposes, a tax sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds as the same shall become due and payable, and to pay the principal thereof when the same shall mature, and to create a sinking fund for the payment of said bonds, which shall be at least one per centum (1%) per annum on the total amount of said bonds, or such greater amount as may be necessary according to their terms and the rate of taxation hereinbefore provided, and the proceeds of said tax are hereby appropriated to the payment of said bonds and interest, and for the redemption of said bonds as they become payable.

SECTION 5. That all bonds issued by the authority of this Ordinance and the Acts of Assembly authorizing the same shall be and become part of the funded debt of said City of Pittsburgh, and shall be entitled to the benefits, privileges and exemptions conferred and granted to like bonds by the Acts of Assembly relating to the City of Pittsburgh, and the proceeds thereof shall be paid into the City Treasury, and be used for the purposes herein specified, and for no other purpose whatsoever. The same are hereby declared to be a first lien and charge upon the taxes and other revenues and property of said City are hereby pledged.

SECTION 6. That the form of coupon bonds and registered bonds issued pursuant to this Ordinance shall be substantially as follows:

TEXAS STARTS LEGAL BATTLE OVER LOSS

Garden for, he said, a $1,000 guarantee—$500 in advance and $500 to be paid at the conclusion of the performance—with an option of 60 per cent of the gate receipts.

He left the Garden early, Texas charges, and she was loser of $500. Over the telephone from Erie yesterday she told her version of the story, aided by Mr. Edward Fishman, president of the National Touring Artists, Inc., which guides Miss Guinan's troop on tour.

'TEX' EVADES QUIZ

Miss Guinan:

"It was a swell crowd. And we showed Dave Harmon's band for the first time tonight." Say, is that a band?

"Listen, I'll tell you—"

That was her answer to inquiries about Robbins, and only after a mild cross examination did she say:

"Oh, yeah! Well, he thought the little girl was a sucker and walked out with money after the show. He didn't worry me any, though.' I'm under contract. Fishman has to collect—and what a collector that guy is. I'll let you talk to him."

Mr. Fishman said:

"Say, you come on up to Erie. Right away. I'll tell you the whole story. And have I beautiful girls in this show?

"You ask me. Have I?"

'SUCKER' CHARGES

A reporter:

"Yeh. But how about this guy Robbins?"

Mr. Fishman:

"Listen! We got that guy right. He did us a dirty trick. He can tell it in court and then I'll tell the rest of it. He owes us $500 and that's all there is to it—and I'm going to get it! The idea of him trying to make a sucker out of Texas.

"Why, his partner, a fellow named A. J. Goodwin, wanted to pay us his share of the money coming to us, but we wouldn't take it. We'll get it all from Robbins. His name is on the contract."

So that's the way it stands.

Robbins, who said he was going to Alderman Flanigan's office today "to see what this is all about," claims that Texas and her girls failed to honor their contract.

He charges that instead of appearing at 8 o'clock as agreed, she didn't arrive until 10:30 and then only after he had sent to the hotel for her. He also claims that the band, which was to play for dancing before and after the show, quit at 11:30 instead of 1 a. m. as contracted.

Texas charges that the Garden is not allowed to run dancing after midnight.

"Sure, I'll tell you all about it. I got every cent that was coming to me."

FLIER WILLIAMS HURT IN CRASH

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 12.—(INS.)—Al Williams, famous speed and precision flier, formerly of the Navy, is in a Charlotte hospital today with injuries of undetermined seriousness as the result of a crash here Sunday in the final program of the all-Southern aircraft pageant.

Williams made a sensational landing when his motor went bad less than 200 feet above the crowd of 20,000 spectators. Crowds on the runway made it impossible for him to bring his plane safely down and he nosed down to a small bank in the midst of hundreds of automobiles. The landing spot was just large enough for him to land as the mob dashed from the danger of the falling plane.

The nose of the plane stove into the dirt, Williams jumping from the ship almost as soon as it hit the ground. The extent of his injuries was not immediately determined, but it was not believed he had suffered sufficiently to be held at the hospital more than for superficial treatment.

Attempt at Suicide Imperils 2 Families

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Two families almost were suffocated today when Hugh Blair, 69, turned on the gas in his third floor apartment at 1820 Lehigh street in an attempt to end his life.

From his second flood apartment, where he was listening to an early morning radio program, Paul Anger, 25, smelled gas, traced the source to Blair's room and broke in to find Blair unconscious on the bed. He then roused his wife and small son and the family of George Miller. All were partly overcome.

Dentists to Observe Society's 50th Year

The fiftieth anniversary of the Odontological Society of Western Pennsylvania will be celebrated with a three-day convention in the William Penn Hotel November 18, 19 and 20. A feature of the gathering will be the display of equipment and methods used years ago. Dr. C. R. Grissinger, of Pittsburgh, is chairman of the clinic committee.

SUPPORT ASKED BY LAWRENCE

David I. Lawrence, Democratic nominee for County Commissioner, today issued a statement asking support of all citizens of the county regardless of past or present party affiliations. He declared:

"If elected, I shall do everything in my power to reduce the burden of taxation, to insure honest elections and to speed up necessary public projects that ordinarily would go over until next year so they might be used as a source of employment for our idle workers. With winter just around the corner, every available resource should me marshaled to provide work for our less fortunate citizens. The Commissioners should give the employment problem priority consideration to the end that whatever resources can be made available for this purpose without increasing the tax levy should be utilized at once."

STANDARD AIDS STATE 'GAS' TAX

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—The Standard Oil Company of California today announced a standing reward of $1,000 for information leading to arrest and conviction of individuals or firms for non-payment of gasoline taxes to the state.

The reward will be paid as many as 20 times, the company said, in announcing its belief non-payment of the tax was one of the reasons for price wars and underseeling of retail gasoline.

The company said this condition, "if not remedied, threatens to again demoralize the oil industry of California."

3 Grid Fans Injured In Truck Accident

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., Oct. 12.—Three persons, two of them boys, were recovering in Citizens General Hospital, New Kensington, today from injuries suffered when the truck in which they were returning from a football game plunged down a 12-foot embankment four miles south of Vandergrift. Thirteen other persons in the truck were slightly hurt.

Those in the hospital were Paul Maugificio, 12, and Eddie Jones, 49, of Apollo, and August Ronek, 10, of North Apollo.

NO. 495.

AN ORDINANCE—Regulating the business of exterminating vermin by the use of certain gases, fumes or vapors, and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That no person, firm or corporation shall engage in the City of Pittsburgh in the business of exterminating vermin in any place used by human beings for habitation or business without first having received a license from the Department of Public Health.

SECTION 2. In the transaction of said business no person, firm or corporation shall use hydrogen acid, cyanogen or any other gases, fumes or vapors which are so dangerously toxic to human beings as to constitute a hazard to public health, as hereinbefore provided, unless a signed statement is first obtained from the buyer or recipient of said material that it will not be used for the purpose of fumigating any building or portion thereof, as provided in the first section hereof.

SECTION 3. Any person, firm or corporation desiring to engage in the business of exterminating vermin and household insects, rats or other pests shall first procure a license from the Department of Public Health by making a written application for the same, which application shall be in the form of an affidavit giving the experience and training pertaining to quality of the applicant for the business of fumigating with dangerous gases. In the case of corporations, said statement shall cover the training and experience of the executive officers or those delegated by the corporation to do the work.

SECTION 4. The Director of the Department of Public Health is hereby authorized to appoint a board of three examiners, who shall have training and experience in the particular subject involved, and who shall make a thorough investigation of the training, experience, qualifications, character and reputation of the applicants for said licenses, which examination shall be such as the Board deems necessary to determine the fitness and responsibility of the applicant, and his knowledge of the requirements of this Ordinance, and rules and regulations of the Department of Public Health relating thereto. In the case of a corporation, the executive officers of said corporation shall designate such agents as shall supervise and control its fumigating work, which agents shall qualify and be examined, as provided herein, by said Board. If the Board approves the issuance of a license to any person, firm or corporation, the Director of the Department of Public Health may issue said license if in his opinion he considers the licensee qualified to engage in said business.

SECTION 5. Each licensee shall pay to the City Treasurer for said license the sum of fifty dollars ($50.00) per annum, and in addition thereto shall execute and deliver to the City of Pittsburgh, for the benefit of any person or persons who may receive injuries, acquire illness or suffer death by reason of the use of such gases, fumes or vapors, a bond in the sum of ten thousand ($10,000.00) dollars, said bond to be either a surety company bond or to be secured by adequate real estate in the name of the surety.

SECTION 6. Only those persons who are properly qualified by training or experience in the fumigants they are to use and who are in good health shall be employed by the licensee to do the actual work of fumigating. The licensee shall notify the Director of the Department of Public Health of each new fumigator employed, such notice to contain a statement of his qualifications. Such application shall be approved by the Director of the Department of Public Health before the person shall be permitted to do the work.

SECTION 7. Any person, firm or corporation desiring to fumigate with the gases, fumes or vapors referred to in Section 2 hereof, shall, before doing so shall file with the Director of the Department of Health an application giving the location of the building, enclosed space or ship, and shall receive from the said Director a permit, which shall state the day and hour when the work shall be performed. Each application for such permit shall be accompanied by a fee of two dollars ($2.00). Such permit shall be sent on the premises to be fumigated. Should the applicant be unable to perform the work on the hour and day set forth in the permit and notifies the Director of the Department of Public Health twenty-four (24) hours prior to the time set forth in the permit, then in the discretion of the said Director, the time of the said permit may be extended. A ship or vessel may be fumigated without previously procuring from said Director a permit to do so if every person except the watchman shall leave the vessel for the period of fumigation and the vessel shall be fended off from the shore so that no person may board the vessel without the knowledge of the watchman. In the case of special fumigation chambers or vaults, a permit for each fumigation is not required, but the location, construction and means of ventilation of such vaults or chambers must be approved by the Director of the Department of Public Health. An annual permit for the operation of special fumigation chambers or vaults shall be granted by the Director of the Department of Public Health.

SECTION 8. Fumigation Procedure. When gases, fumes or vapors referred to in Section 2 hereof are used for fumigation or extermination, the following method of procedure shall be used:

(a) Notifications of occupants and vacating of premises. Before fumigation, the operator shall personally inspect the premises and shall serve notice, over his signature, upon all responsible occupants of each room or apartment within the danger area, stating the danger of the process and the precautions to be observed, designating the rooms or apartments which must be vacated and indicating the time when the gas is to be generated or liberated. The form of this notice shall be approved by the Director of the Department of Public Health. Every room in the danger area shall be vacated. In the case of a building in which there is an inner court, vent shaft or light well, or a lot line court with a party wall, or in the case of two buildings having adjacent lot line courts upon which any room being gassed opens, every room with windows of other apertures opening to such inner or lot line courts, vent shafts or light wells shall be vacated and securely locked. Where the walls of any adjoining buildings are located within ten (10) feet of the walls of apartments being gassed, the operator shall notify, over his signature, all responsible occupants of rooms or apartments with window openings in such walls that such windows are directly opposite or above the area of the fumigating which is under gas (except rooms vacated during the process of being gassed or being fumigated) and rooms or apartments ordinarily occupied but not under gas shall be warned during the process by keeping the doors to such rooms or apartments open.

Provided, however, that [illegible] of premises and [illegible] shall not be necessary where fumigation is done to special [illegible] vaults when such special rooms or vaults are approved as to their location, construction and gas-tightness by the Director of Health, and a provision is made for the sealing of such vaults so as to allow the escape of gases at such a location where it is not dangerous by a system of ducts and ventilation approved by the Director of Health.

(b) The danger area. The danger area is those portions of any structure or dwelling which lie within the boundary of the outside walls of the building under gas, the roof and the basement or cellar floor, and such cut-off or fire walls as may exist in the structure in question. Such cut-off or fire walls shall be of solid masonry, gas tight, at least eight inches in thickness, extending from the basement through the attic, all openings bricked and guarded against entry, and effectively sealed against gas leakage.

(c) Crew to be removed from vessel. No vessel shall be fumigated until the captain or other commanding officer shall have mustered the crew and caused the members thereof and all other persons therein or thereon to leave and remain away from such vessel during the process of fumigation. Provided, however, where a part of a vessel is to be fumigated and such part is not occupied or immediately adjoining an occupied portion of the vessel, and where, after an investigation conducted by the Director of the Department of Public Health, it appears to the satisfaction of the Director of the Department of Public Health that such portion may be fumigated without danger to life or health, he may, in his discretion, grant permission to the holder of a permit to perform fumigation without requiring all persons in other parts of such vessel to leave the same subject to such conditions and restrictions as he may impose.

(d) Sealing rooms before releasing hydrocyanic acid gas. Before fumigation with hydrocyanic acid gas and other dangerous gases, fumes or vapors, it is required that the operator shall securely seal all cracks, holes, crevices, openings and apertures in walls, ceilings and floors in such a way as to prevent the gas to the premises intended to be fumigated.

(e) Locking rooms and admonishing rooms and apartments. Before fumigation it is required that the operator shall personally inspect all rooms and apartments ordered vacated under section 8, subdivision (a), and be assured that they are unoccupied by persons or domestic animals, afterwards all doors to all rooms or apartments, excepting one exit door to the rooms or apartments to be gassed, shall be securely locked, in addition, such windows or other wall openings as might possibly be used to gain entrance shall be locked or barred in such a way as to prevent entrance while still permitting thorough airing of the premises immediately upon completion of fumigation. Immediately upon opening or liberating the gas the door through which the operator leaves shall be securely locked and sealed and all keys obtainable to all rooms or apartments ordered vacated shall be retained by the operator until all danger is passed. As additional precaution, all rooms and apartments vacated shall be placarded.

(f) Warning Card. Prior to releasing the gas suitable warning signs shall be posted on all entrances or doors to the premises to be fumigated, and upon all gangplanks, ladders and other approaches, etc., from the deck, pier or land to the vessel as follows:

Skull and Crossbones	DANGER Fumigating with Cyanide Gas Deadly Poison.	Skull and Crossbones

All persons are warned to keep away.

By order of the City Health Director.

(Name and address of licensee as well as telephone number.)

Such signs shall be printed in red ink on white cardboard. The letters in the word "DANGER" shall be at least two inches deep, and all others except the signature at least three-fourth of an inch high. At night such signs shall be illuminated so as to make the reading matter thereon plainly legible.

(g) Guards. Whenever hydrocyanic acid and/or other dangerous gases, fumes or vapors as provided in Section 2 are generated or liberated in any room or portion of a structure in the City of Pittsburg, a sufficient number of capable alert watchmen shall remain on duty at the entrance or entrances to the room, building or enclosed space undergoing fumigation, to prevent people from entering while gas is present and for two hours after the room or area ceases to remain open for airing. Guards or watchmen shall be reliable persons and shall be acceptable as a proper guard by the Director of the Department of Public Health. The licensee shall be held strictly responsible and accountable for the conduct of the guards or watchmen. In every case where the entire building is not vacated the licensee or his approved representative shall remain on the job during the fumigation and airing and shall constantly supervise the occupancy of the structure to insure that no person will be endangered by gas leakage. The licensee shall give all guards definite and proper instructions and shall visit the premises being fumigated at regular and frequent intervals during the process to insure that they are properly guarded.

(h) Removal of food. Before fumigation the operator shall see that all ice, food and drink are removed from the rooms ordered vacated except such food or drink as is in sealed air-tight containers need not be removed. Provided, that completely dry foods such as flour and cereals when stored in elevators, warehouses or mills need not be removed when the fumigation is for the purpose of destroying vermin or insect pests infesting these foodstuffs.

(i) Fire. All fires within the premises under gas shall be put out whenever an inflammable gas is used. For the purpose of this Ordinance the Director of the Department of Public Health shall designate upon request whether the gas to be used shall be regarded as flammable or nonflammable. The licensee shall notify the Fire Bureau of any rooms, building or structure other than approved vaults, placed under hydrocyanic acid or other dangerous gas fumigation.

(j) Spilling of cyanide. No cyanide crys. tals shall be dropped on the floor or left exposed where people or domestic animals may come in contact with them.

(k) Container for ingredients. An impermeable receptacle for containing the ingredients is required.

(l) Opening of rooms after gassing. At the conclusion of the gassing process it shall be the duty of the operator to throw open doors and windows of the premises until all rooms have been opened for free access of air. No person other than the operator or operators shall be permitted to enter the premises until all traces of the gas have disappeared, and in no case shall the occupants of the rooms or areas fumigated be permitted to enter until twelve hours after airing. The operator or a watchman shall keep all persons away from the doors and windows of the premises for two hours after airing. Infants and children under six years of age shall not be permitted to re-enter the premises until eighteen hours after the rooms or apartments are opened for airing. The licensee shall inform all occupants having children of this provision, in writing, over his signature. Warnings on vessels fumigated where the night between sunrise and sunset is dim shall be artificially illuminated. Warnings on vessels fumigated after sunset shall be artificially illuminated in a manner approved by the Director of the Department of Public Health.

(m) The operator shall pour the residue left in the jars or containers and the water used for cleaning such jars or containers into the hoist holes, which shall be flushed thoroughly with water to remove all traces of the chemicals.

(n) Every container in which hydrocyanic acid, either alone, mixed with or absorbed in other material, is shipped, conveyed or sold shall be of a type of construction, material and thickness approved by the Director of the Department of Public Health, in order that accidental poisonings during handling, storage and movement of such containers may be prevented. This approval shall not be necessary where the containers are accepted by the United States officials for interstate shipment.

(o) The Director of the Department of Public Health is hereby authorized and directed to prescribe and enforce such rules and regulations not in conflict with the provisions of this Ordinance as he may deem necessary for the protection of life and public health.

(p) The Director of the Department of Public Health may prescribe that a warning gas shall be mixed with the hydrocyanic acid gas or other dangerous gases, fumes or vapors to be used for fumigating specifying in whatever detail he shall deem necessary the time and method for the generation or release of such gases. The Director of the Department of Public Health is further authorized to prescribe from time to time changes or additions in the rules and regulations promulgated by him under this Ordinance as such changes or additions may be deemed by him to become necessary.

SECTION 9. Any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof before any Police Magistrate or Alderman of the City of Pittsburgh, be fined not more than one hundred dollars ($100.00) which shall be recoverable with costs, and upon failure to pay the same shall be imprisoned in the Allegheny County Jail for a term not exceeding thirty (30) days.

SECTION 10. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

NO. 496.

AN ORDINANCE—Granting unto the West End Traction Company, its successors, lessees and assigns, the right to enter upon, use and occupy Sawmill Run Boulevard as proposed to be constructed between the intersection of the Sawmill Run Boulevard and Woodruff Street and the intersection of Bankeville Avenue and Woodville Avenue, for street railway purposes, subject to the terms and conditions herein provided.

WHEREAS, the West End Traction Company owns and maintains a double track street railway on Woodruff street and Woodville avenue between the intersection of Woodruff street and Sawmill Run Boulevard and the intersection of Woodville avenue and Bankeville avenue; and

WHEREAS, the construction of said proposed Sawmill Run Boulevard will require the abandonment of the double track street railway on Woodruff street and Woodville avenue between the intersection of Woodruff street and the existing Sawmill Run Boulevard and the intersection of Woodville avenue and Bankeville avenue; and

WHEREAS, the West End Traction Company is willing to abandon its double track street railway on said portions of Woodruff Street and Woodville Avenue, upon condition, however, that the City of Pittsburgh shall grant unto said West End Traction Company the right to construct, maintain and operate a double street railway track on and along the said proposed Sawmill Run Boulevard.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the West End Traction Company, its successors, lessees and assigns, shall have the right and they are hereby authorized to construct, maintain, operate and use a double street railway track on the route hereinabove mentioned, together with the necessary connections, and to operate cars thereon, and to use electricity as a motive power, and to erect, maintain and use in the streets and highways hereinbefore mentioned such posts, poles and other supports as they may deem convenient for the support and maintenance of their overhead system, and for the operation of their railway subject to the provisions of an Ordinance approved February 25, 1895, entitled, "An Ordinance relating to the entry, upon, over or under, or the use or occupation of any street, lane or alley, or any part thereof for any purpose, purposes or street railway companies, or by companies operating horse, steam or street railways, and providing reasonable regulations pertaining thereto for the public convenience and safety," provided, however, that the obligation of the West End Traction Company, its successors, lessees and assigns relative to paving within the so-called street railway area shall be the same as provided in the agreement between the City of Pittsburgh, Philadelphia Company and Pittsburgh Railways Company, dated December 20, 1911, during the effective period thereof or any extensions thereof.

SECTION 3. By its acceptance of this Ordinance, in accordance with the terms of Section 1 hereof, the West End Traction Company, its successors, lessee and assigns, shall surrender all their right, power and privilege to construct, maintain and operate a street railway on the portions of Woodruff street and Woodville avenue proposed to be vacated in connection with the location of the proposed Sawmill Run boulevard between the intersection of Woodruff street and the existing Sawmill Run boulevard and the intersection of Woodville avenue and Bankeville avenue.

SECTION 4. This Ordinance shall be accepted by the West End Traction Company within sixty (60) days after its passage or approval by a Certificate of Acceptance of all the conditions and stipulations hereof. The said Certificate shall be executed under the corporate seal of the Traction Company, duly attested by the President, or Vice President, and the Secretary, or an Assistant Secretary, thereof, and filed with the Controller of the City.

SECTION 5. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

Passed in Council September 28, 1931.
Approved October 9, 1931.

NO. 497.

AN ORDINANCE—Amending Sections 1 and 8 of an Ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance providing for the award of contracts for work, materials, supplies, repairs and improvements required by the several departments of the city government," approved December 31, 1901, and recorded in Ordinance Book Vol. 14, page 301, by increasing the amount where contracts can be let without public advertisement from $250.00 to $500.00, and increasing the authority to make small contracts without separate Ordinances from the amount of $250.00 to $500.00.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Section 1 of an Ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance providing for the award of contracts for work, materials, supplies, repairs and improvements required by the several departments of the city government," approved December 31, 1901, be amended to read as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That all contracts for work, materials, supplies, repairs and improvements required by the several departments of the city government which by law are required to be done by or furnished under contract, the estimated cost of which shall exceed the sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00), shall be let or awarded only after proposals therefor shall have been invited by advertisements in the official newspapers of the city for a period of not less than five (5) days. When the estimated cost is less than five hundred ($500.00) dollars advertisement shall be dispensed with and proposals shall be invited by printed or written notice or circular, a copy of which shall be filed with the City Controller.

SECTION 2. That Section 8 of said Ordinance be amended to read as follows:

SECTION 8. When the work, materials, supplies repairs and improvements required for this use of any department of the city government shall not exceed the sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00), the Mayor and the head of the department requiring said work, materials, supplies, repairs or improvements are hereby authorized and empowered to award contracts for the same in strict conformity with the provisions of this Ordinance, except that it shall not be necessary for the execution of the additions financ as provided in Section 5 of this Ordinance.

SECTION 3. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

Passed in Council September 28, 1931.
Approved October 9, 1931.

Denver Cuts Costs, Jobless to Benefit

DENVER, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Denver's municipal administration expenses will be reduced about $1,000,000 in 1932, but the taxpayer won't get the money.

Mayor George D. Begole announced yesterday that city revenue to be saved through a rigid economy program would be used in an unemployment relief program to hire more Denver citizens as city laborers.

Marconi to Light Statue in Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—The statue of Christ the Redeemer on Corcovado Mountain will be illuminated at 7:15 p. m. tonight by reflectors which will be lighted, by radio, by Senator Guglielmo Marconi from the Italian radio station Coltano.

Ten thousand pilgrims, who have come here for the dedication of the statue, filled the city's hotels and crowded the principal churches at special services.

Sutherland Praises Late Notre Dame Coach; Prizes For Contests Here Shown

Cheering the "Spirit of Notre Dame," more than 3,500 college and high school football players and coaches of Allegheny County last night attended a preview of the new motion picture at the Stanley Theater, They were guests of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph through the courtesy of the Warner Brothers Theaters.

Paying homage to the memory of Knute Rockne, famous Notre Dame coach, Dr. John B. Sutherland, University of Pittsburgh coach, gave a short talk to the players.

Dick Powell, Stanley Theater master of ceremonies, displayed the three trophies being presented by the Warner Brothers Theaters and the Sun-Telegraph to the city and county high school football champions and to the winner of the Pitt-Tech game.

The feature picture, "The Spirit of Notre Dame" is built around the 1924 football team. Dedicated to the memory of Rockne, the plot centers about the Northwestern and Army games of that year and includes actual pictures of those games. The "four horsemen," one of whom was Elmer Layden, now Duquesne University coach, are featured in the picture.

PLAN ACTIVITIES FOR KOMIC CLUB

The activities of the newly organized Warner Theater-Sun-Telegraph Junior Komic Club are now well under way and many affairs are being arranged for the youngsters that will bring a lot of joy and wholesome entertainment into their lives.

One of the most important matters to be taken up next Saturday will be the nomination of officers for the conduct of each club. There will be a Grand Jester in charge of each meeting and a board of governors to aid in all organization matters. The new club song was not ready for last Saturday's meetings, but it will be sung for the first time next Saturday.

All boys and girls in the reading area of the Sun-Telegraph are invited to join the Junior Komic Club. New chapters are to be organized everywhere. Send in the application blank on Page 11 today and get your membership card and club button by mail.

Let's have the membership of 50,000 before the Christmas holidays and the club parties to be arranged for Christmas. Watch the Sun-Telegraph for announcements of interest to members of the Junior Komic Club.

What $16,000 buys in The American Weekly

A full page in color more than twice the size of any other magazine page in the world . . . 5,500,000 families at a cost of less than ⅓ cent per family . . . The attention of the entire family instead of a single buying factor.

AFTER all, the most accurate gauge of the advertising value of any magazine is its editorial appeal.

An editor must know what interests people—and why—or his magazine will not be a profitable medium for the advertiser.

To a deep understanding of people and their emotions can be attributed the advertising success of The American Weekly, mightiest magazine of them all.

So intriguing is its editorial content that more than 5,500,000 families read each and every issue.

So broad is its appeal that every member of every family finds something between its covers to absorb him or her.*

In times like these—when every advertising dollar invested should make sales today, tomorrow, and next year—think of The American Weekly!

Think of your advertising message carried by the world's most interesting magazine into 5,500,000 homes located in the richest buying areas of the country!

*A copy of the book, "What Interests People—and Why," by Morrill Goddard, Editor of The American Weekly, will be sent to executives requesting it on their business stationery

Reader-interest plus lowest-cost-per-family brings the most sales per advertising dollar.

No wonder The American Weekly carried more advertising in 1930 than it carried in 1929.

The American Weekly dominates the urban markets by concentrating 70% of its total circulation in 578 of America's 997 towns and cities of 10,000 population and over. (1930 U. S. census figures.)

In each of 152 cities, it reaches one out of every two families
In 108 more cities, 40 to 50% of the families
In an additional 146 cities, 30 to 40%
In another 172 cities, 20 to 30%

. . . and, in addition, more than 1,700,000 families in thousands of other communities, large and small, regularly buy The American Weekly.

Cock-A-Doodle-Doo

The month of October continues The American Weekly advertising linage and revenue gains of the first nine months, with an increase of 20% over October, 1930, making a record ten months in American Weekly history.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

On FIFTIETH STREET, just east of Eighth avenue, there is a bus terminal through which those huge machines lumber on their way to Buffalo, Cleveland, Chicago and East Hackensack. It is of necessity a rather large alley. And sometimes, when there are no buses in the terminal, the alley seems strangely empty. For that matter, any spot in New York that is not overcrowded seems strangely empty.

It was on one of these occasions that a crowd suddenly collected in the Fiftieth street side of the alley. People of assorted shapes and sizes crowded together in an effort to see what was going on inside. Being blessed with the curiosity of all New Yorkers, I joined the mob.

And there I saw a man with a bear. . . .

It was an unusual sight, even in a city where we are accustomed to unusual sights. The man was of average height and none too well-dressed. The bear was a huge, lumbering brute that was quite the biggest one of its kind I have ever seen.

Now it so happens that I know very little about bears.

The man, however, didn't seem to be very much awed by his gigantic playmate. He toyed with the animal as though it were a playful kitty.

As I stood and watched, the crowd grew larger and larger. Here was something for nothing—and nothing will attract people more rapidly. To get rid of the crowd, the man would have to do nothing but attempt to take a collection—for nothing can disperse a crowd more rapidly.

But the man evidently had no intention of taking a collection. Seemingly, he wanted nothing more than applause. After every trick he would bow in the direction of the crowd. And the crowd, as it cost nothing, gave generously of their applause.

The cheers were a tonic to the man. As the handclappings mounted, the man's tricks grew more and more dangerous. He placed an arm in the bear's mouth and swung himself around its neck. Then, as a final thriller, he put his entire head into the bear's mouth.

Nothing happened. The crowd whistled. The man bowed. And bowed again. Placing the animal in a heavy chain, he led him into the garage next door.

The show over, the crowd scattered . . .

* * *

Inside, I spoke with the man. At first he was none too friendly. But as we talked, he warmed up a bit.

"Times are very hard," he said, "very hard. Nobody seems to want animal acts any more. The bookers just won't hire you.

"My bear is a wonderful bear. We have one of the finest acts in vaudeville. But it doesn't seem to make any difference. Animal acts are not very much in demand."

He explained the reason for the performance outside. It was to keep the bear in condition—to keep him fit so that he would not forget his tricks. Maybe, one of these days, a booking would be made. And what would happen if the bear had grown rusty in his performance? The thought made me nervous.

He excused himself for a moment, leaving me alone with the bear. The animal, however, didn't seem to know I was there—which was completely satisfactory to me. During the man's absence I spoke to the proprietor of the garage.

"Can you tell me anything about this bird?" I asked.

He shook his head.

"Don't know much about him," was the response, "but he sure is a great character. Must be a good story in him if you can dig it out.

"He hasn't much money—you can see that by looking at him. Yet he pays us a dollar a day to keep the bear here, and it must certainly cost him a couple of dollars a day to feed a brute like that.

"I don't know exactly where he lives, but it's somewhere in a furnished room around here. Probably pays about $5 a week for his bed and spends $1 a day on his food. That makes $12 for himself—and $21 on the bear. Funny combination."

I nodded. Funny, indeed.

"Tell me," I inquired, "don't you people grow nervous with that bear around?"

The garage man waved a deprecating hand.

"Now," he retorted, "he's harmless. You grow to like him. Wouldn't wanna come in and pat him?"

Before I even had a chance to refuse, the man was back again. He said he was going around the corner for some coffee. I asked if I might join him. He grunted something. So I trailed along.

Over our coffee, the man finally told me his story. It was extremely simple . . .

* * *

Some 12 years before, he had been an acrobat.

"A darn good acrobat," he explained. "Played all over on bills with the biggest headliners. Played the Palace right here in New York when Nora Bayes was headlining and hit Chicago's biggest house when Sophie Tucker and Jack Norworth were splitting the big honors. Good act, we had."

Then he explained the "we." There were three in the acrobatic act: the man, his wife—and another man. The other man had been a friend of the couple for some years. He had been the best man at their wedding.

Things, it seemed, were going well with them. Good routes. Fair money. All three rather happy.

One morning, about 10 years before, came the blowoff. Without so much as a word of goodby, the wife disappeared with the other man.

"She left me flat," murmured the man as he sipped his coffee. "And there I was. No more act. No more wife. No more partner. I was pretty much in the dumps, I can tell you.

"I loved her, I guess. But what's the use of going into that sort of stuff? I swore right then and there that all men and women were double-crossers. I swore right then that I'd never love another woman or befriend another man. And haven't.

"I drifted around for a long time, but I finally snapped out of it. Then I got me this bear about seven years ago and we've been together ever since. We've got a good act, but it's hard to get bookings. They don't want animal acts any more."

He arose to his feet.

"There it is," he said shortly. "Don't know why I told you about my troubles—but there you are."

I stopped him.

"Just one more thing," I asked. "The garage man tells me you spend twice as much on the bear every week as you do on yourself. You must be pretty much up against it right now. Do you have to spend that much on him?"

He smiled.

"Why shouldn't I spend everything I have on him?" he said. "He's my pal. And I'm sure of just one thing.

HONOR DUNCAN AT LUNCHEON

A farewell luncheon was tendered the Rev. Dr. W. Wofford T. Duncan by Methodist ministers of the Pittsburgh district in the Congress of Women's Clubs today following the regular ministerial meeting. Dr. Duncan preached his farewell sermon to members of the congregation of the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church last night. He goes to Cleveland, replacing the Rev. M. B. Fuller, who comes to Emory. Dr. Duncan addressed the ministers before the luncheon.

Dr. Fuller, who has been pastor of the Lakewood Church 14 years, will preach his first sermon here next Sunday. Dr. Duncan said that he was reluctant to leave Pittsburgh, but he believed that he could perform a greater service to the church by going to Cleveland.

Practical Slip

Pattern 1900

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

With only two side seams to close, the neck and armholes to finish and, of course, a hem, the slip is made. Any one could do it! For necessary fullness in walking, a pleat has been added in each side seam, well below the hipline. You might trim the edges with lace or just tailor them with narrow hems. As to fabrics dark shades are just as smart as pink and white this season, and tone in nicely with the new frocks.

Pattern 1900 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 2¾ yards of 39-inch material. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given. No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

Send for the FALL and WINTER CATALOG. It features the newest in afternoon, sports and house dresses, lingerie, pajamas and kiddies' clothes. 131st Anniversary Of Church Observed

Special services yesterday marked the one hundred and thirty-first anniversary of the North Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church, Brownsville road, Option. The Rev. A. J. Holl, of the First Lutheran Church, preached the sermon, assisted by the Rev. J. Grauss, of the Lutheran Church of Castle Shannon. The congregation was organized in 1800 and the present church was built in 1859.

Composer Sued By Actress Wife

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Yola D'Avril, motion picture actress, has filed suit for divorce from Edward Ward, composer, charging cruelty. A few weeks ago, Ward dismissed a similar suit he had filed against the actress. It was understood a reconciliation had been effected.

The actress accused Ward of nagging, belittling her in the presence of friends, and threatening to leave.

HUNT CAFFEINE IN NEAR BEER

HARRISBURG, Oct. 12.—(INS.)—Investigation of near beer production in Pennsylvania with a view to determining whether ingredients of the beverage include caffeine was announced today by Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the commonwealth.

In making known that the investigation would be started at once, Secretary Beamish said:

"I have definite information that a number of cereal beverage plants in Pennsylvania have been pepping up their products with caffeine and matter which I believe are habit forming drugs."

FILM THEATERS TO AID RELIEF

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(Universal)—The motion picture industry has set aside the week of November 18-25, it was announced today, in which special performances will be given in as many as 20,000 theaters for the benefit of unemployment relief.

The announcement was made by the committee on mobilization of relief resources of the President's organization on unemployment relief, of which Owen D. Young is chairman. The plan was submitted by Will H. Hays.

Hays expects the attendance at these benefit performances in the 20,000 theaters will be more than 15,000,000. Joining with him in the plan are M. A. Lightman, president of the Motion Picture Owners of America, and Abram F. Myers, president of the Allied States Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors, as well as the full membership of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America.

Helen Keller Shuns England After Pet is Barred

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—A small black terrier prevented Helen Keller, the blind author, from entering England, she said on her return from a vacation in Europe.

Rather than submit her pet to a required six-month quarantine, she decided not to visit that country.

SEEK TO JAIL DOYLE AGAIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(INS.)—Battles and counter-battles, with the big guns of both sides limbered up, were in progress today as the Hofstadter Legislative Investigating Committee sought amazing developments in its probe of New York's government.

Samuel Seabury, committee counsel, planned as part of his offensive, to seek again to jail Dr. William F. Doyle for contempt. He intended to force the horse doctor to reveal with whom he split his $2,000,000 fees for his special pleadings before the Board of Standards and Appeals.

The fall always brings a deluge of benefits. Society women are especially interested in the hospitals, and are always planning innumerable fall events to aid them.

One of the most prominent of the activities is the annual donation day and all-day sewing sponsored by the board of trustees and the women's auxiliary board of St. Margaret's Hospital.

This year it will be held Wednesday, October 21, at 10 o'clock in the nurses' home.

The members of the women's auxiliary board include Mrs. Harvey Childs, Jr., president; Mrs. James W. Brown, Mrs. Charles F. Shoemaker, Mrs. A. L. Humphrey, Mrs. John C. Sherriff, Mrs. A. E. Niemann, Mrs. E. A. Armstrong, Mrs. James E. Brown, Mrs. George W. J. Bissell, Mrs. T. H. Childs, Mrs. John W. Chalfant, Mrs. A. B. Dally, Jr., Mrs. Carroll H. Fitzhugh, Mrs. Thomas M. Girdler, Mrs. Edward Henesey, Mrs. Dudley F. Liggett, Mrs. Robert Leighou, Mrs. E. W. Mudge, Mrs. Bennett Oliver, Mrs. John C. Oliver, Mrs. Charles L. Teirce, Mrs. Lewis M. Plumer, Mrs. W. F. Rust, Mrs. Edward Snodgrass, Miss Adda Smith and Mrs. A. Verner Wasson.

C. L. Snowdon is president of the board of trustees, which includes Arthur M. Scully, E. H. McKinley, Frank Adair Leovy, James George Stuart, A. L. Humphreys, H. H. McClintic and George P. Rhodes.

October 28 is the date Mary Caroline Copeland, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Charles D. Copeland, of Greensburg, has chosen for her marriage to Paul J. Sturgeon, son of the William Carroll Sturgeons of Greensburg.

The wedding will take place at 7 o'clock in the evening in the Greensburg First Presbyterian Church. Mary is a graduate of the Knox School and Sweetbriar College, and Mr. Sturgeon of Pennsylvania State College.

Elizabeth C. Armstrong Weds Jamison Meredith

Miss Elizabeth Gwynn Armstrong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Harry Armstrong, of Fairmont, W. Va., became the bride of Jamison Meredith, son of Judge and Mrs. James A. Meredith, of Fairmont, formerly of Pittsburgh and Washington, Pa., Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Fairmont Christ Episcopal Church.

The bride wore ivory bridal satin, made with a court train, and a veil of tulle cascading from a cap of duchess lace. And she had a bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Harrison Conaway, of Fairmont, and the bridesmaids, Miss Martha Dickerson and Miss Katherine Brett, of Fairmont; Mrs. John Williams, Jr., of New York, and Mrs. Henry Martin Brown, of Cleveland, O., wore white faille taffeta gowns in the empire mode, and small white velvet hats in the second empire style. The matron of honor carried a sheaf of red roses, and the bridesmaids had white velvet muffs trimmed with roses.

Steele Trotter, of Charleston, was best man, and Edward J. Alexander, of Parkersburg, Harrison Conaway, Earl Sample and Charles Vance, all of Fairmont, were ushers.

A reception in the Fairmont Field Club followed. After a motor trip Mr. and Mrs. Meredith will be at home in Fairmont.

The bride is a graduate of Penn Hall, and attended the Gateway School in New Haven, Conn., and the Peabody Institute of Music in Baltimore. She is a member of the Junior League and the Community Players of Fairmont. Mr. Meredith is a graduate of Northwestern Military Academy, the University of West Virginia and Harvard Law School.

Miss Teckla Bauer Weds In South Side Church

The marriage of Miss Teckla Bauer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bauer, of the South Side, to Charles Weber, of Allentown, was solemnized on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Peter's Church, South Side. The altar was decorated with ferns and gladioli, and the Rev. John Greiner officiated. Theodore Wuenschell, uncle of the bride, sang.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin in princess mode, and a veil of tulle bordered with silk lace. She carried calla lilies showered with lilies of the valley. Miss Marie Wuenschell, cousin of the bride, was the maid of honor, wearing a gown of pink taffeta, and Miss Blanche Milcarek, as bridesmaid, wore blue satin. Both wore matching hats, and carried pink roses. Jerome Bauer served as best man, and the ushers included Theodore A[illegible] and Edward J. Bauer, brothers of the bride.

There was a family breakfast after the ceremony, and a dinner and reception in the home of the bride in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Weber will make their home in Allentown.

Miss Mildred Miehlke Married to C. S. Keil

Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Miehlke, of Etna, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mildred Miehlke, to Charles S. Keil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Keil, of Allison Park. The marriage was solemnized in the home of the bride on Wednesday.

After a brief honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Keil will be at home in Etna.

Removal of Mrs. Ralph S. Davis To St. Louis Keenly Felt Among Friends Here

News of Mrs. Ralph S. Davis' removal to St. Louis shortly is being received in club circles with genuine regret. If the St. Louis clubs are alert they will immediately make the acquaintance of this Pittsburgher and invite her to join their ranks. Not only is Mrs. Davis an indefatigable worker and a speaker of charm and fine wit, but she has the rare gift of being able to see all sides of every question in club work.

She has filled many offices with distinction, chief of which has been that of editor of the Congress Outlet, where her editorials have always been something worth anticipating. Scarcely second in importance is her newer position os publicity chairman for the Congress, a demanding task which she has done efficiently for two years. Mrs. Davis is a past president of the Woman's Club of Crafton and is now one of the senior advisors to the Crafton juniors. She is also press and publicity chairman for the Southwestern district of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women.

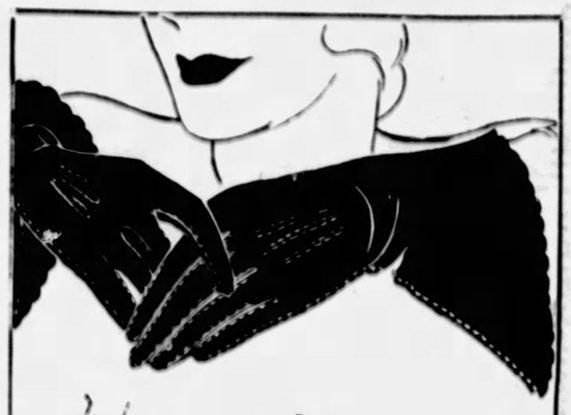
Plans have been completed and invitations and tickets mailed to all Junior Hadassah members for the benefit bridge to be given at the Hotel Schenley on Sunday afternoon, November 1. The proceeds of the affair will be used to help defray the expenses of Junior Hadassah's Palestinian projects.



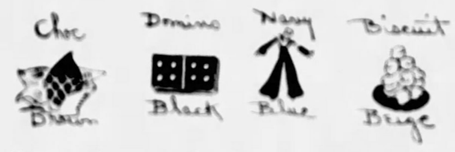
Handsewn

FABRIC FLARES

$1.50

My, what a hue and cry about the new gauntlet fabric gloves! Fabrics have gained the loftiest social sanction lately. B. M. of the New Yorker reports that black ones particularly, dotted the Paris Ritz this year. Be sure of one thing, though: they must be handsewn! This quality is smooth as suede.

Note These Fall Colors



Chocolate brown is handsewn in beige; black in white; navy in white; and biscuit beige in brown. They are just the smartest things in glovedom.

Progressive Blind Women Visited by Club Mother

The presence of the club mother, Mrs. Moses Ruslander, of Atlantic City, was an especially happy factor of Saturday's meeting of the Progressive Blind Women's Club. The club, which has the distinction of being the first club for blind women in this part of the state, met in the Downtown Y. M. C. A. and heard a program of entertainment by Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Hammond. Mrs. C. C. Taylor was leader.

Washington's Tent To Be Restored At Yorktown

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(INS.)—George Washington's marquee, the tent in which he lived during the battle of Yorktown, and from which he directed the battle, will be restored and will stand as it formerly did, in the southwestern portion of the Yorktown Battlefield during the sesquicentennial on October 16-19, it has been announced.

President Hoover and a distinguished party of officials will witness the ceremonies incident to the celebration.

Miss Dorothy Churchill Marries in New Jersey

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Churchill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Churchill, of Upper Montclair, N. J., formerly of Pittsburgh, to Herbert G. Hold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hold, of Sunset avenue, Bloomfield, N. J., took place Saturday at 4:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Donald J. McKay, pastor of Emanuel Baptist Church, Newark, N. J.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and attended by her sister, Miss Edna May Churchill, as maid of honor. Henry Lang, of Bloomfield, N. J., was Mr. Hold's best man. The ushers were Herbert Churchill, of Montclair, and John Churchill, of Baltimore.

The bride wore a white satin gown in the princess mode and a string of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. Her veil was of tulle, trimmed with orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Her going-away costume was of brown travel tweed with brown accessories with which she wore a corsage of tea roses.

The maid of honor wore pink satin trimmed with ermine, and a pink felt hat trimmed with an ostrich plume. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and delphinium.

Mrs. Churchill wore black velvet and a corsage of gardenias, and Mrs. Hold wore black lace with gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Hold will motor through the South and upon their return will reside in Caldwell, N. J.

Tower Dedicated At Detroit Shrine

DETROIT, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Dignitaries of the Roman Catholic Church participated yesterday in dedication of a charity crucifixion tower at the Shrine of the Little Flower, from which the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin broadcasts his religious features.

Contributions from listeners were largely responsible for erection of the $300,000 marble tower, 60 feet high which eventually will form the front of a new church.

What Aladdin Really Needed Was a Tin Box

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—New York City official bobbed up with a magic tin box that makes Alladin's lamp look like a sick lightning bug.

Every time he rubbed the tin box it coughed up hundreds of thousands of those everblooming dollars.

The goose that laid the golden egg was killed years ago. But this guy went out and found the gander.

What we are trying to discover is how the cash register can wear out without the bell ringing once.

And we also want to know how a public official can save a million dollars on a $3,000 salary without scrimping on the sugar and butter.

We are not hinting there is anything wrong. But we would certainly like to learn the formula for future reference.

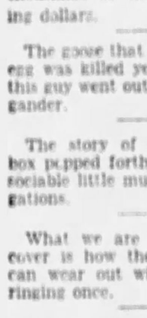
WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Oct. 12.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Mr. Hoover has had many a tough break during the many weeks he has been in, but just kinder looking it over from all angles, I believe that this last week was his most successful one in a long time. I think he just rounded all those big bankers up and said:

"Now listen, this thing has got past a joke. You birds got to get in here and help me do something: I been helping you out long enough. Now if big business wants a Republican administration, big business better start helping a Republican administration—or else?"



Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

Pittsburghers at Ohio River Improvement Meet

7 DEAD, 9 HURT IN WEEK-END AUTO CRASHES

GROUP AT RIVER MEETING LED BY DUNN

President of Coal Exchange Leads Pittsburghers in Ohio Improvement Sessions

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 12.—Pittsburgh delegates to the annual convention of the Ohio Valley Improvement Association arrived here today for the opening sessions.

Alex W. Dann, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Exchange, is heading the Pittsburgh contingent. At the same time an automobile caravan, led by H. S. Warwick, of Youngstown, secretary of the Tri-Rivers Association, arrived here with more than 30 delegates.

Arman J. P. Vandermyn, of Pittsburgh, president of the Propeller Club, who is scheduled to deliver an address on the importance of the early construction of the Lake Erie and Ohio River canal, has been called to Memphis to attend the funeral of his father-in-law, R. S. Carr.

Sherman D. Archbold, of Pittsburgh and Parkersburg, general manager of the Standard Shipping Company, and chairman of the committee on standardization, will make a report on the standardization of river equipment.

B. B. Byers, of Pittsburgh, president of the General Contracting Corporation, will entertain delegates at Marmet, where he is completing the first unit of the twin locks on the Great Kanawha River.

A. M. E. BISHOP BACKS DRY LAW

The Rev. Paris A. Wallace, bishop of the A. M. E. Zion Church, spoke last night at the closing session of the Allegheny Conference of the church in the Wesley Center Church, Center avenue and Francis street. He was introduced by the Rev. Dr. E. L. Madison, pastor.

Bishop Wallace said that prohibition is getting blamed for most of the murder and other crimes in the country today, while, in his opinion, the present orgy of crime had its beginning in the World War, when the morals of men was broken down. He said that he was not satisfied with prohibition as it is and hoped that something would be done soon to better the condition now existing.

Other speakers at the final session were Dr. W. A. Blackwell, chairman of the resolutions committee; Bishop George C. Clements, of Louisville, Ky., and Bishop L. W. Kyle, of North Carolina.

Cleveland Gunman Returned to Ohio

Arthur Stolder, an alleged Cleveland gunman arrested here by city detectives and who, according to police, is wanted in Cleveland for jumping a $2,000 bail bond, was turned over to Cleveland officers today to be returned to the Ohio city.

INSTALL ORGAN WITH RECITAL

Sacred Heart Church will dedicate its new organ Wednesday at 8 p. m., with the vested male choir and the boys' choir participating. Many schools of organ and ecclesiastical music will be represented on the program, which will be under the direction of Edgar J. Bowman.

The Allegheny Guild of Organists has been invited to attend the dedication.

Mr. Bowman studied under Pietro A. Yon, of New York, Maestro Renzi, organist in St. Peter's and the Vatican at Rome, and Conrad Bernier, of the Catholic University, Washington.

REPORTS THEFT HELD IN CRASH

Maxwell A. Jones, of 3332 Parkview avenue, arrested after reporting that his automobile had been stolen, was held in $1,000 bail pending a hearing today in Traffic Court.

Police said that three hours before Jones made his report, they had been seeking him for questioning on an accident in which the car of L. Plaikner, of 427 South avenue, Wilkinsburg, was damaged by a hit-run driver.

Information given by Plaikner sent police to the Jones home, police said, where they found Jones' damaged automobile.

FRESH MURDER IN GANG WAR PROMISED

City Detectives Warned in Mystery Telephone Call Of Racketeers Move

Homicide detectives were warned in a mysterious telephone call today of another "racket" murder, being planned in retaliation for the killing of Jack Palmere and Sam (Toto) Amarosa.

Detective Frank Dodson, called to the telephone, said the mysterious voice told him:

"In a few more days you'll have another case to investigate. We are going to put one of their gang on the spot."

Dodson said he took the message to mean that one of the members of the gang of "Little Joe" Spinelli, being sought in connection with the two murders, would be killed.

Her identity is known, the sleuths say. They wish to question her and to obtain from her the key to Palmere's safe deposit box in a Pittsburgh bank, which, they believe, may throw light on Palmere's operations.

AWAIT DECISION IN DEROSA FIGHT

Final decision in the Twelfth Ward aldermanic contest between Alderman William A. Means and Michael DeRosa, Jr., for the Republican nomination, was expected to be handed down today by Judges Frank P. Patterson and James H. Gray.

Hearings in the contest were held before Attorney Garnet R. Speer, examiner appointed by Judge Gray to take testimony and make a report on his findings of the fact and the law.

In his report filed late Friday, Speer recommended the vote in three of the five contested districts of the ward be thrown out. If the court sustains this view, Means will be the winner of the nomination by 18 votes. Official returns give the nomination to DeRosa by 52 votes.

Suspect Arrested In Locker Thefts

Accused of having broken into three lockers in Grant Building offices, Frank Lowry, alias Frank Lewis, 48, of West Forty-fifth street, New York, was ordered held for investigation when arraigned in Central Police Court today.

Woman Suffers Heart Attack in Auto, Dies

Mrs. Johanna Otte, of Pearl street, fell unconscious last night while she was seated in her daughter's automobile parked near her home, and was pronounced dead upon her arrival at the West Penn Hospital. Death was due to a heart attack, physicans said.

TIRE BLOWOUT CAUSES ONE DEATH

Mt. Lebanon Man Killed When Machine Upsets; Man Held After Crash

The death of Raymond Waechter, 23, of 118 West Martin drive, Mt. Lebanon, yesterday, following an automobile accident on the Franklin-Oil City road, swelled the total week-end automobile fatalities to seven today.

Waechter was injured when a rear tire blew out, causing the vehicle to overturn after it crashed into a fence. Ronald Miller, a passenger, was slightly injured.

CRASH INTO POLE

Two girls and a man were injured last night when their automobile failed to negotiate the curve near the lower entrance to Mt. Royal Cemetery, on the Butler Plank road, and crashed into a pole 20 feet from the place where three men met death 24 hours earlier.

The injured, according to Etna police, are Patsy McChesney, of First street, Sharpsburg; Frances Parks, of Reeseville, and Sam Zalderone, 25, of 198 Forty-second street. The girls were taken home after treatment at St. Francis Hospital. Zalderone was admitted to the hospital.

3 DEATHS AT SCENE

Late Saturday night a similar accident resulted in the death of John Ostaffi, of 41 Jane street, the driver; his brother Nichols, of Pine street, and Daniel Stefura, 48, of Jane street, all of Carnegie. The party was en route home from a Lake Erie summer resort.

Other fatalities, reported Saturday, include Regina Makowski, 6, of 3119 Home street, Carrick; Alex W. Fraser, 45, of 4313 Bristol street, and Peter J. Petrosky, of 2801 Penn avenue.

Andre Labes, of 123 Fairmont street, and Mrs. Anna Holland, 53, of 1624 Leolyn street, were injured yesterday during a head-on collision in Nobles Lane, Carrick.

CHILD RUN DOWN

William Gorman, 4, of 33 Moody street, Braddock, was injured yesterday when he was struck by an automobile near the child's home.

William Schwerin, of R. D. No. 2, Sewickley, was injured seriously last night when the automobile in which he was riding skidded and struck a light pole near the Freeport Bridge on the Ohio River boulevard. He was removed to Suburban General Hospital, where it was reported he was suffering from a fractured skull.

DRIVER ARRESTED

Two woman were injured seriously last night when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a light pole after skidding in Greenfield avenue near Kearcher street. They are Mrs. Blanche Richards, 40, of 5302 Gertrude street, whose husband was killed in a Second avenue crash a month ago, and Miss Eva Parks, 32, of 5009 Second avenue.

S. S. Keller, 38, of 119 Johnston avenue, whom, police say, was the driver of the car, was arrested charged with violating the automobile laws. The injured were treated at Homeopathic Hospital.

MOTHER SHOT, GIRL BEATEN

Mrs. Adeline Claughton, 32, Negro, of 436 Williams street, Mt. Washington, was shot probably fatally and her daughter, Nettie, 11, severely beaten in their home today by a Negro whom they ordered out of the house when he begged for alms.

Mrs. Claughton, a bullet near her heart, and her daughter, suffering a probable skull fracture, were in South Side Hospital. Luther Brunt, 38, the alleged assailant, of 434 Williams street, described by police as a minister, fled from the house and a city-wide search was being made for him. The Negro was said to have appealed at the Claughton home almost daily for food or money and had been helped by the Claughton family many times.

METAL EXPERTS MEET FRIDAY

More than 300 metallurgists and steel company executives will attend the fifth annual open meeting of the metallurgical advisory board of the United States Bureau of Mines and the Carnegie Institute of Technology at Carnegie Tech Friday. Results of research studies in metallurgy made during the last year at the Bureau of Mines and at Tech will be reported.

The afternoon session will be devoted to reports and discussions on the physical chemistry of steel making. One of the outstanding results of the research work is the development of the new manganese-silicon deoxidizer which has been shown to be much superior to ferro-manganese-ferro-silicon in combination to producing clean steel at a low cost.

HEAD OF STEEL PLANT LEADS FUND UNIT

J. E. Lose Chief of Welfare Workers in Homestead And Adjoining Territory

J. E. Lose, general superintendent of the Homestead plant of the Carnegie Steel Company, will be chairman of a unit in the $5,750,000 welfare and emergency campaign for Allegheny County, it was announced today. The unit, one of 14 in the city and county, will comprise Homestead, West Homestead, Munhall, Whitaker and Mifflin Township.

The action was taken, it was announced, as the result of a meeting in Homestead attended by Burgess John Cavanaugh, of Homestead, Burgess Kenneth McLane, of Munhall, F. H. Leuschner, secretary of the Homestead Chamber of Commerce, and C. W. Head and Wilbur D. Maxwell representing the Welfare Fund Organization for the appeal. November 9 to 23 will begin at once, Lose said.

Interest was shown in plans whereby municipalities may appropriate funds for materials on improvement projects, labor and supervision being paid by the Allegheny County Emergency Association, which this year has joined with the Welfare Fund and is seeking $3,000,000 as its share in ameliorating the employment situation, hoping with this amount to provide jobs for 12,000 or 15,000 for at least six months.

HOTEL GUESTS REPORT THEFT

The room in the Schenley Hotel of J. W. Edwards and J. M. Townsend, of Wilton, Mass., was robbed of $150 cash, $500 in railway express checks and a hand bag, they reported to police today.

After a safe from which they knocked the combination failed to yield money, thieves who forced entry to Beckett's Seed Store, 101 Federal street, yesterday escaped with $25 from the cash register.

Candies valued at $100 and cigarets and cigars valued at $10 were stolen from a truck in the garage of Benjamin Markowitz, of 124 Trent street.

Declared Husband Untrue, Kills Self

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 12.—(Ins.)—Mrs. Eva Dick Davis, 43, was dead today from a bullet after leaving a note telling police she had intended to kill a Georgetown woman she asserted had alienated her husband's affections.

William Dudley Davis, the husband, was present last March when Mrs. Rula Lowry Whiteside was killed by a bullet fired by her husband.

AIRPLANE BEAM TO LIGHT FLARE

A thin beam of light from a Curtiss bombing plane flying high over Pittsburgh tonight will set off a flare on the top of the William Penn Hotel, signalizing the opening of the silver jubilee convention of the Illuminating Engineers' Society.

Capt. Samuel C. Eaton, commandant of Rodgers Flying Field, in the plane will direct a new powerful Westinghouse searchlight on a photo electric cell on the hotel roof. It will be the first practical application of producing mechanical action by means of light, a development said to hold large possibilities in wartime operations of airplanes.

The early sessions were devoted to church, store and outdoor lighting with national authorities leading the discussions under the chairmanship of J. C. Fisher, of Baltimore.

Express Toll Roads Urged by Senator

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(INS.)—Construction of a national system of "express motorways" to stimulate business and employment and help lessen traffic and transportation problems, will be proposed by Senator Frazier (Rep.) of North Dakota, at the December session of Congress, he announced today. The highways would be built and operated by the government and financed by a moderate toll charge.

Wash Away Constipation!

Chronic Sufferers Have Corrected Conditions of Years' Standing by Internal Bathing with the J.B.L. Cascade—FREE BOOKLET Tells You How

Be gentle and painlessly flooding the entire lower intestine with soft, warm water purified by a marvelous cleansing tonic you can immediately correct the worst case of constipation and rapidly restore natural elimination.

This hygienic method—the J.B.L. Cascade principle—does the job swiftly, thoroughly and completely.

The water and tonic reach into every intestinal cavity, ass. pocket and crevice and dissolve and empty them of impurities and poisons. In less than fifteen minutes the entire five-foot canal has been cleansed and flushed.

The intestinal muscles have been stimulated and strengthened and made vigorous and useful once more. Any inflammation has been reached, cleansed and medicated. The relief is glorious and you feel like an entirely different person.

Do not confuse the Cascade treatment with the simple enema. The lower intestine or colon is about five feet long and shaped like an inverted U. The water of the simple enema reaches only to the first bend—two-thirds remain unflushed. The Cascade works entirely different. You sit on it, and natural pressure sends a column of the medicated water the entire length.

Of course any sufferer of constipation knows that it is highly important to remove this condition. For the blood vessels in the intestinal walls are constantly absorbing germs and poisons from the fermenting waste and carrying them to every cell, tissue and organ. These do tremendous damage. They break down tissue, load cells with acid, cause throbbing headaches, breaking out of pimples, harden arteries and cut down the years you have a right to live. Some dentists suspect them of causing pyorrhea.

Our stores offer FREE a booklet, "Why We Should Bathe Internally," which describes the Cascade principle in detail. Tells how more than 1,000,000 men and women have won new health through its usage—what physicians, hospitals, sanitariums, etc., think of it. Stop in and get a copy—and ask to see a J.B.L. Cascade.

Pepsodent announces a notable new discovery

An entirely new cleansing and polishing material has been developed by Pepsodent Laboratories. It is twice as soft as polishing materials in common use. Teeth are given higher polish, brighter luster—FILM stains disappear completely

THE Pepsodent Laboratories announce a new discovery. A revolutionary discovery contained in Pepsodent Toothpaste for more than six months.

Your dentist will tell you Pepsodent's policy has always been to improve constantly—no "fixed formula" to hamper progress. Research laboratories have a habit, in this modern age, of quickly obsoleting prior ideas. As new dental advances have come, Pepsodent has been the first to meet them.

Now once more Pepsodent advances. This time through a notable new discovery that possesses three exclusive virtues:

1. The new cleansing and polishing material in Pepsodent stands unequalled in removing stained, destructive FILM.
2. The new texture is invisibly fine. As a result it imparts a higher polish to enamel—a brilliant glaze or luster.
3. The new material is safe—this is most important of all. Safe because it's soft—yes, twice as soft—as polishing materials in common use.

Having made this new discovery we faced an equally great problem. How to combine it in our present formula without altering appearance or sacrificing the famous flavor that has made Pepsodent so long preferred by millions. We mastered this. In taste and in looks it is still the Pepsodent you have always known. In results and safety it is new—brand new.

Keeps teeth cleaner—safely

Pepsodent's new cleansing and polishing material brings a change in teeth's appearance within a few days' time. Newly discovered, it is different, totally different, from any now in use.

These facts are interesting: this discovery followed 7 years of research . . . 3 tons of raw materials were used in laboratory tests . . . we held a competition from among the ablest minds in chemistry . . . new equipment had to be invented, then erected . . . the process is a carefully guarded secret.

The idea was simple: to combine super film-removing power with super safety and yet retain the original appearance and taste of Pepsodent. A paradox! A seemingly hopeless task that has been the goal of every toothpaste manufacturer for the last decade. Pepsodent has solved it!

Pepsodent—special FILM-removing toothpaste

Removing FILM is, and always will be, Pepsodent's chief duty. Today's Pepsodent performs that duty better than any toothpaste ever has before.

FILM is that slippery coating on your teeth. It gathers germs that cause decay. It glues them tightly to enamel. FILM absorbs the stains from food and smoking and makes teeth unattractive. Removing FILM is important for beauty and for health.

Get a tube of Pepsodent today. Note how smooth and creamy. It is safe . . . utterly safe . . . on the softest baby teeth and the most delicate enamel. Pepsodent is today's outstanding scientific toothpaste.

USE PEPSODENT TWICE A DAY—SEE YOUR DENTIST AT LEAST TWICE A YEAR

EYNON WARNS AUTOISTS ON SAFETY

State Commissioner Opens Automotive Meet Here; Defends Compulsory Tests

Warning to the automotive industry to assume its responsibility towards developing safety thought and measures was sounded today by Benjamin G. Eynon, Pennsylvania commissioner of motor vehicles, at the opening of the Pennsylvania Automotive Association's two-day convention in the William Penn Hotel.

Sales problems and business reports are the principal matters before the state organization's session with its president, C. J. McGough, of Wilkes-Barre, presiding. Election of directors and committee reports will close the first day's meeting followed by the annual banquet tonight.

COMMITTEES NAMED

Committee appointments was the first business conducted. The following committees were named for the convention: Nomination, Alvin A. Swenson, of Philadelphia, chairman; George A. Hoeveler, Pittsburgh, and Birch R. Ober, Johnstown; resolutions, W. H. Brearley, Ardmore, chairman; George H. Roth, Philadelphia, and George S. McFarland, Harrisburg.

C. A. Rehtmeyer, president of the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association, was called upon for opening remarks. R. C. Keller, of York, was announced as winning individual honors for securing the most members in the past year.

"At every legislative session, so-called remedial measures are offered, many of which are considered 'wild ideas,' but recent years have witnessed many changes that it would have been difficult to persuade the average citizen could ever be accomplished."

DEFENDS INSPECTION

Defending the state-wide compulsory inspection, he said:

"Any means that can be legitimately used under the sponsorship of the state or any assistance that can be obtained from outside agencies, is justified to attract attention of motorists to prevent accident hazards."

R. H. Grant, vice president and general sales manager, General Motors Corporation, was a speaker on a program including Glen Daily, Cleveland; James Dalton, New York; Clarence Eldridge, New York.

Genoa Holds Fete To Honor Columbus

GENOA, Italy, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Determined to establish for all time its claims to be the birthplace of Christopher Columbus, Genoa staged its greatest show today in honor of the discoverer of America. The populace decorated everything in sight, lighted candles and electris signs and paid votive visits to the tumbled, ivy-grown stone structure that is said to be the explorer's birthplace.

Politics Under Ban At Roosevelt Fete

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Oct. 12.—(INS.)—Georgia neighbors of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today prepared for their annual barbecue tomorrow in honor of the chief executive.

Although the barbecue will be sponsored by the Meriweather County Roosevelt-for-President Club, a blanket order that "no politics" be discussed has gone out in deference to the Governor's wishes.

Bandits Threaten 7, Escape With $100

HARRISBURG, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Two bandits held up six employes and a customer in a chain grocery in Enola, a suburb, and escaped with $100 in cash. At the points of a pistol and shotgun, the bandits marched the seven into a back room, telling them if "they knew what was good for them" they would stay there half an hour. They stayed more than half an hour.

CHURCH MARKS 40TH YEAR

The fortieth anniversary of St. Andrew's Lutheran Church, Center and Morewood avenues, was celebrated yesterday at special services. At the same time the Rev. H. P. Eckhardt, celebrated his twentieth anniversary as pastor of the church. The church was founded October, 1891, the original edifice being located in Stevenson street.

Morning and evening services were conducted by the Rev. Eckhardt and the Rev. A. W. Meyer, of Brooklyn, the first pastor of the church. The Rev. H. B. Hemmeter, president of Concordia College, Conover, N. C., also spoke.

Taxi Injuries Kill McKinley Backer

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Oct. 12.—(AP.)—J. J. Snyder, lawyer and newspaperman, was struck and killed today by a taxicab as he was alighting from a street car. He was 66.

Since his retirement from law practice, Snyder had been connected with the Morning Call. A number of years ago he was prominent in Pennsylvania politics and during the McKinley campaign stumped the state, making speeches against "free silver."

Souvenir Hunters Steal Blinds on State Edifice

HARRISBURG, Oct. 12.—(INS.)—Souvenir hunters are the bane of the Capitol guards' existence. State police were stationed at the new Education Building to protect the property from overzealous visitors who have stolen window blinds.

A watchman also has been placed in the Governor's reception room, unguarded for years, following the discovery that bronze trumpets had been removed from the mouths of small bronze cherubs decorating the light standards.

There were originally 32 of these trumpets. Thirty-one were stolen by visitors.

Gambler Blamed For Raids Killed

CONSHOHOCKEN, Pa., Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Ralph Spanish, 23, known to police as "a small-time gambler," died early today from a bullet wound in the abdomen. He was shot last night on a street corner after being accused by his three assailants of having furnished information that lead to several raids here on Saturday night.

Two men have been arrested in connection with the slaying and a third is being held for further questioning. One of the prisoners, Jake Lehman, 35, of Paoli, admitted firing the shot, police said.

BLESSING SEEN IN DEPRESSION

Depression was defined as either a burden or a challenge yesterday by the Rev. Dr. William Porkess, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Wilkinsburg. Declaring that men "all around us are being affected in one or two ways," Dr. Porkess said:

"Depression is either a burden or challenge. If all that we had at one time were money or property, and that has gone or depreciated and we now stand out as naked souls, then we are burdened.

"If, however, loss or decrease of the things material bring into clearer light souls radiant with real religion, strong faith in the living God and courage to do or die, then depression becomes a challenge and therefore an ultimate blessing in disguise."

Davis to Address Sheraden Traders

Senator James J. Davis will be the principal speaker at the meeting of the Sheraden Board of Trade Thursday night, October 29, in Langley High School. Invitations have been extended to State Senator Frank J. Harris, Congressman Guy Campbell, Harry A. Estep, and Clyde Kelly, Councilman W. Y. English, Representative W. T. Bell and N. R. Criss.

STOKOWSKI BROADCASTS :-: Philadelphia Symphony Series Begins Tonight :-: PRE-CLASSICAL CONCERT

We Now Present

By Darrell V. Martin
Radio Editor

LEOPOLD STOKOWSKI'S belief that radio is on a par with or even more important than the concert hall as an instrument for the spread of a national appreciation of music finds expression tonight in the first of a series of concerts over the Columbia Broadcasting System and WJAS at 8:15 p. m. . . . Stokowski has molded a series that impresses us as the greatest cultural spectacle the world has ever had the opportunity of seeing or hearing. . . . Musical masterpieces of the ages have been arranged in chronological sequence . . . in scope, the series includes pre-classical music dating from the late sixteenth century, through the Colossi of composers of the intervening centuries to the brilliant moderns of Europe and America . . . Tonight's concert embraces rarely known compositions of the pre-classical era in which may be traced the beginnings of our symphonies as we know them today . . . Monteverdi, Lulli, Purcell, Vivaldi, Rameau and finally the twin giants of their epoch, Bach and Handel. . . . How many times have you enjoyed hearing Dr. Charles Heinroth play Handel's "Water Music" scheduled tonight as part of the Carnegie Music Hall recitals? . . . Pitts Sanborn of New York and Linton Martin of Philadelphia, two of the best respected music critics of the nation, have been retained to interpret and describe the music and the glittering scene in the Philadelphia Academy of Music . . . Stokowski, a bear on acoustics, has supervised personally the installation of five microphones for this concert.

Darrell V. Martin

Question a Day:

The other day you mentioned Don Bestor among Pittsburgh artists who made good on the networks. Didn't Don start his career in Indianapolis?—Grace E. Mt. Washington.

Answer—You must be thinking of Dick Powell. Of course Don had an orchestra before he came to Pittsburgh but his career really started here when he married "Frankie," the stage star. Remember? WJAS has Don at five this afternoon from Syracuse, N. Y.

Studio Lights

"Headwind," the police puppy sent to the CBS staff by Mrs. Vincent Astor, was true to its name . . . ran wild among the bassoons, oboes and tympani and had to be kept in a telephone booth—the only available prison—until the end of the program. . . .

International broadcasts yesterday were exceptionally clear . . . and spicy! . . . George Bernard Shaw's sarcastic greeting, "Hello boobs," in the London broadcast, had a pleasant contrast in the "Hello everybody" bit of cheer from Roxy in Berlin . . . The German chorus was inspirational in bits from "Il Trovatore" . . . all the time we wondered what kind of a studio they were broadcasting from, how many people were in it and a few other sidelights that would have added color to the broadcast . . .

S. A. R., Wilkinsburg—Yes we've praised "Behind the Kitchen Door" . . . you must have missed it . . . the actors are Margaret Leyda and Haaven Haas.

Edwin F. R., Oakland, writes a long letter scoring local stations for chiseling time from the networks to make commercial announcements, particularly on Bing Crosby's program . . .

Walter Winchell has selected Morton Downey as his guest on CBS-WJAS next Tuesday, Oct. 20. . . .

Bobby Meeker has moved his caravan to the Fontenelle Hotel, Omaha, Neb. . . . late broadcasts over WOW. . . .

When Emerson Gill goes to the DeWitt Cafe at Syracuse, N. Y., Don Bestor may take up at last that long-contemplated journey to the Netherlands Plaza at Cincinnati (WLW). . . .

A love story based on the Titanic disaster, "The Distant Shore," is to be portrayed on CBS-WJAS next Sunday night at 9:30 in the "Sea Romance" series. . . .

Lloyd C. Thomas, commercial manager of KDKA and everything but Governor in Nebraska, has packed fishing rod and tackle for a sojourn out West. . . . Lloyd has a huge ranch in his home state. . . .

Orrell Hancock, a distant relative of John Hancock, has the smallest and most illegible signature of all production men at CBS. . . .

WNBO at Washington, Pa., has revived hopes of maintaining a regular schedule from its studio in Hotel Henry and has hired Mark Chisholm as local program director . . . the studio has been used on several occasions for news broadcasts. . . .

Operation of a new station using the call "WMBR" and indicating its location as "McKees Rocks," has interfered seriously the last few days with stations on the 1470-1490 kilocycle range . . . WWSW listeners reported much interference yesterday . . . the Federal Radio Commission has no record of the station . . .

The networks say they'll not broadcast tonight's Sharkey-Carnera fight . . . but then they always say that. . . .

Not So Long Ago

Looking back over the last few years, Abe Lyman will reveal on the radio the most vivid incidents of his life to-wit, to-wit, to-wit.

Helping Paul Whiteman hire the men for his first dance orchestra job in the Alexandria Hotel, Los Angeles, Whiteman was playing with a five-piece string ensemble in the same hotel at that time.

Cashing the $75 pay check for a young actress on the MGM lot who used to come to the Ambassador Hotel every Saturday and who was seen quite often with one of Lyman's saxophone players . . . Joan Crawford.

Loaning $20 to a young good-looking foreigner, who had been unsuccessful in his attempts to get into pictures, so that he might take out a girl . . . the late Rudolph Valentino.

Giving saxophone lessons to a 15-year-old boy who always asked to be allowed to sit on the platform with the band an hour each night . . . Howard Hughes, producer of "Hell's Angels."

Allowing another young boy to sit up with the band several nights each week . . . Carl Laemmle, Jr., of Universal Pictures.

ASTHMA DISAPPEARS

Recovery Due to Discovery of Basic Cause of Disease.

S. C. Dyke, of Beaver, has written a letter of intense interest to all who suffer from Bronchial Asthma. In it he tells how the discovery of the basic cause of Asthma and Hay Fever by the celebrated Dr. Fugate resulted in the complete disappearance of his Asthma.

Mr. Dyke took less than three bottles of Dr. Fugate's remedy early in 1927. On April 28, 1928—more than a year later—he wrote:

"I suffered with Asthma four years. Was not able to do any work through the winter. Last winter I wasn't out of my room and could not lie down to sleep. After trying many remedies, I saw your advertisement and ordered Dr. Fugate's Remedy. I was relieved with a few doses. I took two bottles, have one on hand, but haven't had an attack since last March, and have been able to work all year. I am 72 years old and will recommend Dr. Fugate's Remedy to all sufferers of Asthma. I am so thankful for the good it has done me."

S. C. DYKE.

Copies of similar letters from others who formerly suffered from Bronchial Asthma, together with an important booklet on Dr. Fugate's discovery of the cause of Asthma and Hay Fever, will be sent free by The Fugate Co., Dept. 7718, 126 S. Meridian St., Indianapolis, Ind. No matter how serious your case, write for this free booklet.

"YES, TILL THE BAND GOES HOME"

EVERYBODY'S GETTING ON "THE BAND WAGON"

They're a hit. Like Chesterfield, they're . . . just . . . different. More and more smokers every day are changing to Chesterfield. "Everybody's getting on the band wagon"—and staying there! Only ripe, sweet Turkish and domestic tobaccos—and the purest paper—could make a cigarette this good. Milder—and what taste! They Satisfy—because they're made to do just that!

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Americans, it has been said, may not know how to make love, but they know how to make love songs. The writing of love songs has become a mass production in the republic. All of them sooner or later reach the radio.

The most occupied men on the microphone are the crooners, the megaphone maestros camped in the corners of the hotel grills. It is the amorous ballads of Tin Pan Alley that keep them occupied.

There must be thousands of them in the land. They swarm upon the loudspeakers as job-hunters swarm about the White House. Happy-go-lucky fellows for the most part, more intent upon saving their fan letters than their money. Though none of them would ever be selected for a collar advertisement, they manage to hold the bright young people in the hollows of their time-beating hands. It must be because they seem so sincere in their sentimental mumblings.

* * *

Most of them owe their startling success to broadcasting. They have become household gods from one end of America to the other. They have turned the nation to dancing as no nation has danced since Nero laid down his fiddle. And the swing of the economic pendulum makes not the slightest difference. When the maestros air their ballads the parlors hear neither the horn of plenty nor the drumbeat of poverty. They only hear "Sweet and Lovely."

* * *

I wonder if the Great White Father in Washington ever reflects upon the influence of the dance maestros. If he does he must be thanking his stars for the Lombardos, the Vallees and the rest. It's something to be able to bring forgetfulness, even though it's only temporary and even though it inflicts "Sweet and Lovely" upon a suffering land.

Hope Williams Off to Gotham And Richard Dix in 'Lost Squadron'

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 12.

First of all, William Le Baron has agreed that Hope Williams may return immediately to Broadway, where an Arthur Hopkins play awaits her. This with the understanding she will come back to Hollywood next summer for her talkie debut.

Next, the big special production of "Marcheta" has been postponed to allow Richard Dix to take the starring role in "The Lost Squadron." Joel McCrea will remain in the cast. Myrna Loy is [illegible] More about it later.

Another player affected by the "Marcheta" shift is Irene Dunne. Her next picture is [illegible] Eddie Cantor, and she may be given the lead in Hallabaloo, story of a female columnist.

Richard Dix

Victor Schertzinger also is temporarily without an assignment. The R-K-O [illegible] coming with comment [illegible] at Bill Le Baron's [illegible] decisions.

WE'VE ALL NOTICED IT

In some way or other Wilson Mizner and a Hollywood producer got into a discussion about Shakespeare.

The end came, says Mizner, when the producer raised the objection:

TODAY'S GOSSIP

The man in Hollywood who knows most about Greta Garbo is William Daniels, who took her first screen test in this country and who has photographed 15 of her pictures. The only one he missed was The Divine Woman. Sylvia Sidney is furnishing her 12 room house. Reginald Denny takes motion pictures every day of his new baby. Chuck Reisner now owns a sporting goods store in Hollywood. Ann Harding's new picture will be filmed in Palm Beach, Fla. Most industrious auto salesman in Hollywood is the gent who has parked for three days in front of the Paramount Studio. Whenever a star comes out, he asks him to sit in the shiny new sedan. George K. Arthur is back here with his one-man picture almost completed. It is called "The Crossing" and George wrote it, directed it and played its hero. He leaves Monday for Akron to photograph the new Navy dirigible. These will be the final scenes.

LITTLE DRAMAS

Many of the 500 wedding rings owned by the Paramount Jewelry department are souvenirs of real life tragedies. The studio buys them from dealers in old gold and platinum. These dealers buy them from women whose romances are dead, or whose need is so great that they must part with their last negotiable possession.

Sylvia Sidney wears one of these rings in "Ladies of the Big House." It bears the inscription: "J. V. to Dora." In this case, the history is known. J. V. was the son of a Forty-niner and he had the ring beaten from a large nugget of gold. Dora finally parted with it about five years ago when she needed the money to pay a lawyer's fee.

Deported?

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1931, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

Things I Never Knew Till Now
And they have to be good!

That the Colonel and Anne Lindbergh were on the British ship Hermes when informed of the passing of Dwight Morrow, and that Hermes, according to Mythology, brought news from the gods.

That last Monday a vaudeville house on 14th St. hung out its Standing Room Only sign at 10:30 a. m.

That Rudy Vallee doesn't get all the money he earns. NBC gets lots of it. They have him signed for a certain sum of coin and they farm him out to various things like "Scandals," etc.

That they replace collars free—in Scotland.

That the tablet at No. 1 Broadway states that on that site Washington once made his headquarters. It's a lie!

That an octopus changes colors quicker than a chameleon.

That readers titter because it was said here you can't get anything on English radios before noon and on Sundays before 3. Sure. You get church services and other solemn talks. No zip, though.

That a paroled convict in Okla must leave the State.

That Queen Isabella, a religious zealot, helped Columbus because he said his one ambition was to Christianize the heathen.

That a church is the center of New York's Chinatown.

That as soon as an Eskimo kills a polar bear he pours a drink of water down the bear's mouth. An act of kindness.

That Staten Island belongs to New York because in 1668 the Duke of York decided that all isles in the harbor that could be circumnavigated in 24 hours should belong to N. Y., otherwise to N. J.

That Chinon, France, was once the capital of England.

That a fourth class postmaster receives no salary. He rates a 50 per cent commission on his cancellations and other small fees.

That the two-mile stone on 3d Ave., near 17th St., New York City, still is protected by a law passed in 1788, which punishes defacers with a fine of three pounds and two years' imprisonment.

That you can get a B. A. degree at the City College of N. Y. for only $40—or $10 a year.

That in certain parts of Spain women actually eat mud for their complexion. (I know some crazy women, also.)

That in some parts of New Jersey you can arrange to have your motor car number the same as your phone number.

That cold milk starts to boil before cold water.

That one of the most famous women in the Salvation Army, who lost her hair in a fire, wears a wig.

That you can divorce her in Florida if she drinks hooch.

That fluffy dogs, such as poms, pekes and poodles get those brown rings under their eyes by eating red meat, which makes tears.

That Mellon is not the Treasurer of the U. S. (Look at your dollar bill if you have one). W. O. Woods is the actual treasurer.

That the most rigid steel is affected in some slight degree by the touch of a feather. (Probably ticklish.)

That etiquette prohibits the Chinese bride from eating at the wedding feast, which takes place soon after she has seen the groom for the first time. (Probably that's what spoils her appetite.)

That Monterey, Cal., has a sidewalk made of whalebone.

That Judge, Jr., dares you to say "United States Standard Twin Screw Steel Cruisers" very fast after a coupla drinks.

That Rudy Vallee has followed Amos 'n' Andy's idea and bars audiences while broadcasting. Upsets him.

That the most difficult language to master is the Hungarian. Because it has no associations with any other, except Finnish.

That the correct pronunciation of gigolo is zhee-go-lo.

That before the Chicago gang war began the population was 3,010,886. The present pop. of Chicago is 3,736,000.

That in spite of prohibition, as it is amusingly called, the U. S. devoured more pretzels last year than in 1916.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne will Guild the Nixon tonight, giving Pittsburgh the jump on New York in the matter of seeing "Reunion in Vienna" first. Matinees will be on the usual mid-week and week-end days.

Next week the Nix will go Barrie with "The Admirable Crichton"—if you pronounce it Cryton you will be correct. Walter Hampden—no less—will play the admirable capable butler and Miss Fay Bainter will be seen as Lady Mary in this comedy of modern Robinson Crusoes.

* * *

* * *

Tonight, in the Alvin, the Professional Players makes its bow as a local amusement factor, its first offering being Edith Barrett and Sir Guy Standing in "Mrs. Moonlight." There will be two "Moonlit" afternoons, Wed. and Sat.

The same thespic temple has a musical comedy up its sleeve for next week, this being "Meet My Sister," featuring Nancy McCord. Broadway had it for six mos., but it can spare us only a week. It is blazoned "forerunner of the ultra-modern." Aint that sump'n!

* * *

Small Timer, who stole that last bow, says the new oo-Jenny hat the dames are wearing gives the head of the house a soft finish.

* * *

Another cupla weeks and we'll be seeing the Irish Players, who are being brought into our midst by Jean Gros and P. M. Neilson. They open Monday night, November 2, in the Twentieth Century Club, with "The Playboy of the Western World." The engagement is for five nights, the last two in Carnegie Music Hall.

* * *

Small Timer says he is glad the world series turned out as it did, but that it could have gone either way, just depending on what was in the Cards, as the players with the most aces always win.

'Her Cardboard Lover' Is Keaton's Next

"Her Cardboard Lover," it is announced, will be the next Buster Keaton starring vehicle. Edward Sedgwick is directing. "Her Cardboard Lover," which was a stage farce that enjoyed a season of success on Broadway with Jeanne Eagels in the leading role, has been long the property of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

Gridiron Hero!

New Title for Hayes' Debuting Picture

"The Sin of Madelon Claudet" has been selected as the final title for the photoplay formerly known as "The Lullaby." This is the picture in which Helen Hayes, well-known stage star, will make her screen debut. The supporting cast

Mr. Torrence Composes Song for Tibbett

Ernest Torrence, who last year composed a song for John McCormack's concert engagements, has composed another for Lawrence Tibbett since appearing with him in "The Cuban Love Song." It is "Sweet Molly," a lilting Irish lyric, which Tibbett is to use as an encore number on his concert tour. Torrence started his career in grand opera, then took up composing when he went into pictures.

...sparkling vitality and a clear skin reflect rich, red blood cells

"IT is good of you to say those nice things," she replied.

Nature has its own way of making a strong body and a clear skin . . . by its use of the red-blood-cells.

So often the pressure of work and worry or some sickness "burn up" these precious red-blood-cells—then the hemoglobin percentage begins to fall and we wonder "what is the matter."

If this is your trouble, why not take steps to overcome it—remembering that a "tired feeling" may be a warning . . . so are pimples, boils and paleness.

For generations S.S.S. as a tonic has been helping people gain New Strength, better health and happiness. Its successful record of over 100 years in restoring strength and vitality to the blood surely warrants your giving it a good trial.

Why you should be interested in your Blood Count

The above shows the tiny blood vessels (highly magnified) carrying nourishment to the skin. It is important for body and skin health, as well, that the red cells are up to full fighting strength in number and vitality.

Whenever bad complexion or blemishes on the skin are due to a low blood count, or to a lagging appetite, the condition can be relieved or benefited by a course of S.S.S. If you are pale, or languid, give S.S.S. a trial. It may help you as it has helped thousands of others. It builds red blood cells. It is a splendid tonic.

(Upper) Microscopic view of healthy red blood-cells. The blood stream should contain about 5,000,000 of these cells to the cubic millimeter. They carry nourishment and oxygen to every part of the body; they also remove impurities from the tissues.

(Lower) Weak red-blood-cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength—they lack the power to resist infection and disease or to rebuild flesh and to carry away the impurities. Such a condition is often responsible for body weakness, paleness, sallow complexion, pimples and boils.

Has Working Wife the Right To Save Her Salary?

Maybe such an argument is raging in your home. If it is, it isn't surprising. More than one family has been busted wide open in this day of Working Wives by just such ruckus.

It's Marianne who's broadcasting . . . and the Big Boy is supplying the static.

"Where did you get that money?" he demanded when he found she'd acquired a savings account. "I'll bet you snitched it offa me!"

And so—

"Dear Sally:

"I wonder—am I all wrong? What do you think of this?

"I have been married for three years, and have worked every day of that time. The fact that I earn more money than my husband is of no consequence to me. But what makes me perfectly ill is this:

"I have always delighted in stinting on my lunches and pin money, and saving the odd nickles. This I have done for the past three years, and have saved quite a little sum. Of course, this was without my husband's knowledge.

"Last fall, while I was in the hospital, my husband found out about this money, and wanted to know where I had gotten it. In fact, he accused me of stealing it from him, a little at a time! This did not stop me, however. Since then, I have invested it wisely. And now he demands that I tell him what I have done with it.

PLANNED SURPRISE

"I ask you: Is there anything illegal or wrong about a woman saving her own money—the money that she herself earned, with her own hands and brain, and that her husband had nothing to do with?

"It always seemed to me that I had a right to save my money if I wanted to. But he seems to think that's all wrong.

"It so happens that I had intended to give him the securities I had bought, as a birthday present. But since he has acted the way he has, I vow I'd rather feed the starving Armenians with it than let him touch one red cent!

"It made me so happy to plan on surprising him. But the way he's acting . . well, I'm absolutely sore! It just burns me up!

"What do you think of it all?

"MARIANNE"

What do I think?

Well, on the face of it, he's being an idiot, of course, and cutting off his own nose . . as we humans usually do when we get suspicious and grabby.

HAS OBLIGATIONS

But, on the other hand, have you kept up your end, my dear? Remember, when you entered into this homemaking partnership, you assumed certain obligations. You were to contribute certain services to it—he was to contribute certain sums. Those obligations endure, though you have chosen to work in an office instead of a bungalow. And it's still up to you to do your half, regardless of your salary. Have you?

Or have you proceeded on the assumption that—"What's yours is mine but what's mine is my own?"

Think it over. Do you go 50-50 on the grocery and butcher bills, the rent, the gas and electricity. Or do you let him pay them all while you salt away your profits?

If so, hasn't he a right to think you're two-timing him? Seems to me he has. But maybe other wives differ.

How about it, Mrs. Jones? Mrs. Brown?

Fay King Wonders How the Many Debutantes Can All Marry in Own Set

By FAY KING

I was lately looking over the long list of this season's debutantes.

I couldn't help wondering how they will all manage to marry in their own set.

So many of the men to whom their choice is socially limited are galloping off to marry ladies of the screen, stage and opera.

Perhaps that is why many society girls are going upon the stage these days. It seems to be the best place to capture the young men of their own exclusive circles.

A debutante is probably just as susceptible to the fascinations of an actor or an opera singer as the young men of her social sphere, but she is more loyal to her family traditions and dutifully marries as they wish.

Dicky Heads an Emergency Expedition to Town

Junior reminded me irresistibly of an enraged bantam rooster as he faced his father and uttered his fiery defense of his cousin Hank. But he was so earnest and so loveable that I had hard work to keep from sweeping him up into my arms and hugging him enthusiastically. I did not speak or move, however, for two reasons. I knew that any show of affection would embarrass my son horribly and I also was keeping the tacit agreement always in force between Dicky and me that neither of us shall interfere with the other's discipline. This was distinctly Dicky's problem. I was in no way involved, and I meant to keep a strict policy of hands off.

HANK EXPLAINS

It was difficult to remain neutral, however, for in Dicky's own expressive jargon he certainly had "messed things up considerable." The sight of a child hurt always arouses his quick and tender sympathy, and—also his equally quick anger against the person responsible. But I knew that if he had taken a second thought, he would not have pursued the tactics with Hank which had brought Junior blazing to the older boy's defence, and which had made Hank sullen and rebellious. I could see his feeling plainly written in his face and eyes.

With wifely intuition born of long experience with my Peter Pan, I knew that Dicky was welcoming the way out shown him by Junior, although his momentary reaction to the rebuke was one of anger at the child's impertinence. Had he been a father of the old school, Junior would doubtless have experienced a painful interview in the woodshed. But his great love for his boy, his strong sense of humor, and, I hoped, also of justice, triumphed over his irritation, and I was not surprised to see him smile down at his belligerent young son.

"Of course I believe both you and Hank, son," he said, "and you're dead right. I wasn't fair. Sorry, Hank," turning to his nephew with the smile that I have never known man, woman or child to resist. "I'm sure it was an accident, but you'd better tell me how it happened."

"I was mad enough at him to burn him," he said slowly, and there welled up from my heart a great thankfulness at the boy's truth-telling. For Hank at Christmas time had been anything but frank.

"I can understand that," Dicky said as Hank hesitated. "What did he do, yell at you and make you burn the pants?"

I wondered if Dicky was purposely testing the boy, for he had heard that first cry from Roderick, which had been, "Now you've done it," and it had preceded his yell of pain. But Hank's answer was prompt.

"No, he didn't make me burn 'em," he said. "It was this way, sir. The iron was too hot, and when I put it on the cloth, it began to smoke right away. I jerked it off and Roderick yelled, 'Now you've done it!' And as he yelled, he came lunging up—you know the way little kids are, always wanting to see something—and I turned around to tell him to get out, and I had the iron in my hand, and his arm was out pointing at the cloth, and I couldn't get the iron out of the way. I was awful mad at the iron, and him, and everything—because these are all the clean white pants I have—but I didn't burn him on purpose."

EMERGENCY ORDER

"That was just the way it was, Dad," Junior hopped up and down in his excitement. "But what are the boys going to do now?"

Dicky went into action immediately.

"Boys, I'll give you five minutes to get into the clothes you wore down in the car. Junior, run down and tell Jim to bring the car around and leave it running. Madge, please telephone Bill Bates at Bridgehampton and tell him I'm coming over with the two boys for an emergency order of white flannel trousers. Also telephone the tailor over there. We may have to pin 'em up with safety pins or paper clips, but we'll get 'em. Now get going lads. I'll be seeing you!"

He was out of the door at the last word, tugging at the cords of his bathrobe. Junior was already halfway down the stairs and I made my own departure speedy. But Bill's voice followed me out.

"Aunt Madge! May we go down and get into the car as soon as we're dressed?"

DISTRESSED

"Surely." I smiled to myself as I went down the hall to the telephone. I guessed what was back of the request. With the painful self-consciousness of adolescent youths they were frantic for fear Marion would return before they were attired as they thought they should be for the evening.

Hank's voice stopped my hand, raised to take down the telephone receiver.

"Aunt Madge!"

His head was poked around his door, and his eyes were big with appeal.

"Yes, dear."

"When we come back, will Mary and the Underwoods be here?"

"Yes, they ought to be here by then," I replied casually.

"Gee!" His invariable explanation was flat and hopeless as he disappeared inside his door, and I stood still, my laughter muscles aching from repression, trying to find some way out for the distressed young nephews of my husband.

Household Hints

Lemons will keep for a great length of time if placed in a mason jar, covered with cold water, and sealed.

Applied to burns, a paste of bicarbonate of soda and water is very soothing. Cover the paste with some old linen or lint and bandage.

Tea Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. On a tea invitation of any sort, just where are the date and name written?

2. In introducing one's self, it is correct, is it not, to give one's first name, as well as the last? R.

1. You mean a tea invitation written on a visiting card, do you not? If the name is engraved on the card and the address is engraved in small letters in the lower right corner the other information is written above and below the name. If R. S. V. P. is to be written on the card (which is usually not done for any "at home" or for a tea that is written in the lower left corner. Just above that may be written the kind of party it is to be: "At home," "Dancing," "Bridge," "Music." Above the name may be written the date and the hours:

Friday, November the third

Four to seven o'clock.

2. Yes. "This is Grace Rutherfurd" is correct.

Take the Chair You Wish

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When eating in a restaurant or inn where people of breeding dine, must one take the chair offered by the waiter, even if it is the furthest away?

BERTHA.

Take the chair you wish to take. The fact that the waiter offers you a chair, that he puts his hand on a chair, does not mean that you must take that chair.

Telephone Etiquette

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

If Mrs. Smith calls up Mrs. Brown on the telephone which should be the one to say "Good-bye" to end the conversation? E.

Mrs. Smith should be the one to end the conversation. Since it was she who started the conversation, she should be the one to give the signal to end it. Mrs. Smith's object in wishing to speak to Mrs. Brown might be frustrated by an end being put to the conversation before she had really finished what she had to say.

Babies GAIN when guarded from Constipation!

BABY isn't gaining his six or eight ounces a week? Constipation may be the reason. It is behind most of a baby's troubles. Colic. Fretfulness. Gas. It keeps Baby from accepting or retaining the proper amount of food.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is good for any baby. It is a prescription for the bowels written by a famous doctor—one who attended over 5500 births without loss of one mother or baby—a record believed unique in American medical history.

Half a teaspoonful of this simple prescription often relieves occasional troubles like that in a few hours. If Baby is bottle-fed or for any other reason is regularly constipated, give half a teaspoonful daily until the little fellow is happy; gaining as he should.

The pleasant, syrupy flavor of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin commends it to children. Its gentle action makes it ideal for women. It doesn't sicken. It cannot gripe. So it is a blessing to elderly people. And it is thoroughly effective for the most robust man. All druggists.

Counting Dummy Tricks

As support for your partner's declaration, either at trumps or no-trumps, value honors of suits not bid by an adversary as follows: A, 3; K, 2; either Q, J or 10, 1 point each. A solid suit like A-K-Q-J is worth 2 points per card.

Unprotected honors should be valued as follows: A alone, value at only 2 points; K alone, 1 point; J-X, 0; 10-X-X, 0. Divide points by 2 to obtain probable assisting tricks.

Note that declarer and dummy value honors held in precisely the same manner. And why not? Six dollars in one pocket and four dollars in another pocket must be worth just $10 total, regardless of which pocket holds the number of dollars, even if some players value honors differently for the two partners or for trump makes and no-trumps. Common sense requires no explanation; eccentricities alone call for explanations.

Dummy's trumps are counted differently than declarer's because they possess a different sort of value. The declarer employs his trumps for pulling those held by adversaries. Dummy's trumps are of no value unless sufficient to shorten the number of leads required to pull adverse trumps, or unless dummy can ruff (trump) losing cards held by his party.

The declared counts nothing for ability to ruff; he can not win tricks twice with the same trumps; if he wins tricks by leading trumps he can not also win tricks by trumping with them.

Dummy counts 1 point for four small trumps; he counts 2 points for five or more small trumps. This value of dummy's trumps is because four small trumps about half the time save a trick that declarer expects to lose. Five or more trumps in dummy nearly always save one trick for his side.

With not fewer than three small trumps, dummy counts 4 points for twice ruffing a suit of which he is void; 2 points for one ruff of his singleton suit; 1 point for trumping a suit of which he holds only two cards. If dummy holds only two trumps count only 2 points for ruffing a void suit, and nothing for a singleton or a doubleton.

Hand No. 1.
♠-A-K-8
♥-J-5-3-2
♣-Q-10-7-4
♦-7-5

The count in support of hearts would be: Spades 5 points, trumps 2 points, clubs 2 points, diamonds 1 point for a possible ruff of the doubleton, total 10 points or 5 assisting tricks, worth two raises. At no-trumps: Spades 5 points, hearts 1 point, clubs 2 points, diamonds 0, total 8 points or 4 probable tricks, worth only one assist.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Quick Weight Reduction Is a Menace to Health

Within the past few years numerous serious ailments have been the penalty for unreasable efforts at losing weight. Unscientific weight reduction is a menace to health. The dangers are many, and warnings against them should be heeded.

Dr. Copeland

In years gone by, it was the fashion for women to wear corsets to control the figure. Now it is their aim, not to look thin, but actually to be thin. It is natural and right for women to strive after beauty, but no fashion should be followed at a sacrifice to health.

Recently I read of a girl who journeyed from California to New York by bus. She traveled day and night and had no nourishment except a daily cup of cocoa and a trifling quantity of toast.

Upon her arrival in New York the young woman had lost weight and boasted of her accomplishment. But very shortly she was in a hospital to be treated for the effects of the rigid diet.

If the public would only realize that weight reducing can be done slowly and gradually, a great deal of danger would be avoided. The eating of food is important for the maintenance of life and health. Starvation leads to lowered vitality and reducing must be used.

If you intend to reduce, choose your food carefully. Make sure that your daily diet contains the proper substances. This is the first requirement.

All foods are fattening if taken in excessive quantities. Some are more fattening than others. It is wise to learn the food values of different articles and omit them from the diet if there is a tendency to overweight.

Those who are desirous of reducing in weight must increase the amount of their exercise. When a balanced diet is provided and a program of exercise arranged, then a safe and sane method of reducing has been found. It is not safe and sane unless the quantity of food consumed is sufficient to meet the needs of the body. One must remember, too, that excessive exercise is as harmful as excessive dieting.

Let me warn you against the many unscientific medicines of unconfirmed value that have been offered to the public. Such medicines have actually been labeled and recommended as a means of reducing weight.

Most of these medicines are incapable of doing what is claimed for them. Many of them contain drugs that are harmful and even dangerous.

Please remember that you can reduce with safety by sensible eating, increasing your daily exercise, and abstaining from rich tempting desserts. This means of reducing may be slower, but it has the advantage of safety and is the only method you should follow.

CUBS-ROBINS PLAN SIX-PLAYER DEAL

THE PROPOSED DEAL for the trading of Outfielder Hack Wilson by the Chicago Cubs has taken another turn. Though the Cincinnati club is known to be angling for Wilson, the Cub management is said to prefer asking a dicker in another direction that will enable them to unload at the same time two additional players who are held to have outlived their usefulness in the Windy City. They are trying to put over a trade that will, if consummated, rank with the biggest completed in the major leagues for a long time, as it will involve no fewer than six men.

Babe Herman

Brooklyn is the club that has been approached on the proposition by the Bruin bosses. According to the word of a man who is in a position to know what he is talking about, the Cub chiefs have offered Wilson, Catcher Gabby Hartnett and Pitcher Pat Malone to the Robins in exchange for Outfielder Babe Herman, Pitcher Dazzy Vance and Catcher Alfonso Lopez. As long as there is a chance of making that swap no bids for Wilson from other sources will be considered.

THE STORY GOES that the six-player trade is being held up by the unwillingness of the Brooklyn club to include Herman. The remainder of the proposal is said to be acceptable to the Robin heads, but they do not want to part with Babe. They have offered to give Lefty O'Doul instead. The Cubs are holding out for Herman and there the matter rests.

In connection with the Brooklyn club's preparations for next season, it is also said that the plan to remove Wilbert Robinson as manager may be abandoned. Robinson's contract has expired, and the general understanding has been that it would not be renewed, but Director Dutch Carter, with the deciding vote between the Ebbets and McKeever factions, is strong for the veteran pilot and it is reported that Robbie can have the job for another year if he desires to stay.

THE CUBS ARE expected to put over at least one other deal during the winter, and it is likely to transfer First Baseman Jim Bottomley from St. Louis to Chicago for the 1932 season.

Bottomley's record of only eight hits in 17 games in his last three world series would appear to indicate that there are one or two better money players in the business, but evidently Rogers Hornsby still believes Sunny Jim can play ball well enough during the regular season to strengthen his club.

ACCORDING TO RUMOR, Bottomley is headed for the Cubs and will figure in a winter deal. Such a dicker was on a year ago, but a hitch developed over the price, and besides there was some uncertainty about Jim Collins. Gabby Street now feels sure of Collins for the first-base job next season, so there will be no room for Bottomley, and Jim is reported slated to replace Charley Grimm in the Cub lineup despite the fact that Grimm has just had one of the best seasons of his career.

Bill Hallahan

THERE IS NO denying that Pepper Martin and Burleigh Grimes are deserving of all the praises that are being heaped upon them for the part they played in bringing the world championship back to the National League, but Wild Bill Hallahan is another who cannot be omitted from the list of heroes.

To the average outsider it appears that Hallahan has not received his due in the handing out of the laurels. A hurler who pitched and won two full games, in which he held the powerful Macks to one little run in 18 innings, and then stepped in and saved the seventh game and the series when things were hanging in the balance following the collapse of Grimes, would seem to have earned a little more mention than he has been getting.

THE OUTCOME OF the world series was not only a good thing for the National League, but helpful to organized baseball in general. The American League's repeated victories had been taking a lot of color out of the classic and another success or two for the junior loop would have reduced the National to the level of a minor league and turned the derby into a joke, hurting interest all around. Prolonged domination of a sport by one club or one group or league eventually takes the life out of it.

No one can dispute that the Cards won on their merits. They beat the great Earnshaw twice and Grove once in six games pitched by that famous pair, something that American League clubs have never been able to do in the same number of consecutive meetings.

WHEREAS THE A's depended solely on those two pitchers and sheer hitting power, the Redbirds flashed a scientific game, brought speed into play to a far greater extent than their opponents, and played smarter baseball at bat, on the bases and in the field. Though the brilliancy of an individual player, Pepper Martin, had much to do with the success of the Cards, there was a distinct team edge as well for the National Leaguers. They outhit, outpitched and outsmarted the Mackmen, and from every angle deserved their victory.

WHILE SATURDAY BROUGHT disappointment to the followers of Notre Dame, Princeton, Yale, Navy and other prominent teams in football, it was a satisfying day for Pittsburgh fans, with the Panthers crushing West Virginia, 34 to 0, at the Stadium and Carnegie Tech bumping off Georgia Tech, 13 to 0, after the long trip to Atlanta.

Pitt, in particular, gave its supporters plenty to rave about. The Sutherlands were slow in working up steam and getting under way, a fault that soon will be remedied, no doubt, but once they cut loose, the Panthers showed power, speed and cohesion, with a surprisingly good aerial attack thrown in, which makes it certain even at this early date that the Blue and Gold is going to be a strong bidder for eastern championship recognition.

TONIGHT SHOULD EITHER put Primo Carnera out of the picture for keeps as a possible heavyweight championship contender or send him toward an eventual match for the title. The 15-round bout with Jack Sharkey in Brooklyn, if on the up and up, should settle the question.

Marty Brill

Nobody knows whether Carnera can fight or not. This will be the real test. Sharkey is the most undependable and erratic fighter in the game and there's never any telling whether he'll perform like a champion or a novice, but if he's within a mile of normal, and really trying, he ought to win easily.

MARTY BRILL, speaking on the art of blocking, which won all-America honors for him last year: "It's all in the angle of hitting. Side-crack a fellow at the proper angle, and with your shoulders, and you'll accomplish what you want to do. But it's practice, practice, practice. Then more practice. Never hit him with your head. Feint with your head, delay him, and then cross-check him." Brill believes that much of Knute Rockne's success was due to the fact that he was a master of defense. "Somehow, he could always make you do your best," Marty says. "And then again, it was his defensive ability that counted for a lot. He would plan a defense before each game, and it was a defense."

GRID FAVORITES SCORE WINS

PEPPER MARTIN OUTSTANDING SERIES HERO

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

King football is now upon his throne where he will reign resplendent for the next two months, but the diamond game has many followers who throughout the cold months will argue and discuss the many high points of the still fresh world series, wherein the most glorious emblem of the sport was recovered by the National League.

The actors in the brilliant baseball drama have scattered to the corners of the earth. Some of them are about to take to the high seas whence they will carry the banner of ball and bat to Japan. Others have folded their tents as it were, but they will soon pitch them again in quiet nooks where they may fish or hunt while others of the athletes have hit the barnstorming trail.

To all those who fight for the National League the victory is a sweet one. John A. Heydler, for example, has waited a long time to emit a cheer, and John Arnold today was about 10 years younger than he seemed to be on the night of the first game, the Cardinals having been toppled in that contest.

HEYDLER EAGER TO COP

Heydler takes his baseball seriously. In the five successive years of American League supremacy the president of the senior loop has suffered much in silence and there were times when he did not remain silent.

On the eve of the conflicts that have just passed into history Heydler was articulate to some of the newspapermen, who he knew were of National League persuasion.

"They've got to get out there and fight," shouted the dignified boss of the league.

And that is just what the Cardinals did. Moreover, they played heads up baseball, their daring and efficient base running being a big feature of the splendid victory. Indeed, I think that the dash of Pepper Martin, Frank Frisch, George Watkins and one or two others had a lot to do with upsetting the morale of the clever American Leaguers.

Martin, of course, came out of the scraps as the biggest hero, and this is as it should be. Yet, while on the question of heroic figures, let us pause to consider a few others.

PITCHERS DO WELL

Bill Hallahan and Burleigh Grimes were courageous flingers. Hallahan held the Mackian band to one run in 19 innings of wonderful pitching. Bill won two games, and he gave Burleigh a lift as the veteran won his second encounter. George Earnshaw and Lefty Grove were great, and too much cannot be said of Al Simmons, George Watkins and Mickey Cochrane, despite the fact that Cochrane was not the Mickey of the other two years in Athletic supremacy. Illness and injuries undoubtedly hurt Cochrane in the scraps that dethroned his club.

In this writer's opinion, the most effective performer in the whole seven game, when one considers the science of the sport, was Catcher Jimmy Wilson, of the winning club. Perhaps I am prejudiced in this viewpoint, because I have upheld Wilson as the National League's greatest catcher in the past few years.

WILSON SHINES

Wilson's acts, for the most part, were not visible to the fans, but those who have watched him for years could appreciate. In a measure, the smart things he did as the battles were waged.

One year ago, Wilson sat on the bench with a bad leg and watched

PANTHERS BEAT W. VA., SKIBOS COP IN SOUTH

By JESS CARVER

A composite photo of the famous Four Horsemen, erstwhile of Notre Dame, but now of Duquesne, Michigan State, Villanova and Ohio State, if taken today would register most anything except serenity of countenance. It was a tough week-end for the Four Horsemen employing the Notre Dame style of play and for schools in general, for not only did the mother school have its 20-game win streak halted, when Northwestern battled the Irish to a scoreless deadlock, but several other schools coached by former Notre Dame greats were whipped.

Generally, however, favorites came through with victories. Locally, Pitt continued its killing pace by walloping West Virginia, the Panthers piling up touchdowns in the second after having put in a ragged and unsatisfactory first half hour. Carnegie Tech came back nobly after the defeat at the hands of Wash-Jeff, withstood the tiresome trip to Atlanta and the heat of a Georgia day and defeated Georgia Tech.

VIOLETS TRIUMPH

In the East, New York University swatted the annual Georgetown bugaboo under a 34-0 score. Yale lost to Georgia, as it has been doing for the past three years and Brown made it three in a row over Princeton. The Old Liners of Maryland upset the Navy; Colgate had a tough time with Lafayette and Holy Cross not only held Dartmouth to a 14-7 score but ruined four of the Big Green's star linemen.

Penn scored a far from satisfactory 14-0 victory over Franklin and Marshall. Syracuse finally licked Ohio Wesleyan, and how, 48-0. Cornell fought off a stubborn Richmond University team, 27-0; Penn State gave Temple a tougher battle than the Owls figured on and durned if Maud Crum's Allegheny Gaitors didn't sock the tar out of Westminster. Wash-Jeff beat Marshall after a slow start.

The victory was costly to the Prexies, however, for Stewie Wilson suffered an injury that may keep him out of the lineup for at least three weeks. His place at fullback will be taken by Bob Deacle.

Geneva turned in a 7-0 win over Thiel Friday night, and yesterday, Waynesburg added another victim to its growing list by crushing Bethany. Grove City rode over Slippery Rock State Teachers as the two institutions resumed relations after a 17-year layoff and New River State, an up and coming West Virginia institution, scored about half as many points against North Dakota Wesleyan as did Davis-Elkins the week previous.

BATTLES SHOWS HOW

But to get back to the Four Horsemen for a line or two, Gyp Battles led West Virginia Wesleyan into town Friday night and made things miserable for Elmer Layden and Joe Bach. Battles gave as fine an individual performance as has been seen here for years in beating the locals. The Duquesne team deserved to be beaten. Its line play was very ragged and the blocking and interfering awful.

The quarterback of the Horsemen, Harry Stuhldreher, saw his Villanova crew lose to Duke; the Army used Sleepy Crowley's Michigan Staters plenty rough at West Point, and Don Miller has something to do with that Ohio State team, which was taken into camp by Vanderbilt.

HOTELMEN PLAY FINAL EVENT

The Hotel Club and Restaurant Men's Golf Association is holding its final tourney of the season today at the Stanton Heights Golf Club.

The St. Clair Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, is staging a one-day tournament today at the Highland Country Club. A dinner is to follow at 6:30 o'clock.

Two events are slated Thursday. Charley Manning has been assured of a representative number of pros in attendance for the Shannopin pro-amateur competition, while a good-sized entry is anticipated for the Pittsburgh Field Club seniors' championship. The club's sauerkraut "Schlachtfest" will not be had until next month, however. The Field Club will hold its annual meeting Thursday night, at which five directors are to be elected.

W. B. Morris won in the morning, with a net 71, and J. B. Baker copped in the afternoon, with a net 72, in the sweepstakes events yesterday at the Edgewood Country Club. The scores of the leaders:

Morning, first division—W. B. Morris, 84-13—71; W. D. Stewart, 89-14—75; R. A. Neal, 87-12—75.
Second division—A. L. Petty, 97-23—74; W. Turner, 98-22—76; J. Boardman, 102-26—76; W. E. Brown, 97-20—77.
Afternoon, first division—J. B. Baker, 81-9—72; P. R. Kennedy, 85-9—76; W. J. Lowrie, 88-11—77; A. A. Reed, 93-14—79; F. W. Rockstraw, 90-11—79.
Second division—H. C. Pollock, 97-22—75; W. N. Quartz, 96-23—73; S. J. Radcliffe, 96-19—77; H. C. Macquown, 104-25—79.

GAMES TODAY

COLLEGIATE

Boston College vs. Fordham, Boston.
Niagara vs. St. Johns, Niagara.
Norman vs. Jacksonville, Norman Park.

Sport Vignettes

To repay their home fans, who quit on them in the deciding game to the extent that the park was only half filled, the Cardinals went ahead and won the world series . . . Or to spite them, if you please . . . Well, anyway, they finally got the series over with and saved the dopesters, who picked the Athletics, but predicted that the series would end some time . . . Connie Mack didn't set a record with three series triumphs in a row, but he won't have so many holdouts next year . . . And maybe it was in the Cards to win as soon as Manager Gabby got them planted on the right Street.

Except for football, hockey, basketball, billiards, bowling, boxing, wrestling and tiddledewinks, sports scribes now can go to sleep for the duration of the fall and winter. . . . West Virginia's Mountaineers thought they had run afoul of Pepper Martin at the Stadium, Saturday, but it was only the Pitt team in action. . . . Would you say the boys teehied hard in the Carnegie Tech vs. Georgia Tech game at Atlanta Saturday? . . . One of these days Yale will beat a University of Georgia eleven, and the same day ol' Jupiter Pluvius will not ruin a big classic such as the Notre Dame-Northwestern scoreless tie of Saturday.

Just in case you don't know, it will not be considered good form to take your shooting piece to the big hunt Greensburg today . . . What's the world coming to, with all of the southpaws taking control of things? . . . There's Mose Butch left-handing against Johnny Datto in the windup at Motor Square Garden tonight, and Joey Spiegel, another lefty, in the semi-final, and Frankie Bojarski, of Erie, another one of those fork-handers, the most talked-about young boxer in the district, and Lefty Grove and Bill Hallahan and Rube Walberg . . . And even Stew Wilson, of W. & J., who does things with his wrong foot . . . With Connie Mack, a guy named Grimes ranks as Public Enemy No. 1.

The boys who saw him strut his stuff against the Dukes the other night still are talking about that fellow Cliff Battles, of West Virginia Wesleyan . . . There's a lad who knows how to do everything but blow up a football . . . In an article in Collier's, Glenn Warner says the Carlisle Indians of 1907 were the most perfect machine he ever coached aside from the Pitt team of 1916 . . . With only Western Reserve playing Pitt at the Stadium, Tech idle and the Dukes meeting Georgetown at Forbes Field Friday night, a lot of folks this week-end will be wondering when the football season opens . . . Battling Gizzy will make the McKeesport fans dizzy Thursday night, following a long layoff.—HARRY KECK.

W. Va., Marshall Charity Tilt Asked

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Oct. 12.—(AP.)—A proposal that West Virginia University and Marshall College play a post-season game for charity will be placed before athletic officials of the two institutions this week by officials of the Community Chest here. In saying the teams would be asked to play, Dr. James S. Klumpp, chairman, added he expected officials of the school to favor the proposal.

PEPPER SERIES' SEASONING

By NICK ALTROCK

Baseball's Funny Man.

EN ROUTE HOME, Oct. 12.—Well, folks, any review of the series is practically a biography of Pepper Martin. Looking back on the string of seven games, Pepper was the seasoning, the basting and the gravy. The A's first world series mistake was back in August when they failed to even scout Mr. Martin. They figured a rookie playing his first year in the big league wasn't worth wasting note-paper on.

Nick Altrock

When it came to stealing bases, Pepper showed 'em what grand larceny was like. The A's scouts' only alibi for overlooking Martin was that he played the entire season wearing a bushel basket. And your light can't shine when you're wearing eight pecks of wicker-work. That's the A's scouts' story to Connie Mack, and they are stuck with it.

TOUGH WINTER FOR PEP

Anyway its going to be a sweet series for Pepper to dream about these long winter evenings. If Pep happens to be a somnambulist, he will be running bases in his sleep—no walking for that boy. But, maybe it isn't going to be a quiet winter for Pepper. If things take their natural course, he will be boosting horse collars or breakfast food on a national hookup at $2 a syllable, starring with Greta Garbo in the movies, running bases for Henry Ford, taking 40 solid weeks of vaudeville, and

MORGAN VICTOR OVER CECIL

Buff Donnelli, former Heidelberg soccer star, was the hero in Morgan's 4-3 victory over Cecil at Cecil yesterday. Donnelli, showing the same dash that characterized his brilliant work with Heidelberg, scored three goals in rapid succession to enable his mates to score their one-point victory.

The Morrys scored a 2-1 victory over Gallatin. Curry defeated Bridgeville, 3-0; Moon Run swamped South View, 5-2; Cedar Grove bowed to Gladden, 3-1; Beadling was an easy victor over Scott, 7-2; Fitz Henry lost to Hill Crest, 3-2; Manown defeated Alla Hollow, 3-0; Primrose defeated Rose A. C., 5-1; Castle Shannon was a winner over Home Circle, 3-1, and Heidelberg defeated Cuddy, 5-2.

Meyers to Lease New Castle Bowl

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Oct. 12.—It became known here yesterday that owners of Castle Bowl and Apples Meyers, of Pittsburgh, had practically closed negotiations by which the Pittsburgh boxing promoter would lease the bowl effective November 1. Legal aspects of the transfer are now being completed. Meyers plans, if one lease is taken, to operate the bowl under his state permit and will manage and dictate its policy.

CLAIRTON TO BE STIFF FOE FOR CHARLEROI

By JULIUS LEVIN

Eighteen Western Pennsylvania high school football teams, the majority of them eligible to compete for the Syracuse Cup, emblematic of the W. P. I. A. L. championship, today are listed among the "also-rans" as a result of suffering their first defeat or being held to a tie score during the past week-end.

Johnny Coleman

Among the schools which were defeated or tied for the first time during the past week were Ambridge, Monessen, Beaver, Elizabeth, Homestead, Mapletown, Bethel, Vandergrift, Connellsville, East Bethlehem, Fayette City, Greenville, Johnstown, South Brownsville, Norwin, Jeannette and Mt. Lebanon.

CLAIRTON WINS

Charleroi, Greensburg, Clairton, Altoona, Beaver Falls, Burgettstown, California, East Pittsburgh, Peabody, Edgewood, Ford City, Freeport, Mercer, Sharon, McKeesport, McDonald, Midland, Monongahela, New Kensington, Washington and Wilkinsburg were among the district elevens to keep their gridiron records free from defeat.

The procession, however, is being led by a half dozen teams, each of which has won four straight victories. They are Beaver Falls, Charleroi, Freeport, Greensburg, Midland and Wilkinsburg. The other undefeated teams show a string of three successive triumphs.

The field of Syracuse Cup contenders is certain to be reduced somewhat Saturday night when Clairton and Charleroi clash in the Magic City baseball park. Charleroi was extended to the utmost to continue its winning streak at the expense of Fayette City, while Clairton ran up a 33-7 score on Scott High, of North Braddock.

RECORD INTACT

While the scoreless tie Ambridge played with the powerful Monessen eleven likely will have a tendency to eliminate both from the running for the title, the Beaver Valley machine made it 16 straight games in which its goal line has not been crossed.

East Pittsburgh High, under the coaching of Johnny Coleman, is enjoying one of its best seasons and is setting the pace for all rivals in that section of the valley. East Pittsburgh has defeated Pitcairn, 6-0; East McKeesport, 19-14, and Trafford, 14-7. Their big objective is the battle with Turtle Creek Union on November 26, despite the fact Foxy Miller's eleven already has been eliminated. Two of Coleman's most dependable performers this year are Tommy Ferentz, halfback, and Howard Peterson, an end. Both are playing their final year at East Pittsburgh.

ilated by Georgetown takes some of the color out of the appearance of the Hoyas here this week for a game with the Dukes, but Tommy Mills likely will have his gang all pepped up for a comeback, which makes the outlook dark for Duquesne.

Purdue, ranking favorite to win the Western Conference title, stepped forth and nosed out a dark horse, Illinois. Michigan forward passed its way to a win over Chicago. Minnesota fought off Stanford for three periods on the coast, and Auburn held Wisconsin to a 7-7 draw. Iowa lost another one, this time to Texas A. and M. and Indiana had a day off.

On the coast, California actually broke into the victory column by nosing out the Olympic Club. Stanford, as reported before, took Minnesota in an intersectional clash. Southern California continued on its comeback road by pulverizing Washington State, the defending Conference champions. Oregon beat Washington University.

PITT NEEDS POLISH

Although impressive enough in beating back West Virginia, Pitt evidenced the need of more polish. The team started very slowly. This may have been because of the presence of a new man in the backfield, big John Luch, but the coaches had better remedy this between now and the time for the next big test, the biggest of the year, with Notre Dame at South Bend. A slow start against the Irish will be fatal.

Carnegie, according to reports, had the old zipper and speed against Georgia Tech. Capt. Armentrout held a big edge in the punting, which was to Carnegie's great advantage. He kept the Engineers in the hole, much as did Battles against the Dukes Friday, and he and Kavel smashed and slammed at the Tornado tackles and ends with fine results.

Pitt is slated to meet West Virginia on October 1 of next year, in spite of rumors to the contrary. Dame Rumor has it, however, that the Panthers and Mountaineers will discontinue relations at the termination of their two-year contract. W. D. Harrison Pitt manager of athletics, said that no steps have been taken in that direction at this time.

PLAID INTERCEPTS TORNADO PASS

LEWIS, CARNEGIE TECH END, SNARES BALL AGAINST GEORGIA TECH

Bit of action in Carnegie Tech's 13-0 victory over Georgia Tech at Atlanta Saturday. Lewis, Carnegie end, is returning 18 yards after intercepting a forward pass. Tech scored in the second and fourth periods. The game was played under a warm sun.

MY LIFE STORY

By

PEPPER MARTIN

Hero of 1931 World Series

Pepper Martin

FIRST CHAPTER

It gets me all skittish like to be sitting down and piecing together the story of my life so that people that want to can read something about a ball player that was just shucks before this world series began and is no different just because he went out and made a few hits and did some running around the bases.

I tell you I'm all dizzy from people being so nice to me and sending me presents and wanting me to be an actor for big money.

It seems powerful strange to me what a lot of changing around can be done in a fellow's life by a few extra hits and runs.

PLANNED HUNTING TRIP

When this series began Ruby (that's my mighty sweet little wife) and I planned that we would hustle right back to Oklahoma and get set for a big hunting trip. Next to baseball, I like hunting best.

Been doing it all my life, Ruby is a crack shot and we certainly have had fun since we were married nearly four years ago going hunting. We figure that the biggest fun of all would be after this series because I'd get a cut of the money and we could splurge a little bit on that, although Ruby, the family banker, isn't so strong for splurging.

She's a careful spender and always is looking ahead for tomorrow and the way she is handling things now I know that whatever extra cash I'll make will be put away safely for later on for Ruby and Mary Aline (that's my two-and-one-half-year-old baby) and myself.

CALLS SUCCESS LUCK

Well, I got those extra hits, and people began to say it's great work, not figuring at all that it is mostly luck. When we went to Philadelphia for the game there, I was just another of the Cardinals, but the old horseshoe went right along with me, I did some pretty fair hitting there and some running, and, when I got back to St. Louis, I found that theatrical people wanted me to be an actor. Radio people wanted me to do some talking and I got other offers to do this and that.

Sam Breadon is boss of the Cardinals and is a great business man, whereas I am only a ball player, and I know I am only a ball player. So I put all of the offers in Mr. Breadon's hands and told him he is my business manager and I will do as he says. He accepts most of the offers and so now I am doing an act and I'll be so busy in the big towns that the shooting party that we had all fixed up is no go at all.

SETS STORY STRAIGHT

Since the middle of last week, when the boys began writing me up and I read some of what was written I find that somebody must have been fooling them a little bit about my early career as a baseballer. They've got me playing on teams that I never heard about and for towns I never was in and they've got me doing stunts I never did.

I'd like to get these things straightened out in this story. They're right when they say I was born in Temple, Okla., on February 29, 1904. That made things economical for my people. They had to give me a birthday party only once in every four seasons. We moved to Oklahoma City in 1910, and that has been the home town since.

FAN AS A BOY

I had enough schooling to make it so that I can write fairly well, but when I'm talking I'm just native Oklahoma. With me, when I'm talking, "getting" is "gittin'" and I do like the rest of the boys, drop out most of the "g's" on the end of words and use plenty of "ain'ts." But, of course, when writing I try to put a little polish on it. Ever since I was old enough to handle a baseball I loved the game. When I was 9, I delivered morning newspapers in Oklahoma City, and that meant I had to get going on my route at about 4 in the morning. When I'd get my job finished, I would spend hours reading the sports pages. The Red Sox were going great in those days and they were my favorite team. I had a pretty good memory as a kid, and I knew by heart the averages of pretty nearly every big leaguer.

I saved enough money out of my earnings as a newsboy to buy my first glove and I had it stuck in my back pocket wherever I went and whatever I did. Not so many kids in my neighborhood had gloves, and owning that mitten gave me almost as much happiness as a couple of home runs in a world series game. I went through grade school in Oklahoma City and then entered Irving Junior High School.

QUIT SCHOOL TO WORK

They asked me if I could play football and I told them "sure," so they gave me a tryout. Football is a game where, if you are fast and can hit a line hard, and aren't easily hurt, you get to going good. At least, I found it that way, and, after the first workout, they made me a halfback. I held the job all through that season and our team wasn't beaten. The next year, I went to Classen High. I made the team there and played one game. We won that one. I quit school the following week because things at home were so the best thing for me to do was to go out and get a job and earn money instead of fiddling around and getting an education.

While I was at school, I did not play baseball in a school game. The only playing I had done up to that time was with some of the hick teams around the neighborhood. The first regularly uniformed club I was with was the Second Presbyterian Church team. I am a Baptist, but that didn't make any difference with those boys.

BEGINS BASEBALL CAREER

I nearly lost my voice trying to make sure they heard my "yes." That was along in 1921, when I was not quite 17.

It wasn't until 1924 that I started a sure enough professional career. I guess I wouldn't be started yet if it hadn't been for Cliff Campbell, of Oklahoma City. He's the fellow who thought I was a ball player, when all time I was sort of sure in my heart I wasn't, but trying all the time to improve my game.

This was also the first series when two different kinds of baseballs were used. The only difference Uncle Nick could see was that the American League ball made better fouls. Pepper Martin didn't seem to have any trouble autographing both baseballs with his bat.

SEALS RETAIN FLAG

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—San Francisco took over the Pacific Coast League pennant here Saturday night by winning its fourth straight game of the playoff with Hollywood, 5 to 4, at Wrigley Field. The victory was the second of the series for the Seals' star righthander, Sam Gibson.

CHISOX SIGN FONSECA AS MANAGER

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Lou Fonseca was named manager of the White Sox and given a two-year contract.

Fonseca, who came to the White Sox during the 1931 season from Cleveland in a trade for Willie Kamm, succeeds Donie Bush, who resigned Friday.

BUSH KEEPS SCORING LEAD

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Running wild against Middlebury to the tune of three touchdowns, Louis Bush, the little sophomore of the Massachusetts Aggies football team, held his lead among the individual scores of the East this week by bringing his total for three games up to 56 points.

Bush has scored nine touchdowns and has added two extra points for his margin over Winters, of Davis and Elkins, who has lugged the ball over nine times for a 54-point total. Wabbles Newitt, of Columbia, is third with 52 points.

New York University's triumph over Georgetown boosted the Violets into the lead in team scoring among major colleges in the East. New York University has scored 153 points in three games for a four-point lead over Columbia. Army holds third place with 147 and Syracuse fourth place with 143.

The actual scoring lead in the East, however, belongs to Davis and Elkins, of Elkins, W. Va., playing a minor college schedule this year. Davis and Elkins has counted 173 points in four games.

'CHASE STARS IN BIG HUNT

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 12.—The most outstanding steeplechasing program in the history of Western Pennsylvania is slated for this afternoon at Hunt Lands, on the estate of Mr. and Mrs. George R. McNary, here.

It is the sixth annual championship event of the Associated Hunts of Western Pennsylvania, and is expected to prove a big social and sporting feature. Six races make up the program, which will get under way at 3 o'clock, the final event being listed for 4:30. Three of the races are for farmer members of the Westmoreland Hunt.

Five hunt clubs are associated in the sponsoring of the program, the Westmoreland, Rolling Rock, Indiana, Sewickley and Pittsburgh. Many of the owners will ride their own horses. Red Fire, with two victories and needing only one more to annex permanent possession of the trophy, is an entrant in the concluding feature, the Western Pennsylvania Cup, as is also Waverly Star, which finished second in the Grassland Steeplechase in Tennessee last year.

Among the owners represented with entries are: Edgar J. Kaufmann, Dr. R. McK. Lynch, Mrs. George R. McNary, Mrs. F. M. Gould, Allison Stern, Ernest L. Woodward, T. W. Durant, R. K. Mellon, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Burke Rodgers, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hamilton, J. North Fletcher, Ben K. Carr, Mrs. Alfred Nathan, Jr., William Garth, Mrs. T. E. Cottman, William M. Buckley, John W. Lawrence, Mrs. W. A. Wadsworth, Harry W. Kirkover, Mrs. Ralph Lynch, W. W. Lanahan and Howard Bruce.

ROONEYS TOP WEST VIEW

By TOM BIRKS

Despite the fact rain fell throughout the afternoon, large crowds attended yesterday's West Penn Conference tilts at West View and McKeesport.

The J. P. Rooneys kept their undefeated status by beating West View, 9 to 0, and the Olympics found Burns pretty tough, but won 6 to 0.

Jimmy Rooney booted a field goal from the 25-yard stripe to score first at West View. He also made the only touchdown in the second quarter.

John Karcis, of the Rooney team, former Carnegie Tech fullback, suffered a broken leg in the game and will be out for the remainder of the season. He is being treated by Dr. J. M. Rodgers.

At McKeesport the only score came in the second period when Ganzy Benedict hurled a pass over Sharkey's head into the waiting arms of Newlin.

In a McKees Rocks Division One game, the Rox Rangers defeated Christy Park, 13 to 0, and at the Frazier street grounds, Oakland Community lost to the Broadway Mounts, 6-0.

In other lightweight conference tilts, the Sonny Boys topped the Veronas, 21-0; the Papales defeated Allison Park, 7-0; Westinghouse and Whitaker tied, 0-0; Bloomfield Civics won from Twenty-third Ward, 20-6, and Oakland Panthers tripped Export, 25-6.

Tarentum Firemen, Arnold, St. Rosalia, Chimak A. C., Cronenweth, New Idea, Benton A. C., Trafford Indians, Westlake Odds, Highland Grove, Williams, Filo A. C., Lingart Panthers, N. B. Firemen, Fifteenth Ward, Snee, Carrick Odds, Brentwood, Hahne Bulldogs, Millvale Amici, Ponzie, Knapil, Rooney Reds, Beltzhoover and Comet won other independent contests.

VINES DEFEATED

HAWTHORNE MUTUELS

the Athletics win the first two games. He was able to take his place behind the bat in the third scrap, and the Redbirds proceeded to win two games. They lost the third contest on Foxx's homer and eventually were polished off. But Wilson was on the job from the start in the fights of this month, and any of his mates will tell you what he meant to them.

The Cardinals are the monarchs of baseball in their own right. They won the season's series from every club in their league, and that is the test of a champion.

The Redbirds did better than split even with each of their seven rivals in the 22 games played with each club. They bowed to nobody. The Pirates, by the way, gave them trouble all year, the Ensmen tripping them no less than 10 times in the 22 scraps.

STREET SMART PILOT

There has been some criticism of Gabby Street's leadership in the series, but Street can point to the ultimate result when his critics pan him. I think he should have kept Andy High in every game in which a right-hander opposed the Redbirds, and I feel he took plenty of time in getting Jim Bottomley out of the undeserved cleanup position. Yet Gabby made some smart moves, too. Apparently he allowed Watkins to bust one in the third inning of Saturday's scrap with High on first and one out. The Athletics evidently expected a bunt, Earnshaw laid the ball in the alley, but Watkins took a healthy cut and drove out a prodigious homer that shook the enemy from cellar to rooftops. That was smart stuff.

SEVEN SERIES MARKS FALL

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Twelve record performances marked the 1931 world series, including the displacement of seven former records and the equaling of five others.

6—Most series umpired, 15, by William J. Klem, National League, breaking own former record.

7—Most two-hit pitching performances, in succession, one series, 2, by Burleigh Grimes of Cardinals and George Earnshaw of Athletics in third and fourth games. Equals feats of Ed Walsh of Whitesox and Mordecai Brown of Cubs in 1906.

10—Most errorless games, both clubs, one series, 9, 5 by A's and 4 by Cardinals, breaking former mark of 8 by Yankees and Giants in 1921.

11—Most shutouts, both clubs, one series, 4, including 45 A's and 10 Cardinals, beating former record of 82 by Giants and Yankees in 1921, eight games.

THE COACH'S VIEWPOINT

By Howard Harpster

Dick Hanley, popular Northwestern football coach, was a happy man Saturday afternoon as he walked about the dressing room following the big game at Soldier Field, Chicago, and he wasn't at all hesitant about telling his boys that he was well pleased. The Northwestern players had made a great fight, and, although they didn't defeat Notre Dame, they put an end to the long winning streak the Irish have enjoyed for the past two years by playing their popular opponents to a standstill.

I ran into Bill Kern and Eddie Baker, former Pitt stars, who were on hand to look over the Notre Dame team for Dr. Sutherland, and the three of us enjoyed the battle from the covered press box while some 80,000 less fortunate spectators received what probably was the worst drenching of their lives.

Howard Harpster

The game, so far as thrills and spectacular runs were concerned, was a rather drab affair, but both teams played with a viciousness that clearly showed the intense rivalry between them. The play was clean throughout, but the tackling and blocking were almost savage at times.

Because of the sloppy condition of the field, forward passes were out of the question. The defensive backs played up very close to their lines, and this fact made it doubly hard for the offensive team to advance the ball by scrimmage. The result was that the game turned into a kicking duel between Northwestern's sophomore fullback, Olson, and Schwartz, Notre Dame's great running back. Honors were about even, with both players turning in some of the best kicks made anywhere. Schwartz did most of his kicking from behind the Irish goal line, but he thought nothing of kicking from there out to beyond the middle of the field.

In the second quarter, Northwestern recovered two Notre Dame fumbles and each time made an advance deep into the Irish territory. One one occasion, Hanley's team carried the ball to the four-yard line, where it missed a first down by less than one foot. It was stopped on the six-yard line the second time.

With five minutes of the last quarter remaining to be played, Notre Dame's left tackle, Krause, broke through and blocked Olson's punt. The ball struck the big tackle squarely on the chest and with such force that it rolled 15 yards toward the Northwestern goal. Here was Notre Dame's golden opportunity to win the game, and, as a matter of fact, it easily could have scored a touchdown had any one of three players had the presence of mind to clearly grasp the situation.

As the ball caromed off Krause's chest, three Notre Dame men dashed after it. The kicker, Olson, had slipped to the ground and was out of the play and the Northwestern backs were stretched out on the ground, having attempted to block out the Notre Dame linemen. The result was that there wasn't a Northwestern player within 15 yards of the ball when the three Irish players recovered it on the Northwestern 20-yard line.

Not one of the three made an attempt to pick up the ball and run with it, even though no opponents piled on them. Finally, one of the Northwestern players sauntered over to where the three were lying and the official then declared the ball dead.

The rules state very clearly that "if for any reason a kicked ball from scrimmage does not cross the scrimmage line it may be recovered by any player. If it is recovered by the kicking team it is dead at the spot of recovery and counts as a down. If it is recovered by the opponents it may be advanced." (Rule book—page 32, rule 7, article 2.)

In other words, any one of the three Notre Dame players could have scooped up the ball and crossed the Northwestern goal. And so far as having enough time to do it in was concerned, I believe they could have made it walking.

He'dler Confers With Pirate Chief Here

Dreyfuss, in commenting on the parley today, said that nothing of particular importance was discussed.

Heydler came here from Cincinnati, where he went with John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, at the conclusion of the world series. It was said in Cincinnati that McGraw was angling for the services of Reg Lucas or Silas Johnson, Red pitchers.

Mose Butch, a stocky young southpaw boxer of Oakland, who won the national junior amateur bantamweight championship before turning professional a few years ago, steps up to main bout estate at Motor Square Garden tonight, meeting Johnny Datto, Filipino sleep-inducer of Cleveland, over the 10-round route.

Mose Butch

Mose has boxed other windups, notably the one at Hickey Park, Millvale, recently, in which he upset the dope to take the measure of Jackie Rodgers, Datto's playmate in three bouts at the Garden last winter, all of which packed 'em in, but this is his first start as a headliner in the East End arena. If he can beat Datto, too, the depression will be merely a rumor in the Butch family this winter.

BOTH GOOD PUNCHERS

Datto's ability as a puncher is well known and respected by the fans. But Butch himself is a belter of parts. He throws a mean left for parking space on opponents' chins and has gained a lot of confidence in recent starts. The local entry will be the underdog entering the ring, but he may leave it a snarling curley wolf with the fans. It's his big chance to establish himself and he plans to make the most of it.

Datto, who arrived here yesterday, was expected to have difficulty making the prescribed weight of 122 pounds, give or take a pound, without weakening himself. We shall see what we shall see when he enters the ring. He recently toyed with Jackie Wilson, another local young hopeful, for a couple of rounds at Hickey Park and then knocked him out like the Athletics' world series hopes, only to follow up this feat by dropping a six-round decision to a virtual unknown named Frankie Wallace, in Cleveland, last Monday night. Datto is that way. Either he is killer or he is a tame tabby cat. He's one of the ring's best, or worst, in-and-outers, but always a showman.

SPIEGEL BOXES HOLT

Joey Spiegel, Uniontown southpaw welterweight, boxes Billy Holt, Homewood Negro, in the eight-round semi-final; Billy (Mus-cle) Scholes, of the North Side, who has done more comebacks than Adelina Patti, returns from another "retirement" to box Joey Bazzone, of McKeesport, in the second bout, and Petey Johns, of the North Side, will sub for Teddy Mancuso, of Connellsville, a protege of Johnny Ray, who is ill, against Eddie Rowe, a local lad, in the opener at 8:30.

Between Rounds

You can pick your own winner in the Primo Carnera-Jack Sharkey 15-rounder at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, tonight, and you and the other fellow both probably will be wrong. In fact, the only way anyone can be right when Sharkey fights is to be wrong in the beginning.

Two world champions appear in non-title bouts tonight, Battling Battalino, the featherweight king, against Roger Bernard at Philadelphia and Kid Chocolate, former junior lightweight ruler, against Steve Smith at Trenton, N. J.

Frankie Bojarski, of Erie, will meet Mickey Genaro, of Chicago, in the main bout of the opening show of the indoor season in the Ritz Theater, Franklin, Pa., October 23. Leo Bratty is the promoter.

U. S. Entry Annexes Hurdle Race Abroad

UTTOXETER, Eng., Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Mrs. Victor Emanuel's Friar Bacon, at odds of 13 to 8, today won the Doveridge hurdle race at 1½ miles by a length and a half. Mrs. P. Bisgood's Grey Knight was second. Eleven horses ran.

It was Friar Bacon's fourth successive win for the American sportswoman. Today's victory was worth $750.

Forbes

Hoarding Ends; Securities and Sentiment Up

By B. C. FORBES

HYSTERIA has subsided.

ALREADY THOSE backboneless stock owners who voluntarily sold out at the height of the spasm of insanity have reason to regret their childishness. In less than one week 25 industrials included in one recognized compilation have advanced an average of more than 20 per cent and 25 rails are up an even greater percentage. Bonds also have recovered.

B. C. Forbes

HYSTERICAL STOCK selling didn't come mainly from small holders—odd lot buying indeed was heavy. It was revealed on Saturday that one well known investment trust "enjoying a very influential directorate has thrown tens of thousands of shares on the market since June 30. Were all the facts revealed it doubtless would be found that many of the worst sinners have been gentlemen occupying high positions. That they are not entitled to occupy such positions will be the unanimous verdict of the public.

THE BANKERS attending the annual American Bankers Association convention last week were bitterly deploring hoarding. They felt highly aggrieved that depositors didn't show better sense, greater trust in their banks.

My reply to one whiner was:

"Haven't you bankers been the biggest hoarders in the whole country? Isn't it true that many of you have almost ceased being bankers and have become miserly custodians of safety deposit vaults, bulging with money and with government bonds? If you bankers thought it wise to run to cover—by what you call becoming 'thoroughly liquid'—how much right have you to condemn depositors who wanted to become 'thoroughly liquid' by having their cash in their own hands?"

Happily, the urge to hoard has disappeared. Hoarders are now beginning to feel ashamed of themselves.

Also, many who dumped out their bonds and stocks at criminally low prices are beginning to reflect that perhaps after all they weren't so smart as they imagined.

WHAT A TRANSFORMATION has come over the whole Wall street atmosphere in one week. On Monday everything was headed for the bow-wows, nothing was within sight to stem the avalanche of liquidation, prices would sink no one could guess how much further.

On Tuesday morning this column told of vitally important conferences at Washington and announcement of what was going on came later from the capital. That day stocks advanced almost twice as much as they had fallen the previous day. Wednesday brought a breathing spell but on Thursday there was another advance far exceeding Monday's drop. Friday was uneventful, but Saturday again brought a manifestation of the new attitude.

A DECLINE in government bonds on Friday to a new low level for the year was attributed to the raising of the New York Reserve Bank rate from 1½ to 2½ per cent—a wise step—is it not possible that part of the real reason was selling of the bonds by holders who, alarmed over the outlook, had previously liquidated shares to put their money into safe government issues? Is it not entirely probable that before long there will be a very broad movement of funds back into good stocks?

BUSINESS and industrial developments continue mixed. One very encouraging announcement was that employment in New York state showed a gain of 3 per cent last month. Several power companies report heavier demands for current. Here and there factories are being reopened and at other points additional workers are being taken on. New England is doing notably well.

SINCE OUR WORST trouble latterly has been caused by panicky sentiment by asthmatic psychology, there is reason for hoping that the abatement of unreasoning fear will bring substantial betterment in many directions.

The marked improvement in sentiment which has spread over the country is indeed the most encouraging development of all. Bankers and others who a week ago were intensely nervous are now ready and willing to go along heartily with President Hoover in his various constructive plans for the benefit of banks, bank customers, real estate, railroads, etc.

The writer said here on Thursday: "It may be that recent low prices will not be duplicated in the next five or even 10 years." Latest events have strengthened that opinion.

Increase Reported In Fire Insurance

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—According to figures issued by the American Mutual Alliance, mutual fire insurance business shows a net increase for the first six months of 1931 of 3.5 per cent, or $170,000,000 net. These figures were taken from the books of 50 of the representative companies of the Federation of Mutual Fire Insurance Companies. For the same period the assets of these companies have increased 10 per cent and the surplus 13 per cent.

BANK LENIENCY HOPE SEEN IN CREDIT PLAN

Hoover Counter Deflation Attempt Held Futile Without Easing of Rule

By MERRYLE RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Vast new influences have been injected into the international economic situation recently.

The new Hoover financial plan must be considered in its proper setting. The earlier suspension of the gold standard in Great Britain was a counter-deflationary move which removed one of the principal sources of pressure against the international commodity price level.

Mr. Rukeyser

The Hoover program likewise is a conscious effort at counter deflation. It is specifically aimed to stop credit restriction resulting from the abnormal fears of bankers and depositors. As a supplement to the privately subscribed banking pool, the President has indicated that he will recommend the additional use of supporting federal funds through a finance corporation, if necessary.

At home the new Hoover-sponsored attempt at managed recovery is designed to break the vicious circle of depression which results from the mutual attempt of debtors and creditors to press one another abnormally. Unless the banks use their new security resulting from the massed effort to show greater leniency and consideration to business borrowers, the maneuver will have been largely in vain.

Under recent conditions of abnormal liquidity some economists have felt that banking policy was contributing to the depression by failure to show sufficient liberality to small business borrowers.

The synchronization of another stock exchange gesture against unbridled short selling with the Hoover meeting resulted in a runaway market on the up side for one day at least last week. The request of the Stock Exchange that all short sales be earmarked when orders are given to floor members was evidently designed to discourage indiscriminate short selling.

The great evil in connection with short selling in times of acute crisis lies in the unscrupulous tactics of irresponsible bear operators, who spread false rumors about companies and men. The remedy is in greater vigilance by the business conduct committee of the stock exchange and by law enforcement officers in prosecuting disseminators of maliciously false information.

VALLEY STEEL GAIN SEEN

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 12.—For the second week in October, valley iron and steel industry upholds production at a rate of 30 to 35 per cent, with finishing mill schedules on a moderately higher basis than steel ingot capacity. Work is being distributed among as large a number of men as possible and employment conditions show some betterment. The machine shop department of the Youngstown Pressed Steel Company at Warren is fully engaged on new work, and the men are working overtime. Another large fabricating interest in the district will work off in a month to six weeks a number of its larger contracts, but has others to start upon their completion.

Indicating maintenance of working conditions and employment is the September payroll of $4,309,973, which is virtually the same as the August disbursement, but down about $2,000,000 from September, 1930. The September payroll, however, is for 25 working days, against 27 for the August distribution, and therefore really represents an increase in the distribution.

Encouraged by President Hoover's plan for re-habilitation of industry and by improved requirements of the automobile industry, valley steel makers look for better conditions in the near future.

Pennsylvania Corn Crop Up for 1931

HARRISBURG, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—A corn crop in Pennsylvania nearly two and one-half times as large as last year's was forecast for 1931 by the federal-state crop reporting service.

The estimated corn harvest last year was 26,640,000 bushels. The estimate for this year is 64,107,000 bushels. The average yield for the five-year period from 1925 to 1929, inclusive, was 55,127,000.

Bankers Study Plans to Change Reserve Act

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

PROPOSALS FOR MODIFYING the Federal Reserve Act, which were included in President Hoover's plan for banking relief, have been subjective to exhaustive discussion by bankers in all parts of the country. The suggested changes would extend the types of security on which the reserve banks can loan money to member banks, would make it possible for the system to meet emergencies and would make our currency more elastic than it is at present.

Bankers are almost universally in favor of broader powers for the Federal Reserve Board, but there is much difference of opinion as to the exact extent to which it will be safe to remove restrictions without endangering the liquidity of the reserve system.

With the introduction of legislation to amend the Federal Reserve Act, a practical certainty at the next session of Congress, discussion of the law will be widespread. During the present week a series of articles in this column will explain the workings of the Federal Reserve system and will show just what it has done for individuals and banks during the 17 years of its existence.

Need for Central System

THE INADEQUACY OF the country's monetary and credit system, or rather lack of system, became particularly apparent in the panic of 1907, when the troubles of business were due, not so much to inherent commercial conditions, as to the fact that our currency was not sufficiently flexible to meet the rise and fall of business activities. Many banks at that time were forced to suspend payments in currency, although they were perfectly solvent. The situation was finally met by the use of clearing house certifiactes which were little more than bank promises to pay, but which were generally accepted as good money.

The cry for an improved credit system which followed the 1907 panic resulted in many suggestions for reforms of banking laws. Most European countries at that time had central banks of issue which could loan money to individual banks and take other steps to control the volume of currency. Many of the plans proposed the adoption of a similar system here.

Elastic Currency Needed

THE FUNDAMENTAL TROUBLE here lay in the fact that practically the same amount of money was in circulaiton at all times. This was in spite of the fact that the needs for money to transact business vary widely. When business was active credit demanded large amounts of money. When business was slow the supply of funds was excessive and it lay unused in bank vaults. At seasons when crops were going to market the need for finances was so great that money invariably became tight and interest rates soared. To meet the requirements of these peaks, banks in large cities had to keep vast reserves on hand at all times. This was costly, since these funds were not earning money for the banks during large portions of the year.

The central banks in Europe met this requirement by their ability to loan money to banks during periods of peak demand for funds, but there were some objectionable features. Being government institutions they are subject to political control and frequent changes in policy with the rise and fall of political parties. In addition there was the danger of the dominant party forcing the bank to pursue policies of dangerous inflation to create the appearance of active business for political purposes.

Federal Reserve Formed

THE ANSWER TO THE PROBLEM was found in the Federal Reserve system created in 1913. This was a bank for banks with definite limitations to its powers. It was created by the government, but was owned by individual banks. The government was given a voice in it, but was not given close political control. The Federal Reserve was given currency issuing powers which partially met the need for elastic currency.

The system performs other services to individuals and banks which will be discussed in the column tomorrow.

Everyday Investment

By W. S. COUSINS

International News Service Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—For the second time with 20 years, America is now called upon to maintain the world's most important "free and open markets" for securities.

At the outbreak of the war in Europe, when Britain and the Continental European countries ruled against the shipment of gold from their shores and closed their stock exchanges, the American markets remained open. Millions of dollars of American securities, which had been reposing for years in the lock-boxes of European investors, came back to their homeland. The fighting nations received gold for these securities and sold us some of their own in addition.

With Great Britain again off the gold standard, her security exchanges under great restriction and "cash trading" prescribed for the trading in a large number of stocks and bonds, thousands of her investors have been making use of facilities afforded by the New York markets to buy and sell securities. With many of them it is largely a case of sell. Prompted by the need of cash, they have been dumping their stocks freely on the New York Stock Exchange and, according to some accounts, have been heavy short sellers of American stocks.

This accounts for a good share of the steady and persistent selling of stocks which in the past few weeks has effectively blocked every effort stocks have made to rally, and has carried prices of the favorites to the lowest levels in one to ten years. It was probably a more important factor in depressing both stock and bond values in the last three weeks than the slow business recovery, which incidentally is due in large measure to the unsettlement in the stock market. One factor reinforces another.

Though the outlook in the security markets since June has not been very bright, it is important to bear in mind that business depressions and severe revulsons in the stock market have the effect of placing securities on the bargain counters. Fortunes have been wiped out in vain efforts to "pick the bottom" of a sustained downward move of prices, but in all such movements somebody has purchased stocks on the bottom. The worst day of a bear market is the last day, for on that day prices reach their lowest.

Some of the world's greatest fortunes have been made by picking equities of the right kind (including stocks and bonds) when they were "begging" for protection and a place to repose safely. A time will come, sooner or later, when good bargains in stocks and bonds will be again spread at the feet of the man with money to invest. Just when that time is, is anybody's guess.

Deal Includes Interest Held by Van Sweringens; Deny Consolidation Move

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Patrick H. Joyce, acting president of the Chicago Great Western Railway, announced the carrier had acquired a 20 per cent interest in the Kansas City Southern Railroad.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—The Star says the 20 per cent interest in the Kansas City Southern Railroad, which Patrick H. Joyce, acting president of the Chicago, Great Western, announced had been acquired by his organization, includes stock formerly owned by the Van Sweringen interests.

LOREE HAS INTEREST

O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen, Cleveland railroad financiers, have been heavy investors in Southern stock, as has L. F. Loree, chairman of the board.

President C. E. Johnston, of the Kansas City Southern, said he had no first hand knowledge of Joyce's plans and had no statement to make.

GULF-NORTHWEST ROUTE

Joyce said:

"The purchase was made last week, and gave us part of the trackage we need for a direct route from the Northwest to the Gulf of Mexico. We will make a railroad out of it if we can get co-operation."

Joyce said no further negotiations were pending between the two roads, but that additional trackage would be obtained if possible from other sources. He explained the 20 per cent purchase was "not a consolidation of the two carriers."

EUROPE SEES BASIS FOR UPTURN

Developments Last Week Provide Foundation for Constructive Programs

By WYLIE KING.

(Copyright, 1931, Universal Service, Inc.)

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Is the current outburst of activity and buoyancy in the United States and Great Britain the start of a major upswing in the business cycle or merely a lull in the economic blizzard?

Anyhow, apart from the German politico-financial situation and warlike complications in the Far East, it is considered that the past week provided the best foundation in a long time on which to build constructive programs. The opportunity ought not be lost.

The mal-distribution of gold is not the real trouble, but merely a symptom of the unwieldly external and internal national debts. This cripples the natural flow and interchange of commodities, which, according to the Wiggin report, are already handicapped by tariff barriers.

The debtor nations, especially Germany, are finding the export markets increasingly difficult and are naturally unable to buy new gold with which to pay old debts. The consequent loss of international confidence in paper credit makes a world conference and world audit of money and credit problems urgent.

Stocks of Rubber Drop in Far East

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Dealers' stocks of rubber experienced another cut a more decided reduction in the Far East during September, advices to the New York Rubber Exchange state. Such holdings totaled 38,411 tons at the end of the month, as compared with 42,393 tons at the close of August, and 36,618 tons at the end of September last year.

Railroads Report Lower Loadings

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—During the first seven days of October, the Illinois Central Railroad handled 25,324 cars of revenue freight against 42,926 during the same period in 1930.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

I do not want to go home yet. Nor does Albert. So we stroll along the embankment, the river flowing softly below. We halt by the mill and lean over the railing of the bridge.

"It's queer that we can't bear to be alone, Ernst, isn't it?" says Albert.

"Yes," I say. "One doesn't seem to have any idea where one belongs here."

He nods. "Yes, that's it. But one just has to belong somewhere."

"Perhaps if we had a job," I hazard.

He does not agree. "That's no good, either. What we need is something living, Ernst. A human being, you know—"

"A human being!" I protest. "Why, that's the least sure thing in the world. Heaven knows we've seen often enough how easily they can snuff out. You'd need 10 or a dozen at least to be sure there would still be one left at roll call."

"I don't mean that way," says he. "I mean a human being to whom one really belongs. Sometimes I think—well, a wife—"

"A man has to have something he can put faith in. Can't you see that? What I want is someone that will love me; she would have me and I her. Otherwise a man may just as well go hang himself!"

"But, Albert," I say soothingly, "you've got us, haven't you?"

"Yes, yes, but this is different—" And after a while he whispers, almost as if he were in tears, "Children, that's what a man needs—children. No, know nothing about it."

I do not quite follow his meaning; but I cannot ask him more questions.

LIFE TOO SLOW

We had pictured it all otherwise. We thought that with one accord, a rich, intensive existence must now set in, one full of the joy of life regained—and so we had meant to begin. But the days and the weeks fly away under our hands, we squander them on inconsiderable and vain things, and when we look around nothing is done. We were accustomed to think swiftly, to act in the instant—another minute and all might be out forever. So life now is too slow for us; we jump at it, shake it, and before it can speak or resound we have already let go again. We had Death too long for companion; he was a swift player and every second the stakes touched the limit. It is this that has made us so fickle, so impatient, so bent upon the things of the moment; this that now leaves us so empty, because here it has no place. And this emptiness makes us restless; we feel that people do not understand us; that mere love cannot help us. For there is an unbridged gulf fixed between soldiers and nonsoldiers. We must fend for ourselves.

But occasionally into our restless days there intrudes something, a strangely growling and muttering something, like the distant menace of gunfire, like some indistinct warning from beyond the horizon which we do not know how to interpret; which we do not wish to hear; from which we turn away always in a curious fear lest we may miss something—as if something were trying to escape us. Too much has escaped us already—and for not a few it was nothing less than life itself.

Karl Broger's lodgings are in a terrible mess. The bookcases are all empty and piles of books are strewn over the tables and floor.

Karl was a bibliomanic before the war; he collected books as we did butterflies and postage stamps. Eichendorff was his special weakness. He had three separate editions of his works and knew most of his poetry by heart. But now he means to sell all his library to get enough capital to set up in the schnapps business. According to him, there is a lot of money to be made in such things. So far he has merely been agent for Lederhose, but now he proposes to start on his own account.

I turn the pages of the first volume of one of the editions of Eichendorff that is bound in a beautiful soft blue leather. Sunset. Woods and Dreams—Summer Nights. Desire Exile—What a time that was!

Willy has the second volume. He looks at it appraisingly. "You ought to offer them to a shoemaker," he suggests.

"How so?" asks Ludwig, smiling.

"The leather!" answers Willy. "The shoemakers haven't a square inch of decent leather these days. Here—" he takes up the Works of Goethe—"Twenty volumes! They would make at least six pairs of topping leather shoes. A shoemaker would give a sight more for them than a bookseller, believe me. They're absolutely crazy for real leather!"

"Would any of you like some yourselves?" says Karl. "I'll let you have them at reduced prices." But nobody wants them.

"Think it over though, Karl," says Ludwig. "It won't be so easy to buy them back again later."

KARL PRACTICAL

"What's it matter?" laughs Karl. "Live first; that's more important than reading. As for the exam, well to the devil with it. It's all bunk anyway. Tomorrow I start in with the schnapps samples. Ten marks on a bottle of smuggled brandy, not much wrong with that, eh, my lads. Money's what you want; then you can get everything else."

He ropes up the books in great bundles. There was a time I remember when he would have gone without food rather than sell one of them. "What are you pulling such a face about?" he says scornfully. "One must be practical! Scrap the old stuff and start in afresh."

"Yes, that's right," agrees Willy. "I'd sell mine, too—if I had any, that is, of course."

Karl pats him on the shoulder. "Half an inch of business is better than a mile of culture, Willy. I sat in the muck out there long enough. I mean to see a bit of life now."

"He's right, you know," I say. "What are we going to do about it, lads? A little bit of schooling—what does it amount to, anyway? Nothing!"

"Yes, you pull out, too, boys," advises Karl. "What do you want with pen-pushing?"

"Heaven knows it is a lot of rot," replies Willy. "But at least we are all together still. And then, it's only a couple of months now to the examination; it would be a pity not to go through with it. One can always have a look around afterward."

FORAGING EXPEDITION

Karl shears off some brown paper from a roll.

"Get away with you!—You'll always have some couple of months or other about which it would be a pity—and in the end you will wake up and find yourself an old man."

Willy grins. "Yes, and won't you have a cup of tea while you're waiting, Mr. Homeyer, eh?"—Ludwig stands up.

"What does your father say about it?"

Karl laughs. "What all the frightened old people say. But one can't take that seriously. Parents always overlook the fact that one has been a soldier.

"What would you have been if you hadn't been a soldier?" I ask.

"Bookseller probably, poor fool," answers Karl.

Karl's decision has made a profound impression on Willy. He is in favor of our giving up all this useless grind and taking joy where it is to be had.

But man easiest tastes the joys of life while eating. So we settle on a foraging expedition. The ration cards allow only half a pound of meat, three-quarters of an ounce and a half of margarine, three ounces of pearl barley and some bread each week per person—no man can get a square feed off that.

The foragers begin to assemble at the station in the evening and during the night, in readiness to go out into the villages first thing in the morning, so we must set off by the first train if they are not to be there before us.

Synopsis

Ernst, who enlisted when a schoolboy, tells the postwar story of a group of friends from the same city who march home when peace is made to find a strange new world in which they seem out of place. Problems of occupation and adjustment obsess them. The war seems to have spoiled them for anything but trench life. School, to which they return, strikes them as useless and puerile. Ernst, Albert Troske and Ludwig Bayer meet Rahe and the four go to see Gieseke, who is in the asylum. It is an ordeal to talk with men who have lost their grip. The visit depresses the men. They speak little when they leave, the horror of war and its terrible aftermath heavy upon them.

Film Extra Prospects for Gold in Mountain

"Gosh," Millie Ryder whispered to Inez Garvin as they stood at the serving window in "Keeler's"—Keeler's being just "another restaurant" in Hollywood—"he must be some star—he looks like a million dollars."

Inez smiled from superior wisdom. Millie had come down from San Luis Obispo solely to work as a waitress in Keeler's, while Inez had come to Hollywood to star in pictures, just as had 50,000 other pretty girls in the course of years since the Fourth Industry had made Hollywood its capital.

"Chances are he's just an extra, specializing in society parts. They always have to look like one of those smart custom tailored clothes ads," Inez explained.

The young man who "looked like a million dollars" went over and sat down at one of the tables in the group that Inez served.

He smiled at her when she came to take his order—but it was a polite, friendly smile. Inez knew the different grades of smiles.

The spick and span young man ordered a modest and inexpensive meal. Inez noticed that he was extremely careful not to soil his clothes as he ate. His tip was a dime.

By this token Inez knew that either he was a hopeful extra with no work in sight or else some really important star.

PREFER OTHER TYPES

For several weeks the young man ate there, twice daily. He and Inez discussed unimportant trifles occasionally, and their friendliness went no further.

Then he missed a few meals. When he returned he explained that he had been working in a picture.

"Good part?" Inez asked.

"Anything is good these days. It's the first I've had in a month. The usual $7.50 a day, with the half going to an agent."

"I know—it's tough," Inez agreed. "I was in a few pictures, but jobs were so few and far between and my appetite kept right up to normal, so I had to take this job."

"Thanks—I guess you mean that, but they seem to go after other types."

"I know. Dumb Doras with baby stares."

"Yes, they are, young lady, and they'll find it out later."

Inez blushed just a little and also smiled. This was a gentle compliment as to her mor[illegible].

"If there was a chance for you in a picture, how could I reach you? You see, now and then Charlie Butts or Hy Dawson, who are casting directors, drop in and ask me if I know of any certain type. It seems that while the extras flock around sometimes, out of the mob, they can't find just what they want. They know that I see hundreds of them daily."

TELLS OF FRIEND

"Now that would be fine, and I'd rather give you the commission—"

"For goodness sake, be yourself—as if I'd take a commission after knowing what a tough proposition you are up against."

He handed her his card, which gave his address in a cheap boarding house that Inez knew about, also the telephone number and the added information that his name was Thomas Traynor.

"And it happens to be my real name. Look here, I've heard you called 'Inez.' What's the rest of it?"

Inez told him.

"I met an old chap—not a Forty-niner, of course, but a man around 60—who used to take a mule and grubstake and go prospecting in the hills," Tom told her.

"Almost every old bird you meet has some sort of a story like that. Most of them never saw a pick-ax and washing pan," Inez said.

"No doubt, but what interested me was the old man's statement that lots of men, jobless and desperate, have gone into the hills right now to wash out old trailings. He said that he knew a dozen places where a man could wash out twenty or thirty dollars' worth of dust every week."

"I guess that's so. I used to go up to my uncle's," Inez related, "when I was just a kid, and wash out a teaspoonful of dust and put it in tiny vials for souvenirs."

There was another long stretch without work.

"Why don't you land some other job, Tom?" Inez asked. "It's terrible to sit around like this with nothing but starvation in sight."

"They say, Inez, that two can live cheaper than one—and this is—well, you know what I mean—I'm in love with you."

Inez started at him thoughtfully and then smiled.

"All right, I know it—and I'm in love with you—"

"Wait, please," she finally said, but not until they had embraced for a few moments. "Two cannot live as cheaply as one unless both are working. I can never get rich at this bum job. You see what you can do and I'll see if I can find something better. If we both get decent jobs and a few hundred saved, I'll marry you!"

"Down to my emergency money, darling," Tom said, one evening as he met Inez outside of Keeler's and walked to her rooming house with her, "so I'm beating it away to look for work. I'll keep in touch with you."

He promised. But he was secretly a little ashamed and wouldn't tell her just how desperate he was. He was going away back into the hills and try prospecting. He could make his living money and wouldn't be wearing out expensive clothes. He had some maps and a lot of information from his old friend, Barnes, who had once been a prospector and now worked rather steadily in pictures because of his white beard and wrinkled face.

TOM PROSPERS

Tom's good clothes were stored away. He had ancient high laced boots and patched old corduroy trousers. He was so ambitious that he wasted no time on his personal appearance. A plunge in the stream in the morning, a hastily cooked breakfast and then at his work. Panning was too slow for him. He improvised a small sluiceway at the third location, where there were scores of weed-covered gravel heaps marking the site of mines that were supposedly cleaned out 30 years ago.

Tom Traynor had been wise not to expect sudden riches, but at that he found that he was getting more dust than he had expected. When this third lot of provisions were gone he would be out of ready cash, but would have a rather surprising amount of dust that would bring him good money.

This third place had surprising little pockets where the years and specific gravity had filled them with the gold dust. The place seemed good to him for perhaps a year more at this rate. Already he had in sight his restaurant, with Inez as his marital and business partner. He wrote her rather cheerful letters. Inez was honest with him. She assured him of her love, she admired his ambition and she regretted that he had such high hopes, as she did not believe he could ever win out in this manner.

One forenoon he had visitors, two men. They were deeply interested in Tom and his activities and said they were merely on vacation, sort of half-exploring. Tom wondered if they would come back and start working these trailings. He couldn't prevent this.

Sure enough, in a few days quite a crowd appeared. Tom was just getting good and sore when he began to laugh. It was a production unit out on location!

SIGNS CONTRACT

To the director he said: "Shoot the works, but if you want to use any of my outfit you'll have to pay me for my time and bother."

"That's all right—I can use you, too. I'll have you coached."

"Thanks. I've worked in a dozen pictures already, but I work no longer for a measly 'extra's' $7.50."

Much better terms were made. They found quite a lot of work for Tom to do in this picture, including a fight to take the "claim" from the hero and another fight to save the heroine from swarthy bandits.

Tom went back with the outfit, taking his gold and the checks he had received for his picture work. He was going to bank his money, see Inez, and go back for another year of it. He shaved, he washed out his alternate suit of clothes and amazed the director and others because of his good looks.

The "rushes" were made of what had been shot out there and this resulted in a hurry call for Tom. He had a conference with the director and the production manager and was promptly signed up for two years at a figure that seemed riches to him.

Tom and Inez were married and moved into their little leased bungalow. They sat on the back porch and stared off to the foothills and the mountains beyond through the purple twilight.

"I told you," Tom said, drawing Inez down on his knees and giving her the proper salute, "that there was gold in them thar hills!"

WHY PITTSBURGH IS GREAT

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER

The City Should Pay

It Is Controller Kerr's Duty to Have All Municipal Accounts Audited at Public Expense.

It is understood that Controller Kerr is having the cost of the audit of the City Treasurer's books defrayed by patriotic citizens who want the examination as far removed from political influence as possible and who are willing to spend their own money to protect the interests of all taxpayers.

Doubtless Controller Kerr felt it necessary to resort to outside aid because of the grudging attitude of City Council in appropriating funds for a Controller's audit of the transactions of the Mayor and Department of Supplies and Council's long delay in paying the bill after the audit company had made its disclosures and completed the work.

It is the duty of Controller Kerr to make audits of all departments and bureaus in the city government which have to do with the handling of money. It is not his duty to secure unofficial assistance to pay for such audits. This cost should be met by the city, through Council and the Mayor.

The Controller has made a start in the right direction by ordering a thorough scrutiny of the books of the principal office of the city having to do with the handling of funds. He is doing no more or no less than to fill the obligation he assumed when he took his oath of office.

But he should not stop at the Treasurer's office. There are many other divisions of the city government which handle money and which probably have not been audited for years. There is the Bureau of City Property, which handles market house rents and other revenues; the Department of Public Safety, which takes care of license fees of various sorts; the Bureau of Building Inspection, which takes in money in exchange for building permits. More important than these are the returns from magistrates' fees. Then there are also the fees for parking on the wharves.

Controller Kerr should expand his audit to all other divisions which handle money and the city ought to pay the entire cost. If City Council should refuse, for any reason, to provide the money, the Sun-Telegraph believes that there are sufficient other patriotic citizens, in addition to those who have underwritten the Treasurer's office audit, to contribute enough to pay for all the audits which are necessary.

Too Many Parties

Obscure Little Factions Should Not Be Permitted to Prevent Use of Voting Machines.

Certain districts of Allegheny County and Philadelphia face the prospect of not being able to use voting machines in the November election because the machines have room for only nine party columns and 11 parties are entitled to have their tickets on the ballot.

The situation leads the Philadelphia Record to remark that it will be easy under the present arrangement for the corrupt Republican organization to prevent the use of voting machines any time it wishes by the simple expedient of having its hirelings pre-empt names and call themselves new political parties. With the use of 25 hirelings, the Record says, five parties can be added to the ballot, and the use of the machines thereby prevented.

There will have to be legislation to correct this, for in view of the fraud that has been committed with the paper ballots the people are in no humor to be deprived of the use of the machines.

The solution may lie in requiring those who wish to vote for the candidates of obscure and uninfluential parties to write in their names.

A Light Jubilee

While Wonderful Progress Has Been Made, the Fire-Fly's Secret Is Still Unsolved.

The Illuminating Engineers' Society will hold its silver jubilee convention in Pittsburgh this week.

To appreciate fully what a blessing it is, you should live for a while in a home forced to rely on oil lamps and candles for illumination. There are still many such homes in the rural sections of Allegheny County.

But the ultimate has not yet been reached in artificial illumination.

Cold light—light in which there is no waste of energy—is a goal yet to be attained.

An Obsolete Sport

It Is a Pity That Interest Is No Longer Taken in Rowing in Pittsburgh.

Carl Kuechler, who rowed to Pittsburgh from Cincinnati, is surprised that with our rivers and schools we have no crews or rowing clubs.

Rowing was once a famous sport in Pittsburgh. A generation or two ago we produced some crack oarsmen.

It is a pity that the sport has become obsolete, for rowing is good exercise. Office workers would find it beneficial to get out on the rivers in the summer evenings or on Saturday afternoons with sculls. Races in these swift, light craft can be very exciting.

The machine age has affected sports as well as other phases of modern life. Rowing races have given place to motorboat races, bicycle and foot races to auto and airplane races. Mechanical races may be more interesting to the spectators, but the development of the human body that comes from muscular exertion is also worth consideration.

SUN-TELEGRAPH'S PLATFORM

For Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania

2—Rapid Transit.
4—Establishment of Pittsburgh metropolitan district.
5—Town Hall, seating at least 15,000.

Modern Mother Goose

By Nelson Harding

Simple Simon, blindly fishing,
Thinks to catch a whale
In the small amount of water
Confined in a pail.

Pails are never likely places
For the whales to be,
Simon, you will find them only
In the open sea.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Keeping a Husband Stationary

Once, if a girl could get a man as far as the altar, she sat down and breathed long, sweet sighs of relief. Her life-job was practically over.

* * *

But now—oh, the difference to us! The wedding is just the start in the love-chase.

* * *

Men are so restless, divorce is so easy and popular and positively "swank," that all the good old marriage ties are getting as loose and flabby as a pair of last year's garters!

And yet, the advice-givers go right on handing out the same old bunk about "how to hold a husband" by keeping your hair neat, feeding the brute and cultivating your personality.

* * *

There is only one sure way to hold your man, these slippery days, and that is by making a FIRM of marriage—by tying your lives and your spirits together with mutual aims, interests, work and ideals. By working together for the same goal, whether it's building a home, rearing a family, making a fortune or carrying on a professional career. By pooling your interests and sharing your failures or victories, your hopes, your secrets and your profits.

"Keep your hair neat and your nose powdered." Of course! But don't forget that there are 20 love pirates right around the corner, who spend half their lives between the scented bath and the looking-glass.

* * *

"Feed the brute." Why not? But don't fancy that flour-and-water paste will hold a man against apple sauce and imported perfume.

* * *

"Don't nag him." I should hope NOT! But remember that every downtown office is full of sweet little professional "sympathizers," who make a business of "understanding" men whose wives never dreamed of nagging them.

* * *

"Cultivate charm and keep him vamped." Yea, verily. But never imagine that you can hold any man by "sex-appeal" now that it is as plentiful as silk stockings and as common as rouged lips.

* * *

No, dear heart! Marriage is no longer a confidence game, in which a woman can win by a bag of tricks. It's a PARTNERSHIP—or nothing. And the only wife who can be sure of her husband is the one who makes herself his partner in this great business called LIFE.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Betimes early a postcard from the gadabout Charles B. Driscoll in distant Moscow, telling of dining next table to Ruth Thornily, of Gallipolis, O. And a letter, too, from Bangkok, Siam, unsigned but enclosing two pounds, but without explanation.

So at labors but came a gang of roysterers and while one chorded on the harpischord we sang "When the Robins Nest Again," "My Gal is a High Born Lady," and I sang "Sweet Genevieve" very sweetly, too, but was rewarded with groans, catcalls and a squirt of seltzer when I came to "I see thy face, etc."

Paul Whiteman and his Titian-haired bride to dinner and Paul, the thinnest I ever saw, having lost 80 pounds. Then to the theater seeing an all-Negro show and afterward in a pet over sidewalk jousting by idiotic autograph hunters, seeking signature of a Gary Cooper.

* * *

Watterson Rothacker tells of a New Yorker on a flying and hectic trip to Hollywood. He awakened one morning in a fog. His watch had stopped and as was his custom in such emergency asked the telephone operator for "Meridian 1212." After a long wait a voice said: "10:15 o'clock." Then a voice inquired: "Are you through with that New York call?" and he suddenly remembered he was not in New York.

There is Harry Staton's story of the Englishman who was offered a job. He replied he would rather accept the "dole" and be independent.

* * *

Owners of Sealyhams will appreciate the trick Clara Bell Walsh has taught her dog of that breed. Pointing at him, she says sternly: "Are you coming along or aren't you?" And he will do one or the other.

* * *

The Sealyham is the most affectionate of canines. But he refuses to be bossed. Sometimes he can be coaxed, but that depends on his mood. Sealyhams acquire aversions that cling a lifetime. I have a friend who cannot make his cross the east side of the street at Madison avenue and 49th street. Take him to the west side of the same street and he trots along willingly.

* * *

* * *

Jim Thornton, last of the old time vaudeville headliners, carries on, to my notion the most picturesque figure on the vanishing Rialto. His split with his old enemy, John Barleycorn, has been permanent. He is even able to join his old cronies after the theater and sip mineral water—an impossible feat in other days. His shock of hair is still brushed pompadour as it was when in long black coat he stepped—like Dr. Munyon come to life—before theatrical audiences over the land. Now and then Thornton calls on the phone to tell of the whereabouts of this old timer and that. His voice is steady, clear and the agile mind that made him supreme among monologists of his era shows usual alertness. I often wonder what song writer, save for the possible exception of Paul Dresser, thrilled so many people during the 80's and 90's as Thornton with his "My Sweetheart's the Man in the Moon." "Sweet Sixteen" and "She May Have Seen Better Days."

* * *

Singing old songs and discussing an older generation of song writers makes me wonder what popular tune of other years has the greatest appeal. My choice would be Irving Berlin's "Alexander's Ragtime Band." I have observed that it strikes me it has the same affect on others. Invariably it is greeted with a riotously hysterical puff of applause.

* * *

From the Whitewater, Minn., Messenger: "The editor of this paper, R. K. Coe, climbed into his car this morning and waved goodbye to the harassed novices in charge. His fingers itch for a fishing pole with 10 pounds of trouble on the end of the line. He headed for Park Falls to be gone as long as he darned pleases."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Somebody or something shattered your ideals?

Spoiled your illusions?

Don't be.

It's as natural to lose your illusions as it is to lose your baby teeth—

And the man who never changes his ideals is as disgusting as the man who never changes his shirt.

What are these ideals on which you set such store?

"Why, they're the way I feel about life," you say. "The way I think we should act. Honor, courage, kindness—that sort of thing—"

Yes, indeed. And, like all the rest of us, you're quite sure that your way of thinking is the RIGHT way. You may—you admit—do a lot of fool things, but your ideals are all right.

You're wrong, stranger. Your ideals—and my ideals—are merely our private notions concerning human behavior. And, being private notions, they're only as wise, or as foolish, as strong, or as weak, as we are.

Ideals aren't fixed, sacred Truths. They change—or should change—with our development and experience. They are limited by our ignorance of selfishness.

Ideals are never 100 per cent righteous. They represent our idea of life as we think it should be. But they also represent our idea of what we'd LIKE IT TO BE . . . to suit our convenience . . . to gratify our silliness and vanity, our laziness and cowardice.

There's the woman whose IDEAL man must always be strong, gentle, considerate and adoring. Why? Because she admires these qualities? Partly. But largely because any other kind of a man would raise Cain with her pampered, unreasonable, conceited self.

And there's the man whose IDEAL WOMAN is the sweet, modest, clinging Old-Fashioned Girl. Not because he's such a devotee of modesty—but because the modern flapper, with her high-power efficiency and speed, bumps his masculine vanity something awful!

So, out of our mingled goodness and badness, we make an ideal . . . lay down a law for human behaving, as we'd like it to be. Then along comes that old nuisance, Reality, and busts our pretty bubble—and what a yell we raise!

But what would happen if our ideals weren't shattered? Suppose we went on through life, believing the same things we believed at 16 . . . trying to fit men and women to the same small, sentimental standards?

All around you, there are people trying to do that very thing. Grown up people with grown up bodies who are still clinging stubbornly to the half baked notions they had when they were kids . . . demanding that the world conform to them too. Then, when the world won't and can't conform, when Reality shatters their cherished ideals, they go to pieces . . . vow they'll Never Believe In Anything Again.

What tommyrot! Why on earth should we refuse to Believe In Anything Again simply because one pee-wee notion, out of the infinite vastness of Truth, has been exploded.

Is that, perhaps, what's the matter with you? Is that why you can't get along with people . . . why you aren't getting ahead in life . . . why you're constantly being hurt and disappointed and cheated? Are you really cheating yourself by refusing to change and adapt—by refusing to Be Your Age?

Do not complain if something shatters your ideals. Thank God that you have discovered that life is a much bigger and more complicated affair than you had realized. Kiss your old ideals good-by. Put them away with your baby curls, your High School souvenirs. Go on to higher, better ones.

Now for a Plan to Save The Workers' Homes

By Claude G. Bowers

Now that the tumult and the shouting over the White House conference the other night is dying down, we are beginning to get more light on just what was done and intended. There is a general approval, of course, of the plan to safeguard the banks of the country against a more serious threat than the public generally had known to exist. The constant reports of the closing of banks, because of frozen assets, was increasingly a menace. The plan for the bank pool of half a billion dollars is unanimously commended, though some would have made it a billion. But there is certainly going to be some disagreements and discussions over the proposed changes in the Federal Reserve law to enlarge the eligibility of paper which the Federal Reserve Banks may rediscount.

This idea did not originate with the President at all, but has been under consideration by the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency with the view to doing something. The comment of Senator Carter Glass, who was sponsoring the Federal Reserve act when Mr. Ogden Mills and others of the present administration group were opposing the passage of the measure, is significant. He announced in the conference that he would want any change to be "very conservative;" and he has since said that he will not support any plan that would "transform the Federal Reserve system into an investment banking scheme." This illustrates just what is meant by the Democrats present when they said they accepted the plans proposed "in principle." In the working out of the details there will be conflicting views that will have to be reconciled.

Losing Sight of the Farm Region Tragedies

The plan to increase the capital stock of the 12 Federal Land Banks is described as inadequate by the spokesmen of the agricultural sections, and this means a discussion in Congress that may interest the urban population in the foreclosures on farms that are going on at an alarming rate. We have been hearing so much of bank troubles and unemployment problems and the battles of the stock market that Americans living remote from the farming regions of the West have lost sight of the tragedies in that section, where millions of farmers have lost their farms through foreclosures.

Indeed, very little is being heard today about the plight of the farmer. For 60 years he has always come last in the consideration of the ruling powers of government. But there can be no sound and lasting prosperity that leaves the farmer the victim of a system which has put agriculture on the rocks. One of the reasons for the comparative prosperity of France today is found in the fact that a better balance has been maintained between industry and agriculture; that the farmer, who produces the food that feeds the cities, has not been left to depend on crumbs from the rich man's table.

* * *

Keen Interest in Coming Conference With Laval

But the President's references to his coming conference with M. Laval, the French Premier, appear to have aroused the keenest interest and to have called forth the notes of dissension in the conference. The President's statement said nothing definite beyond the admission that he was prepared to discuss the intergovernmental, debts with his visitor; but silence on the part of the conferees might have been interpreted by tricksters as meaning acquiesence in any plan the President may propose in regard to the extension of the moratorium, or the further reduction, or cancellation, of the debts. So emphatic was the dissent upon this point that the President had to change the wording as to his forthcoming discussions with M. Laval.

Senator Borah is opposed to any extension without an agreement from the nations benefiting thereby that they will not use the money for increasing armament.

The fact that the conferees got the impression that Mellon and Mills resented the change in this part of the statement leaves the impression that not least among the purposes of the conference was to commit the leaders present to a policy of ultimate debt cancellation.

* * *

Government Can Float Loan to Give Jobs to Idle

This is the second dramatic move of the President for the benefit of the banking interests. The only definite constructive plans he has advanced thus far have been to this end. And no one but the most arrant demagogue will question the necessity of putting the powers of government and the resources of the nation behind the maintenance of the financial fabric.

But the fact that banks are sound, that money is abundant, does not solve the problem of the unemployed who have no money to deposit and are not looking for loans, but are only asking for jobs, that they may earn their bread and live in self-respect.

That was a vital problem that did not enter into the scope of the recent conference. The President has no dramatic move to make in this direction. He recognizes that there is something government can do when the banks need help, but he can see nothing government can do when millions need jobs.

And government can do something—it can float a prosperity loan for permanent public improvements that will not only furnish jobs, but enormously increase purchasing power and thereby serve the merchants who are, in so many cases, struggling against bankruptcy.

* * *

Too Much Business, Not Enough of the Humanities

And government can do something else—it can ask for "national unity" among the parties on the downward revision of the tariff, which every economist of note and the leading financiers, as well, know, and admit, is playing its part in the general economic demoralization!

Is it not time to survey calmly these "great business policies" of the government which have now reached their fruition in the general wreckage? Senator George is right when he says that with the inauguration of Mr. Harding, Big Business entered into possession of the government, and there is one man who has continued through three administrations who symbolizes that possession. If, as is now admitted, "stupid economic policies" have brought us to where we are, the historian will find no difficulty to tracing the responsibility for these policies. There has been too much business in government, and not enough of the humanities. Now it is time to retrace our steps—and rid ourselves of such economic monstrosities as the prohibitive tariff wall, and give some heed to the plight of the bankrupt farmers and the unemployed.

And this calls for Congressional action, since we have no such thing in America as "orders in council:" and the leaders in Congress, in the White House conference, could pledge absolutely nothing, and did not pretend to do so. The very plans of the President call for speedy action. Congress should be convened early in an extra session; for when the nation, as a nation, acts, no number of conferences of bankers can take the place of the convocation of the chosen representatives of the people. That is "the American way."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Are you careless in your table manners?

As head of the house you feel your table etiquette should not be criticized by any member of the home circle.

If you want to lay your knife or your fork from your plate to the table, you think it makes no difference.

If your way is to cut up all your meat at one time, what's wrong with it?

If you want to eat in your shirt sleeves and put your forearms on the table why should anyone complain?

If you prefer to cut with your knife what should be separated with a fork, what's wrong with that method?

If you enjoy mixing your food on your plate why should mother and the girls look disgusted?

If you reach instead of waiting to have things passed, isn't it saving someone trouble? But—
